ECONOMY FADES AS HOUSE FAILS TO ORDER CUTS

Only 39 Million of 200 Stricken.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 1.—[Special.]—Under the pressure of the bureaucracy and legislative spenders the widely advertised economy program is fading away.

When the omnibus economy bill produced by the joint efforts of the Hoover administration and house leaders was reported to the house last week administration press agents rushed into print with predictions that this measure and reductions in the appropriation bills already in process of passage would bring about a 600 million dollar decrease in the four billion dollar annual cost of the federal government.

As a result, however, of the emasculation of the economy bill by the house last week less than 39 millions of the 200 millions of savings that measure was designed to effect have been approved up to date, while provisions to save 117 millions have been rejected.

Showdown Votes Near.

The house will conclude consideration of the bill tomorrow or Tuesday and then will come a final showdown in record votes on the more important economies that have been rejected.

When it comes to the appropriations bills either passed or in process of passage it appears that these measures in their present stage actually call for nearly 10 millions more for the fiscal year 1933 than was appropriated for the fiscal year 1932.

At this time, therefore, instead of there being a prospective saving of 600 millions there are in sight 39 millions of economies in the economy bill, but 10 millions of increased expenditure in the appropriation bills, or a net prospective saving of only 29 millions.

Interior Items Cut.

The only appropriation bill that has become law is that for the interior department, which was the first of the supply measures the senate ordered its appropriations committee to reduce 10 per cent below the house figures. The senate yesterday passed the bill for the state, justice, commerce, and labor departments at a total 10 per cent below the house total.

All of the bills in their present stage of passage call for smaller expenditures for the next than for the current fiscal year with the exception of that for the White House and independent offices, which call for 150 millions more, mainly due to increased outlays on veterans' benefits.

Comparisons for Two Years.

The 1933 appropriations for all agencies so far presented in bills compared with the 1932 appropriations as reported in the President's budget follow:

	1932.	1933.
Independent offices	329,592,802	985,931,531
Interior dept.	65,746,606	45,533,672
Legislative establishment	27,067,135	20,214,869
Navy dept.	358,459,093	326,340,466
State dept.	18,161,073	13,668,761
Dept. of justice	51,229,201	45,798,500
Dept. of com'ce	49,098,480	39,604,523
Dept. of labor	14,994,200	12,908,270
Totals	$1,657,650,720	$1,667,425,260

The economies provided for in the economy bills that have been approved by the house so far aggregated $38,614,500. They are:

11% pay cuts above $2,500	$13,000,000
Abolition of automatic pay inc.	2,100,000
Enforced retirement of superannuated employés	3,000,000
Abolition of overtime pay	5,800,000
Reduced travel allowances	3,000,000
Reduction of government printing allowances	4,000,000
Reorganization of shipping board	2,500,000
Restriction of soldier transfers	3,368,000
Suspension of plans for central heating plant	750,000
Dept. interchange of supplies and personnel	300,000
Fees for government services	725,000
Transfer of personnel classification to civil service commis'n.	70,000
Transfer of radio division of commerce dept. to radio commis'n	100,000
Transfer of water commission to internat. boundary commission	25,000

AN EX-KLEAGLE FINDS WAY OUT OF DEPRESSION

Founds New Order; Fee $10 to $25.

Edward Young Clarke of Atlanta, former imperial kleagle of the Ku Klux Klan, who claims credit for mobilizing the army of hooded knights that swarmed the countryside a decade ago, has emerged from a long retirement. Mr. Clarke is now in Chicago with a plan for fighting the depression on a national scale.

KLEAGLE CLARKE.

The former kleagle has leased half a floor at 100 North La Salle street, equipped a dozen rooms with expensive furniture, and acquired a staff of fifty clerks, lecturers, and promoters, all dedicated to the task of signing up 15 million members for an organization called Esskaye, Inc.

Initiation fees run from $10 to $25. Those who pay the top price are designated "founder" members and have the perpetual privilege of black balling any of the "regular" members who pay the lower fee.

There is a third, or associate members' class. These members pay no dues, but they may wear the Esskaye emblem if they promise to support Kleagle Clarke's political policies.

Clarke Explains Program.

Mr. Clarke yesterday explained the program of Esskaye, which, as he outlined it, seemed to be a compound of the principles of Benito Mussolini, Adolf Hitler, and A. C. Townley, father of the defunct Non-Partisan league. Esskaye's program, as set forth by Mr. Clarke, is fourfold, to-wit:

1. Build up Esskaye to a point where, with Mr. Clarke as dictator, the organization will have power to impose its will on congress.

2. Pass a law giving the federal farm board power to fix farm prices just as the state commerce commissions fix utility rates, thus increasing the buying power of 60,000,000 people by 100 per cent and restoring prosperity to all.

3. Establish an Esskaye economic research bureau in Washington which, with the backing of Esskaye's millions of voters, will force congress to cut expenditures and taxes 50 per cent.

He Claims 75,000 Members.

"We'll put the farm bill over at this session," asserted Mr. Clarke. "Esskaye already has 75,000 members in 38 states, and the movement is spreading like wildfire, as activities in this office indicate.

"We have three senators and several representatives lined up as a steering committee and have enough votes pledged to put it through in both houses, if a congressman's word means anything."

Ex-Kleagle Clarke declined to name the members of the congressional steering committee, nor would he divulge the identities of the Esskaye trustees, except to say their headquarters was at 11 West 42d street, New York. He was willing to discuss the workings of the Esskaye farm relief plan, however.

Farm Plan Outlined.

"Take wheat," he said. "It's selling now at 40 cents a bushel. Under our bill the farm board would have power to determine the average per capita consumption of wheat in this country each year. Having these figures, the farm board would set a price, say, of $1.25 a bushel on all wheat grown for the domestic market. The grower could sell his surplus on the export market, hold it for sale in a future crop shortage, or destroy it. He'd get $1.25 for his portion of the domestic wheat requirement."

Organization meetings of the Esskaye Founders' Club of Chicago have been held each Friday night for the last six weeks.

"Esskaye," it was explained, is a manufactured word, built up from the first letters of a series of words in a slogan of the new society.

Mr. Clarke's court activities have been summarized as follows:

Oct. 6, 1922—Indicted by a federal grand jury at Atlanta for using the mails to defraud; prosecution dropped.

Sept. 9, 1922—Arrested at Indianapolis for violating the Volstead act; case dismissed.

March 11, 1924—Indicted by a federal grand jury at Houston for violating the Mann act; pleaded guilty and was fined $5,000.

ITALY FIGHTS TO REPULSE FOREIGN WORD INVASION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, May 1.—Under the guidance of several newspapers a battle is on in Italy to drive out all invading foreign words from the territory in which the Italian language is spoken.

The purists of the language of the "new" Italy complain that the use of foreign words is a mark of provincialism which the political powers want to eliminate at all costs. Sports and the movies are held largely responsible for the introduction of foreign words. When sports became generally practiced here after the war there were no Italian words for many of the sport terms such as "goal" for instance in football. Many English words also got in through the captions in the picture shows.

Considerable success has attended the adoption of the word "autista" to replace the French word "chauffeur" as the driver of an automobile. The word "autista" was coined outright. Newspapers were ordered to use it, and now it seems to have caught on. Other words which they want to exclude are "flirt," "bar," "cocktail," "dancing," "boxing," and "vermouth."

BIND GIRL AND VISITOR; STEAL $30 "POOR FUND"

Two bandits invaded a minister's home last night, tied his young daughter and her friend to chairs, and fled with $30 taken from the poor fund.

The minister, the Rev. Theodore Siemon, pastor of St. Matthew's Evangelical Lutheran church, 21st street and Hoyne avenue, and his wife, Hannah, had gone out earlier and left their daughter, Dorothy, 18 years old, and Edward Sering, 23, of 1236 South Scoville avenue, Berwyn, who was calling on Miss Siemon, in the house, which is at 2116 West 21st street.

Shortly after 11 o'clock the robbers knocked on the door and were admitted. They displayed revolvers. When Dorothy pleaded there was no money in the house one of them remarked: "Must be the depression." They tore a bed sheet into strips and tied the girl and Serling to chairs.

Then the gunmen pried open every desk and bureau drawer. They finally came across a box containing the poor fund and emptied it of $30.

5 Year Old Boy Found in Street at Midnight

A sleepy boy, about 5 years old, was found lost early this morning at Lake street and Talman avenue by Policemen Jerry Vavra and Wilfred Nygren of the Warren avenue station. When asked his name at the station he mumbled, "Russell Ricks." Without further formalities the boy curled up in a desk chair and was soon asleep. He wore overalls, dark shoes, and dark stockings.

Find Missing Heiress, Kin of Hindenburg

Mrs. Marie Meehl, 2353 Newcastle street, learned yesterday that she is a grandniece of President Paul von Hindenburg of Germany, that a brother of whom she has not heard in 22 years is now in Redwood City, Cal., and that she is entitled to half of a $500,000 estate left by an Argonaut of the 1849 California gold rush.

Al Little, investigator in the office of County Clerk Robert Sweitzer, gave the tidings to Mrs. Meehl over the telephone and read a letter from the brother, Seawell Augustus Auerswald, addressed "to whom it may concern."

Placed in Orphanage.

The letter was the fourteenth Mr. Auerswald had written in an effort to find his sister and it was forwarded to Mr. Little from the health department at Springfield. It stated that Mrs. Meehl, formerly Clarisa Bona Auerswald, was placed in an orphanage in Los Angeles 22 years ago, when she was 7 years old, and that he had not seen her since. Seawell Auerswald was reared by the Salvation Army in Los Angeles.

The letter and a newspaper clipping sent by Auerswald also told of the estate left to the brother and sister by their maternal grandmother, whose husband was a forty-niner. The newspaper article said that Auerswald's mother in 1900 met and married a young German newspaper correspondent, who was a nephew of Von Hindenburg and a member of the Prussian secret police.

Born in Germany.

Clarisa was born in Germany in 1903 and Seawell was born two years later in California. Their father died in 1909 and their mother died in 1916, the letter said.

After learning of the inheritance Auerswald began to search for his sister. All he knew was that she had left the orphanage in 1922 and had come to Chicago, where she trained to be a nurse at the Columbus Memorial hospital. At the hospital, Mr. Little learned that a Marie Auerswald had studied there but left to marry Frank Mormorstein, a taxicab driver.

Find Driver's Address.

Through the license bureau the driver's address was learned, but at the home, 3827 Southport avenue, it was found that Mrs. Mormorstein obtained a divorce more than a year ago. Mormorstein did not know her present address, but he said she returned once a week to visit their little daughter, Mae Marie.

This was as far as Mr. Little was able to go with his search. Then Fred E. Meehl, manager of the Dearborn Linen Supply company, who had read about the letter received by Mr. Little, called up THE TRIBUNE to verify its authenticity, saying: "That's my wife."

Mr. Little has an unpublished telephone number, but a friend of his, another Al Little, drove three miles in response to a telephone call and got the right Al Little on the phone.

"We are going to California at once to see my brother," said Mrs. Meehl. "I have tried for years to locate him I don't know anything about being the grandniece of President von Hindenburg or the granddaughter of a forty-niner but we can use the money."

Mrs. Meehl had forgotten that her name was originally Clarisa, but she recalled that it had been changed when she entered the orphanage. Her brother's letter stated that he is married and has three children.

AUDIENCE GIVES GEMS AND MONEY TO BAHAI TEMPLE

Jewelry and money amounting to nearly $30,000 were given as offerings yesterday at a meeting in Bahai temple in Wilmette. The meeting was part of the 24th annual Bahai convention, and was attended by fifty-five national delegates and 100 members.

The offering resulted from the pleas of Dr. Zia M. Bagdadi of Wilmette and Mrs. May Maxwell of Montreal. They explained that unfinished work on the dome required $30,000.

The 155 listeners responded. Some took rings from their fingers and placed them on a table. Mrs Agnes Parsons of Washington, D. C., uncoiled a necklace, valued at several thousand dollars, from her neck. Dr. Bagdadi gave a rare Persian coin, presented to him by Abdul Baha, founder of the Bahaists.

Split Atoms of Hydrogen; Get Helium Atoms

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, May 1.—The atom has not only been split but its elements have been transmuted into other elements. Atoms of hydrogen have been turned into atoms of that rare and commercially valuable gas, helium.

This is the astounding claim of two young scientists, Dr. J. D. Cockroft and Dr. E. T. S. Walton, working in the Cavendish laboratory at Cambridge university, of which Prof. Lord Rutherford is director.

No Commercial Value Yet.

"Thus far," he said, "the experiments have not yielded anything which would be of immediate commercial value. I have seen it stated that the discovery means that we shall be able to produce an immense accumulation of added electrical energy for commercial purposes.

"We cannot claim that for the experiments thus far, for the simple reason that for every particle of additional energy obtained it requires millions of particles to make it effective. The experiments, however, are of great scientific interest and likely will be powerful agents in extending our knowledge of the atom."

Dr. Cockroft explained tonight that he and Dr. Walton concentrated on an atom of hydrogen.

Helium Produced.

"We found," he said, "that at 120,000 volts some atoms we were bombarding began to break up into helium. These helium atoms came out with energies 100 to 160 times that of the particles we were firing into them. We only got these results in the last fortnight after nearly three years of work.

"The experiments were made in a high voltage laboratory which Lord Rutherford developed. Voltages of between 120,000 and 600,000 were employed to send millions of particles—protons or positively charged parts of an atom—per second through a vacuum tube at a speed of nearly 40,000 miles per second.

"It was found that the bombardment of different elements by the particles split light elements and transformed them into matter. For every atom split several millions of particles were required."

"NEVER DONE BEFORE."

William Draper Harkins, professor of physical chemistry at the University of Chicago and the first man who made calculations of the vast energies that could be released by the transmutation of hydrogen atoms into helium atoms, said last night that the experiments of Profs. Cockroft and Walton at Cambridge university are of great importance.

"If the results of their work have been correctly reported," he said, "they have done something that was never done before and have taken an important step forward."

"From the description I have," he said, "these experimenters did more than split the atom—they made atoms of one element from the atoms of another element."

In 1915 Prof. Harkins calculated that if the atoms in one pound of hydrogen were built into helium atoms energy equal to that produced by the burning of 10,000 tons of coal would be released—enough to send a battleship around the world.

For nearly twenty years Prof. Harkins has been studying the nature and activity of the atom. He was awarded the Willard Gibbs medal in 1928 by the American Chemical society.

DISCLOSES VAST AMOUNT SPENT ON FARM ESTATE

Tax Evasion Trial Opens Tomorrow.

"Paschendale," the 2,006 acre estate on which Christian P. Paschen lived like a feudal baron and amazed the countryside with his expenditures, will be the subject of much testimony in the former city building commissioner's trial on charges of income tax evasion. The trial will begin tomorrow in the court of Federal Judge John P. Barnes.

CHRIS PASCHEN.

The estate is near Antioch and sprawls across the Wisconsin-Illinois boundary in Kenosha and Lake counties. According to federal investigators, Paschen's expenditures on the estate totaled approximately $1,000,000.

Builds 190 Acre Lake.

Besides the dozen or more small farms he bought up to round out the property, the investigators say he built a 190 acre lake and private roads, established a herd of pure bred Jersey cattle that has increased to more than 500 head, bought thoroughbreds and constructed a private course for horse shows and harness races.

Paschen began acquiring his real estate in May of 1927, when he purchased the 50 acre farm of Former Circuit Judge William Fenimore Cooper for about $35,000. The old Cooper place was made the nucleus of Paschen's country seat where he lived and entertained.

The artificial lake was stocked with fish and there were speed boats for racing and row boats for fishing. A sign at the boathouse said each guest was limited to a catch of 20 pounds of fish.

Some Realty Purchases Listed.

Only a part of Paschen's real estate purchases were disclosed by the federal agents, the records on the others not being at hand. Some of these purchases follow:

On Aug. 15, 1927, Paschen and his wife, Annette, purchased 120 acres in Kenosha county, Wis., from Mrs. H. A. Mico for $30,000.

On Aug. 25, 1927, they purchased 80 acres in Kenosha county from J. N. Crowley for $32,000.

On Aug. 25, 1927, they purchased 80 acres in Lake county from E. N. Kaye for $28,000.

On Aug. 15, 1927, they purchased 102 acres in Kenosha county from Thomas McGreal for $35,000.

Total Acreage Near 2,000.

These and other purchases of real estate, together with improvements, brought the total acreage up to around 2,000, and the total financial outlay to about $1,000,000, the federal agents say. All the property was not paid for in cash, however, and Paschen was subsequently obliged to mortgage all his holdings. Experts estimate that the value of the properties now is less than the incumbrances, and Paschen, once rated a millionaire, is said to be broke.

Mortgages on all the properties were held by the Foreman State National bank, which was absorbed by the First National bank. The sale of the live stock to satisfy these claims, as well as those of Darling & Co., fertilizer merchants, was stopped last February by a federal injunction after the filing of an involuntary bankruptcy petition against Paschen.

Evasion of $113,497 Tax Charged.

Most of the purchases of real estate were made in 1927, when Paschen's gross income, according to the federal indictment, was $234,240. His most successful year in the boom days, the government charges, was 1928, when his gross income is alleged to have been $333,685. For the two years he is charged with having understated his net income and attempted to evade taxes in the amount of $113,497.

Paschen's trial, like that of former Assessor Gene G. Oliver, who was convicted and sent to the penitentiary for eighteen months on income tax fraud charges, will be marked by revelations of official corruption, the government agents declare. The evidence showed that Oliver accepted bribes to fix taxes. Charges that bribes were solicited and paid in Paschen's office were made in a civil suit by Jules K. Massee, a draftsman, a year ago. Contractors and architects whose plans and building details had to be approved by Paschen are expected to be called as government witnesses.

Poust Defends Paschen.

Paschen has retained as counsel Cassius Poust, former assistant United States attorney, who helped to prosecute Oliver and several gangsters in the government's income tax campaign. As a prosecutor, both state and federal, Mr. Poust has a record of never losing a case, and he is now on the other side in the face of the government's 100 per cent record of convictions in income tax cases.

Poust will be opposed by Assistant United States Attorneys Dwight H. Green and Samuel G. Clawson and Special Assistant Attorney General William J. Froelich.

TRIAL OF SERRITELLA

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

Specific instances of cheating by merchants who are alleged to have plied their shortweighting frauds undisturbed under the régime of Dan Serritella as city sealer are expected to be presented today to the jury before Judge James J. Kelly.

Serritella, a Capone henchman, who was sealer under the former city administration, is on trial with his chief deputy, Harry Hochstein, on a charge of conspiracy to bribe, to extort, and to defraud the public through allowing merchants to short weight their patrons.

Investigators Charge Fraud.

Investigators for the state's attorney's office visited many stores while Serritella was in office and, under the guise of customers, made purchases. Many times the investigators were defrauded, it is charged.

Some doubt as to the admissibility of such evidence has been expressed, but the prosecutors feel confident that Judge Kelly will permit them to present evidence of cheating in the cases of stores whose owners have been connected with Serritella.

The evidence last week showed that some chain store companies paid tribute to Serritella and Hochstein in the form of cash or in provisions donated to the defendants for inclusion in Christmas baskets distributed by the Serritella political organization.

Prosecutors Are Hopeful.

The prosecutors believe that the court will allow them to present evidence to show that stores operated by these companies defrauded investigators for the state's attorney in specific instances.

The state has not revealed what other evidence, if any, will be presented, but it was stated that in all probability the state will close its case in a few days.

Judge Fisher's Jury Will Meet Today and That's All

The special grand jury impaneled by Chief Justice Harry M. Fisher of the Criminal court will report in his courtroom this morning, but it is not expected that any investigation of primary campaign charges will be started today. The inquiry may be postponed in expectation of a decision by the State Supreme court on the validity of the rival juries of Judge Fisher and Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg, or the jury may be dismissed altogether on the ground that its existence may not be continued beyond the month in which it was impaneled. That question, too, will be raised against Judge Feinberg's jury which is scheduled to meet later in the week.

Passerby Rescues Woman from Smoke-Filled Home

Mrs. Mollie Wolff, 66 years old, of 160 North Halsted street, was saved from possible suffocation early this morning after her room had been filled with smoke from a fire. She lives alone in a three story building. The fire started among a 25 foot pile of fruit boxes in the rear yard, directly below Mrs. Wolff's room. It was noticed by Stanley Perzybylo, 927 Will street. He broke down two doors to reach Mrs. Wolff.

Passenger's Back Broken by Fall on Bus Stairs

Peter Emrick, 29 years old, 2953 North Ashland avenue, was possibly fatally injured late last night when he fell from the upper to the lower deck of a southbound motor bus at Lake Shore drive and Goethe street. Other passengers said that Emrick slipped as he started to go down the winding stairs. At the Henrotin hospital it was found that his back had been broken.

TARDIEU'S FATE AT STAKE; PARTY BEHIND IN VOTE

Strength of Premier of France Dwindles.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 2.—[Monday.]—Ten million Frenchmen went to the polls yesterday and told the world the kind of men they want to run their affairs for them for the next four years. From the scattered returns it is not hard to draw a composite picture of the ideal member of the chamber of deputies as the voters saw him.

He is a man who will keep cool, sit tight, and will not give anything away without counting ten first. He will be almost indistinguishable from his predecessor, except that his seat in the chamber likely will be a couple of rows farther to the left.

That is the only conclusion that can be drawn from the French elections on the basis of returns from 500 of the 615 constituencies available at 3:30 a. m.

A swing to the left there certainly is—as far as the popular vote is concerned. To what extent it will result in the realignment of parliamentary groups depends on the runoff elections next Sunday. Over half the seats will be involved at the next election. On the first ballot 217 deputies were elected.

One thing is certain. It is a triumph for the moderate center against the extreme Nationalist right and the extreme Internationalist left. It is particularly so among the latter, for the communists appear to have dropped about 400,000 votes from the 1,000,000 they polled in 1928 and only one of their 12 deputies has been reelected.

The Socialists appear to be a little behind, but pulled a surprise by not losing more heavily. Former Premier Edouard Herriot's Radical Socialists are gaining. The right is losing in about the same proportion as the Socialists. The right wing of the center, which is most intimately associated with Premier André Tardieu's government, is barely holding its own, while the left wing, which has supported the cabinet lukewarmly, has gained some ground.

Tardieu's Fate at Stake.

The Republicans of the left, Premier Tardieu's party, showed the largest loss. They lost eight seats. Premier Tardieu, as was expected, was reëlected. As the returns came in next Sunday's election grew more vitally important in determining the fate of the Tardieu government.

Besides Premier Tardieu, all the dominant party figures were reelected. Among them are leaders of the two strongest opposition parties, Herriot of the Radical Socialists and Leon Blum of the Socialists.

Voting Is Orderly.

Today's voting was remarkable for its calm and orderliness. The police, who were ready to deal with the customary communist demonstrations, declared it was the quietest May day in the history of the third republic. Parades of unemployed were held in some of the provincial towns, but in Paris and other large centers the proletarians were content to say it with votes.

The only disorders reported were isolated skirmishes between groups of youthful Fascists and workers in the suburbs of Paris and some fistic arguments between supporters of the rival candidates in the provincial towns.

President Paul Doumer and Cardinal Verdier, archbishop of Paris, were early arrivals at the polls. Premier Tardieu has recovered from his fever, but he was too weak to leave his residence to cast his ballot.

CHICAGO TRAIN KILLS SIX AT GRADE CROSSING

Marshfield, Wis., May 1.—[Special.]—Six persons were killed in a grade crossing accident near here tonight which wiped out the families of two brothers, with the exception of a 6 year old girl who suffered a broken back and is believed to be dying.

The dead are: Joseph Reimer, 47, and his wife, Mary, 37; Irvin Reimer, 32, his wife Frieda, 30, and their two children, Donald, 12, and Lois, 3. The injured child, for whom hope virtually has been abandoned, is the daughter of Joseph Reimer.

The scene of the accident is at a gravel road crossing 6 miles north of here. There were no witnesses to the accident, which occurred in full daylight. The train is the "Dominion," fast through express from Chicago to Vancouver. The victims lived on adjoining farms near the scene of the accident.

Carlton Coon Reported Near Death in Hospital

The condition of Carlton Coon, co-director of the Coon-Sanders orchestra, remained critical last night, according to reports at the Henrotin Memorial hospital. He has less than an even chance for recovery, according to physicians. Coon entered the hospital last week suffering from poisoning which developed from an abscessed jaw infection. He has conducted orchestras in a number of loop restaurants and cafés for years.

POLICE RECOVER STOLEN DRESSES AND SEIZE GUNS

Raids by Sergt. Ernest Sloey and his squad on two west side homes last night netted the recovery of forty dresses allegedly stolen, the confiscation of a shotgun and a revolver, and the arrest of one man. At 807 South Oakley boulevard the squad found twenty dresses and the shotgun and seized Vincent Aurienno, 34 years old, a taxi chauffeur.

At 3545 West Congress street, the home of Mrs. Mary De Maio, they also found twenty dresses and the revolver. Identification tags had been removed from all the garments. Police believe they were part of loot stolen in recent weeks by a band of "phantom" window smashers.

Western Av. Tire Store Is Damaged by Bomb

Damage estimated at $200 was caused late last night by the explosion of a bomb in the front doorway of a building at 1301 South Western avenue, occupied jointly by the Firestone Service store and the A. M. O'Leary company, dealers in truck tires. George Jenkins, manager of the Firestone store, told the police he knew of no motive for the blast.

TRACE NEW CALL TO FAMILY OF KIDNAPED YOUTH

Center Search for Joliet Victim on West Side.

The tracing of a second telephone call to the family of Gustav Miller, 22 year old son of Max Miller, wealthy Joliet malt dealer, who was kidnaped Thursday night, directed the search for the abductors yesterday to the haunts of the 42 gang on Chicago's west side.

The call was put through Friday afternoon. By the time the telephone operator had traced the call the caller had become suspicious and hung up without speaking. The first call, received early Friday morning, demanded $50,000 ransom.

Appeals to Secret Six.

The father of the kidnaped youth yesterday said he had received no further word and this was said to be true by investigators of the Secret Six and intimate friends of the family. Mr. Miller was said to be hopeful of establishing communication with the kidnapers and dealing with them secretly for the release of his son.

Mr. Miller appealed to the Secret Six, however, believing that they might do something. This organization brought about the release of Dr. James W. Parker of Peoria without ransom and later arrested ten men and two women, who are awaiting trial for the crime.

Joliet Citizens Aroused.

Joliet citizens and civic associations were aroused by the kidnaping and urged Mr. Miller not to pay ransom. They also demanded action by the local police but Chief Nicholas Fornango said the family had refused to coöperate with them.

Young Miller was kidnaped as he was leaving the home of his fiancée, Miss Catherine Mesirow, about midnight Thursday.

DEAD MAN'S SUIT FOR 18 MILLIONS AGAINST FORD CO. IS DELAYED

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 1.—(AP)—A suit for $18,000,000 against the Ford Motor company of Detroit, instituted by Arthur L. Banker, who has since died, has been postponed and will not be tried at the term of United States court starting tomorrow.

The postponement was ordered by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in taking under advisement the legality of the plan of Mrs. May Kable Banker, widow of the plaintiff, to prosecute as a party plaintiff.

Ford attorneys claim the action abated with the death of Banker. Mrs. Banker's counsel opposes this contention.

Banker was one of the pioneers in the automobile industry of Pittsburgh. He claimed that the Ford company infringed on an automobile windshield patent.

RULING TODAY ON LEGALITY OF WALLER SUIT

Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude is expected to rule today on whether Mrs. Alice Miriam Hall Waller, who is seeking to tie up the $6,000,000 estate of her father-in-law, Edward C. Waller Sr., may legally sue in Illinois for a divorce from Edward C. Waller Jr.

The estate management has claimed that neither Mrs. Waller nor her husband is a resident of the state. During a hearing last week a deposition from the husband was read, in which he stated that he was a resident of Miami, Fla. Also it was stated by the estate that Mrs. Waller is a resident of Coronada Beach, Fla., and that the alleged desertion charged against Waller did not occur here.

Yellow, stained teeth are not natural. For proof start using Kolynos—a half-inch of this scientific dental cream on a dry brush, twice daily. In 3 days your teeth will look fully 3 shades whiter!

This remarkable dental cream cleans teeth so much whiter than other preparations you've used because it contains two remarkable ingredients. One—the finest cleansing agent known—foams into and cleans out every fissure, removes decay-causing debris, erases ugly tartar and yellow. While the second ingredient kills millions of germs that swarm into the mouth and cause most tooth and gum troubles. Thus the mouth and teeth are quickly cleaned right down to the beautiful, natural white enamel without injury.

Now if you want gleaming white teeth, free from decay, and firm pink gums free from disease start using Kolynos, with its unique Dry-Brush Technique. You'll never regret it. Buy a tube today.

Economies Mean $26,600 Saving a Month.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

County Treasurer Joseph B. McDonough announced yesterday the discharge of 195 employés—41 per cent of his entire force. The estimated monthly saving is $26,600.

C. B. McDONOUGH. [Wallinger Photo.]

"I believe this is the largest proportionate reduction which any public office has reported this year," said the treasurer. "This reduction is in addition to a cut of 60 employés in my office whom the county board eliminated after the judges of the Circuit court had decreed they were needed. This also is in addition to a 15 per cent wage cut which the county board ordered for all county employés."

Beats Sanitary Economies.

Perhaps the nearest approach to the McDonough layoff, except where pay rolls were obviously padded for primary purposes, is that of the sanitary district. Its pay roll had 1,493 employés on Jan. 1. Two hundred were laid off during that month and 252 on April 22. This is a decrease of less than 31 per cent, as compared with McDonough's 41 per cent.

The school board claims to have reduced its pay roll $6,600,000 a year without the discharge of a single employé. This was accomplished by reducing the salaries of about 1,800 bonus teachers and limiting the working time of other employés.

The city discharged 1,440 employés on April 16 and 235 more on April 30. These 1,675 are less than 12 per cent of the employés in the departments affected. The percentage of employés reduced by the county board budget is even less, although certain departments have since laid off workers.

West Parks Lay Off 750.

The west park board is credited with discharging 750 employés last week, but that organization had a spendthrift pay roll before the primary.

Lincoln park commissioners, unlike other local governments, except the sanitary district, started paring its pay roll in 1929. This board went at this task earnestly in 1930 and again last year, with the result that it is able to lower its taxes for 1932.

Asked why he had fired so many, County Treasurer McDonough replied:

"It may look as if I have slashed unreasonably, but I haven't. There was no other way out. The reduction could not be avoided.

Says Taxes Are Too High.

"Taxes are not coming in. The people have been assessed more than they can pay. Taxes are too high. I believe they must come down, but before that there must be a reduction in expense.

"You have only half the story, so far as my office is concerned. In addition to eliminating 60 employés from the budget, cutting salaries 15 per cent and the layoff of 195, my office will have extreme difficulty in getting by on its appropriation. The expense must be cut more.

"I shall be compelled to require regular employés to take a month's vacation without pay, and beginning late in July or early in August they will have to work three hours a night overtime without even supper money. And it is probable that more employés will have to be laid off."

Compare Collections.

The treasurer said that few citizens appreciate the significance of lack of tax payments. He offered a summary of the collections to date on 1930 taxes, in comparison with the taxes levied, which follows:

	Taxes Levied.	Taxes Paid.
Railroad	$ 13,339,415	$ 8,444,561
Personal	55,492,275	20,156,105
Real estate	221,452,080	78,038,537
Totals	$290,283,770	$106,638,703

"This is a collection of only 36.73 per cent of the total taxes levied," he went on. "This is serious. Yet these taxes have been in collection for a longer period than any other levy in the last ten years. There is still $183,645,000 to collect. In addition there is outstanding $51,500,000 of 1929 real estate taxes, $19,500,000 of 1928 real estate taxes, and more than $1,500,000 of 1927 real estate taxes.

"In the tentative plans worked out the staggered employment, the payless overtime, and the enforced month's vacation without compensation will reduce the compensation of the employés retained about 27 per cent."

The city's pay roll retrenchment, which eliminates 78 days' pay for each employé, is reckoned as a pay reduction of 20.41 per cent. The school board's pay roll reduction is estimated at 15.3 per cent and the sanitary district's a little higher.

SURVEY SHOWS CERMAK SAVING IN EXPERT FEES

73% Cut Is Reported for One Month.

Mayor Cermak's retrenchment in the employment of experts, who drew millions out of the city treasury under the previous administration, was shown yesterday in comparative reports on the amounts paid to the experts during the February-March period in 1931 and in 1932. February and March, 1931, were the last two months in which expenditures were controlled by the former administration.

The reports were compiled by City Controller Szymczak and transmitted to the city council, where retrenchments in other city expenditures are under discussion. The following table shows the payments for each month and the percentage of decrease under Mayor Cermak:

February	$113,675	$30,501	73%
March	87,520	55,698	36%

The full extent of the decrease in March of this year, the controller pointed out, is not shown by the figures since some of the payments were for services rendered early last year under the previous administration. The larger payments made during February and March of this year are tabulated as follows, the asterisks indicating that part of the payments were for services last year:

Janitor Is Slain by Negro in Fight Over Lost Keys

Michael Yager, 32 years old, 5203 Calumet avenue, was killed last evening in a fight with Weyman Williams, also 32 years old, colored, 5212 Prairie avenue. Yager, janitor of the building where Williams lived, quarreled with him over the disappearance of a ring of basement keys. In the fight Yager shot the Negro three times. Williams then killed Yager by a blow on the head with a post hole digger.

CHICAGO STUDENT AT U. OF I. ARRESTED IN STOLEN CAR CRASH

Champaign, Ill., May. 1—[Special.]—Scott T. Marriner, 726 North Christiana avenue, Chicago, a tackle on the University of Illinois football squad last fall, was released from jail here tonight following an accident in which a stolen automobile figured.

SCOTT MARRINER.

His release was obtained by his father and by his brother, Les Marriner, former Illinois football star who is now a professional boxer. The case against Scott is to be settled out of court, according to reports.

The accident for which Scott Marriner was arrested occurred early this morning when a car he was driving was wrecked and burned. His companion, J. R. Gilroy, 7854 Ellis avenue, Chicago, also a student, was injured and taken to the Burnham hospital here. Marriner was only slightly hurt. Police held Marriner later on a charge of stealing an automobile.

Change Tactics

Hollywood, Cal., May 1.—(AP)—Intrinsic advantages of parenthood have become, suprisingly to many, as helpful a part of the Hollywood career as good voices were when the films went local.

Some of the brightest of stars, boastful of recent offspring, find their popularity as reflected at the box office is increased, indicating motherhood or fatherhood is anything but an impairment to art and glamour.

When Norma Shearer became a mother three years ago, some of her friends were doubtful, but it wasn't long before every one knew she had become even more alluring to fans.

Bebe Daniels and Bessie Love were next among the more notable, and then Vivian Duncan. Their popularity grew, and Miss Duncan's husband, Nils Asther, and the husband of Bebe Daniels, Ben Lyon, say they consider themselves all the better actors through the deepening influence of fatherhood.

Once Hollywood's elect kept blessed events a secret, and contracts contained penalties for parenthood, on the theory that domesticity destroyed romance.

Now Mary Astor, Helen Twelvetrees, Sue Carol and Florence Vidor make it known far in advance that they will be mothers this year.

REDUCE BIRTH RATE TO AVERT DISASTER: BISHOP

CAMBRIDGE, England, May 1.—(AP)—Dr. Ernest Barnes, bishop of Birmingham, urged restriction of the birth rate as a "Christian duty" to avert what he said were otherwise inevitable disasters in a sermon today before the heads of Cambridge university.

The bishop, a famous eugenist, contended that an enormous reduction in the death rate owing to scientific hygiene had brought a new danger of overpopulation. It was already clear, he added, that the birth rate, unless limited, would become disastrous. He said that countries "like Italy, south Ireland and Japan," which refuse to check their population, were a menace to the peace of the world.

"It is the duty of the Christian church to use all its influence to prevent a dangerous growth of population likely to lead to war," he said, "and to encourage an increase in the best stocks of every community."

He said the Catholic Church was "setting its anti-social influence against birth control," and expressed regret that other churches also were taking no active part in "the eugenic reform expectable of men who are seeking to build the city of God on earth."

WOMAN TAXICAB DRIVER REVEALED AS SOCIETY WIFE

New York, May 1.—[Special.]—A comely auburn haired woman taxicab driver of Brooklyn made an unsuccessful attempt at suicide today and was revived in Kings County hospital to unfold her tale of privation and trial in this city. She is Mrs. Gertrude De Witt, 28 years old, whose marriage nine years ago in Binghamton, N. Y., was one of the social events there, joining the families of Megardles, chain store magnates, and the fashionable De Witts of upstate New York.

Mrs. De Witt staggered into the Swedish hospital in Brooklyn early today and announced that she had taken two tablets of bichloride of mercury before she collapsed. Rushed to the Kings County hospital, she was revived before the dose became fatal.

Has Prosperous Relatives.

She revealed that she has been separated from her husband, Richard De Witt, for the last three years, and that their child, now 4 years old, was with her mother in Binghampton. The settlement made on her by her father, the late Percival Megardle, who operated an upstate chain of groceries, had melted away and the maintenance of $200 a month ordered by the court from her estranged husband had ceased more than a year ago, when he disappeared.

The young woman admitted that she had other prosperous relatives here, but said that her pride had precluded any approach to them for assistance. Instead, she undertook to drive taxicabs for a living six months ago and up to yesterday it was believed that she was happy in her occupation.

She Will Recover.

Her husband had been an efficiency industrial engineer and was at one time prominent in engineering circles in Montreal, Norwalk, Conn., and New York.

The young woman will recover, according to the doctors at the hospital.

STEALING RIDE IS FATAL.

William Brazle, 70 years old, died yesterday in the county hospital of injuries suffered when he fell beneath a Belt line freight train Friday while stealing a ride.

2,000,000 REDS MARCH BY LENIN'S TOMB ON MAY DAY

Russia Called "Protector of World Peace."

MOSCOW, May 1.—(AP)—Soviet Russia was described today as "the protector of world peace," and thereafter some two million proletarians marched by Lenin's tomb in a military May day demonstration of fidelity.

Thus the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics led the world in the celebration of the traditional day of the worker. The whole of the vast federation of republics was bedecked in flaming red banners, posters and flags, and oratory proclaimed the power of the proletariat.

War Chief Addresses Soldiers.

V. M. Voroshiloff, commissar for war and navy, formally set in motion the soviet's celebration with an address to the soldiers of the Moscow garrison.

He told the smartly attired troops that theirs was a protectorate of world peace. He decried the refusal of the world disarmament conference to accept soviet proposals for abolition of armaments. He reiterated the non aggressive aims of the Red army, and indirectly touched on the far eastern situation by declaring that "they tried to provoke us but our nerves are strong enough and we will not be foiled by these provocations."

The greatest manifestation took place in Moscow's Red square, where Joseph Stalin, secretary-general of the Communist party and virtual ruler of Russia, and other high government and party officials watched from a reviewing stand on Lenin's mausoleum, a day long parade of Red army troops, workers and peasants.

March All Day Long.

The colorful ceremony bekan at 9 a. m., when Voroshiloff received the Moscow garrison's oath of fidelity, and continued until late in the afternoon of a brilliant spring day, as rank on rank of closely packed soldiery and citizenry filed through the historic square.

After receiving the oath of fidelity the commissar tipped his sword at salute to the watchers atop the tomb of Lenin, dismounted from his magnificent sorrel horse and joined his colleagues in the reviewing stand, whence he gave the signal for two million persons to pass in review.

More than 50,000 smart troops of the western division started briskly past the stand attired in summer uniforms worn for the first time this year. As company followed company, cheer upon cheer was shouted to the leaders above, who waved acknowledgment.

This lasted three hours, and after it came thousands of workers who have waited in formation all morning. They converged into the square from three entrances and trudged slowly past the reviewing stand in ranks which stretched all the way across the huge open area. They made up in shouts, cheers and songs what they lacked in military precision.

300 Battle Planes in Air.

This was the same demonstration of former May days except that the soviet's progress with machinery was more in evidence than ever before. Nearly 300 of the nation's largest battle planes soared over the paraders, and added color was lent by the presence of Ismet Pasha, premier of Turkey, who watched the demonstration from the reviewing stand.

The dominance of the machine in the soviet's program was illustrated by the temporary opening of "Dnieprostray," a hyuro-electric plant which is one of the soviet's most ambitious projects.

Arrest Doctor on Larceny Charge Made by a Widow

Dr. Bela Szentwart, 3444 North Irving avenue, was arrested early yesterday on a charge of larceny made by Mrs. Priscilla Szaba, 4114 Arthington street, a widow. Mrs. Szaba made a date to meet the doctor on a loop corner at midnight. When he appeared she was waiting with a policeman and a warrant. She charged that he made love to her, promised to marry her, and induced her to give him $1,100. Dr. Szentwart didn't marry her and she can't get her money back, she charged. He denied the charges.

RUSSIAN EXILES OBSERVE EASTER IN NEW YORK

New York, May 1.—(AP)—Exiles of a vanished empire gathered in the Russian Orthodox Church of Christ the Savior, in East Harlem, early today to observe the Russian Easter in the way it was observed from the 15th century to the rise of the soviets. Among the congregation was a prince and princess of the house of Romanoff.

For two hours, from midnight until 2 a. m., they stood while the Rev. Vasily Kurdiumoff chanted in a deep basso voice, "The Lord Is Risen." The great choir would respond, "The Lord Is Risen," and the people would answer "He Is Risen Indeed."

As the Princess Nina entered, those near her bowed and kissed her hand. Then came Prince George, followed by the Prince Alexis Obelinsky, Princess Obelinsky, Prince Machavili, and others high in the imperialist councils.

Members of the congregation all held lighted white candles.

Mayor William B. Harrison of Louisville will speak Wednesday before the luncheon of the Association of Commerce at the Hotel La Salle. His subject will be "Municipal Government Takes the Rap."

SCHOOL ECONOMY PLAN MAY CAUSE A CLASH TODAY

The school board will meet in special session today and a clash between the old régime and the Cermak appointees is expected. Specifically the object of the meeting is to consider the resolution of Trustee William D. McJunkin.

He would have the board request Dr. George Strayer, head of the Columbia university survey, to outline the kind of a school system the board would have with an appropriation of $80,000,000, of $70,000,000, and of $60,000,000, in lieu of the $90,000,000 budget which the board has passed. This course looks toward a reduction in school expenditures.

Trustee McJunkin, President Lewis E. Myers, and Trustee Robert F. Carr voted against the $90,000,000 budget. The two new trustees, Orville J. Taylor and Ernest Buehler, appointed by Mayor Cermak last Friday, have announced they desire economy. This subject is almost certain to be drawn into the debate.

MAY DAY RIOTS DOT WORLD, BUT ONLY 3 ARE SLAIN

Violence at Lowest Ebb Since World War.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Most of the world's large cities had parades or demonstrations yesterday but May day violence apparently was at a lower ebb than it has ever been since the world war.

Only three deaths were ascribed to clashes between extremists and police, although scores were injured during skirmishes, most of which occurred in European cities.

One demonstrator was killed near Madrid, Spain, and two in the Sosnowiec, Poland, coal strike area.

Moscow led the world-wide demonstrations with a parade of about two million persons past the tomb of Nikolai Lenin, the idol of communists the world over.

North America had very little trouble. Probably the largest demonstration was in New York, where 40,000 communists braved a rainstorm to honor the workers' day.

In South America disturbances occurred only in Santiago, Chile.

No violence in Asia was attributed to May day celebrations.

Three Slain in Poland.

WARSAW, Poland, May 1.—(AP)—Two workers or sympathizers were killed in the Dombrowa coal region today when police fired into 700 May day demonstrators. Five officers were injured and three workmen were also wounded. At Stremiesyce nine policemen and two demonstrators were hurt. Warsaw was quiet.

Riots in Five Spanish Cities.

MADRID, May 1.—(AP)—One extremist was slain and scores were arrested in clashes between communists and assault guards in five cities in Spain today. The communist was slain by the civil guard at Cordoba when demonstrators fired a volley of pistol shots at the San Pedro church. Two were wounded before the throng was dispersed.

Five extremists were injured and 60 or more arrested as assault guards in Madrid broke up several demonstrations including one in the city's main square, Puerta Sol. Six policemen were wounded by stones or falling horses during charges on wet streets. The government ordered troops and police held to barracks tonight in readiness for a vaguely threatened syndicalist and communist strike tomorrow. Similar strikes are threatened in other cities.

Probably a half dozen were hurt at Bilboa in a clash between officers and extremists, while assault guards broke up several demonstrations at Barcelona. Minor clashes occurred at Seville.

15,000 Clash with Police.

HAMILTON, Ont., May 1.—(AP)—A crowd of 15,000 persons attending a communist demonstration in a park here held out against the combined forces of police and firemen for three hours before dispersing today in one of the largest May day manifestations in Ontario. Police charged the manifestants with their batons again and again and firemen played powerful streams of water on them. One woman was sent to the hospital and twelve arrests were made.

Police Fire Into Air.

SANTIAGO, Chile, May 1.—(AP)—Police converged on the Plaze de Armas in the center of the city today and broke up a demonstration of communists by firing into the air. This was the only May day disturbance in Chile as far as press dispatches reported. About 18,000 carabineers—the national guard—were on duty as an extra precaution throughout the country, and will remain mobilized tomorrow to insure order in the face of a general strike call issued by communists.

Many Hurt in Germany.

BERLIN, May 1.—(AP)—A number of persons were injured in May day disorders in Germany and 65 communists were arrested, as were also 67 National Socialists [Fascists]. Seven policemen were injured while dispersing communists at Bremen, and several were hurt in the stoning of police at Trier. The police arrested 41 communists in Berlin for singing forbidden songs, and 24 in Stuttgart as agitators. The National Socialists were arrested in Berlin when police raided their premises, finding revolvers, daggers, and bludgeons.

Attack Premier in Melbourne.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MELBOURNE, Australia, May 1.—In a May day riot here today Thomas Tunnecliffe, acting premier of Victoria, and several trades union officials were slightly injured when they were attacked by communists. May day celebrations at Sydney and other centers were marked by orderly parades.

A Flop in London.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 1.—May day was a communist flop in London. Old American melodies such as "Maryland, My Maryland," and "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," set to revolutionary words were sung in Hyde Park by 10,000 communists, who had gathered to hear speakers denounce the Japanese this afternoon. But the big event of the day fizzled.

That was the "grand march" past the Japanese embassy. The police called that off. There was a minor clash at the entrance to the park as the demonstrators left. Two thousand sympathizers hissed the police and crowded too close, so the mounties drew their truncheons. The mob fled, but several were injured by police blows. A dozen were arrested.

The demonstration was touted as the biggest since 1926, the year of the general strike. But the most overt act was a song "We'll Hang Ramsay MacDonald to a Sour Apple Tree," by a group of juvenile communists.

20,000 Parade in Mexico City.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, May 1.—The May day parade today, which had been announced as a great labor demonstration, was the tamest event in labor circles for years. Instead of from 100,000 to 200,000 participants, as was forecast, less than 20,000 turned out.

While police and soldiers were ready to keep order, there was little need for their services as the streets were less crowded than on week days and the public showed no interest in the event. One of the high lights of the parade was a delegation of peasants from the neighboring pueblos and ranches and several labor organizations with flying banners and streamers calling attention to traditional abuses worked off on labor.

No Disorders in Vienna.

VIENNA, Austria, May 1.—(AP)—Reports available in various capitals said May day was peaceful throughout southeastern Europe.

Beautiful weather in Vienna provided a brilliant background for the customary Socialist parades in this stronghold of Socialism. Although both communists and National Socialists (Nationalists) paraded in various cities of Czechoslovakia and the day was a national holiday, no disorders were reported.

In Budapest, however, police jailed 70 agitators over the week-end to avert disorders, but the populace seemed chiefly interested in the opening of the boating and bathing season. The other Balkan states forbade May day demonstrations and all were reported quiet.

Hold Parades in Cuba.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, May 1.—Defying a governmental edict, labor organizations organized an impromptu parade this morning and marched to the palace where President Gerardo Machado was conferring with more than 300 representative labor leaders of the country. The paraders were promptly halted.

Aside from minor disturbances here, Camaguey, Cienfuegos, Santa Clara and Santiago, the day was featured by the almost total inactivity of labor.

WATCHES WRISTS UNTIL HE FINDS HIS WRIST WATCH

Policeman Francis Gallagher's search for his lost wrist watch ended at exactly 4:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Gallagher, who is attached to the Sheffield avenue station, dropped the timepiece in a snowbank at Clybourn and Fullerton avenues in March while chasing a thief. The watch was a treasured keepsake.

Consequently Gallagher visited the intersection where he had lost the watch every day. A dozen or more times daily he inquired the time of passing pedestrians who wore watches resembling his own. Yesterday he halted another wrist watch wearer.

"What time is it, mister?" asked Gallagher.

"It's 4:20 o'clock," replied the man.

"That's my watch!" exclaimed Gallagher.

It was. The stranger explained he had purchased it for $3 from a youth. Gallagher reimbursed him that amount and walked away with his watch.

PERSIA TO SHOW EGG-SIZED GEM AT CHICAGO FAIR

Precious Turquoise Is on Its Way.

BY H. BASIL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TEHERAN, Persia, May 1.—A precious turquoise of the size and shape of a hen's egg and a valuable manuscript of classical Persian poems, calligraphed and illustrated in color, are now on their way to Chicago's Century of Progress exhibition.

It is surprising to Persians that the ministry of fine arts permitted the news that these treasures had left the country to be published, so highly are they valued. But the Persian government is making every effort to show its best in ancient and modern arts and rare jewelry at Chicago next year.

Seeks to Trade with U. S.

Encouragement to prospective exhibitors was given in Teheran by its leading daily newspaper, which published a four column article on the wonder city of Chicago and its exposition. The reason for Persia's keen interest is a desire to trade with the United States. But by governmental decree nothing can be imported unless articles of equal value are accepted from Persia in exchange. Foreign trade in Persia must balance.

Persia is still too poor to keep its artistic treasures as a luxury, and they are offered as barter for the modern machines so badly needed. The exporting of articles holding high antiquarian value now constitute a great asset in keeping Persia's trade balanced.

Unwilling for various reasons to follow openly the example of soviet Russia and monopolize the country's foreign trade to eliminate the soviet trading trusts with their branches scattered all over the country, the government is encouraging if not actually dictating the formation of a large export trust with a capital of $10,000,000. More than one-tenth of this sum was subscribed at the first meeting, and it is believed that the required capital will soon be ready.

Forces Out Soviet Agencies.

The move naturally does not please Moscow. For when the trust is in operation, the many Russian trading companies will be forced to close shop. Since the Persian combine will control all exports, the soviets will be compelled to make all purchases in Persia through its agency.

office will be in Teheran, and here the business will have to be done. Therefore, there will be no need for the numerous branch offices of soviet trading organizations.

The objection to the bolshevik trading posts is that they are constantly accused of spreading communist propaganda. The government has already removed many of their functions by monopolizing trade in most of the commodities which Persia buys from Russia.

WRIGHT ORDERS WAR ON VANDALS IN LINCOLN PARK

A war on vandalism in Lincoln park was started yesterday on the orders of Warren Wright, president of the park board. Mr. Wright said that ruthless destruction of property costs the board between $25,000 and $50,000 a year.

Acting on the commissioners' request, Maj. James U. Sammis, chief of the Lincoln park police, increased his force of plain clothes detectives who patrol the park. Maj. Sammis said that policemen in uniform are too easily spotted by persons bent on mischief.

The most common forms of vandalism, according to H. Otto Wegg, superintendent of the park system, are breaking windows, cutting hose, smashing benches, riding horses across grassy plots and driving automobiles onto fairways and greens of the park golf course.

ECONOMY FADES AS HOUSE FAILS TO ORDER CUTS

current. Speaker Jack Garner accuses the administration of talking for economy but covertly working against it. Administration leaders retort that Democratic no less than Republican congressmen are responsible for knocking the economy bill into a cocked hat. Chairman Joseph W. Byrns [Dem., Tenn.] of the house appropriations committee sees in the defeat of the war and navy department merger and other proposed economies the handiwork of bureaucracy's "social lobby," the influence of which has long been accounted a potent factor in legislation affecting government jobs and pay.

The 10 per cent appropriation cuts decreed by the senate have been actively opposed by the cabinet members heading the departments affected. In some quarters there is a disposition to attribute this cabinet obstruction of economy to political motives. In the year of a presidential election, when the vast federal army of pay rollers is being mobilized to elect Hoover delegates in the primaries and state conventions, any far reaching economies displacing job holders and reducing the distribution of "pork," the theory runs, might precipitate an organization revolt that could be greatly embarrassing, if not disastrous, to the President's political fortunes.

Whether the senators and representatives are yet sufficiently "economy minded" to carry out any drastic curtailment of government activities and expenditures is a question raised by the debates in both houses on the appropriation bills.

Sees "Economy Hysteria."

Because the 10 per cent appropriation reductions dictated by the senate would enforce curtailment of the bureaucracy, thereby adding to the unemployment that congress at the same time is concerned to relieve, Senator Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.] raised his voice against "economy hysteria."

"We have grown so hysterical in this time," he said, "that we are utterly unable to see the paradoxical position in which we place ourselves. We stand here upon this floor and we yap and whine about unemployment day after day, we tell of the miseries of our people, and how it is impossible for them to obtain work, what an outrageous and shameful thing it is that in a country such as ours six or eight million people are tramping the streets begging for work, and hungry, and then, sir, at the very time that we indulge in these lachrymose, eloquent appeals, we adopt a rule by which we put out on the streets a great many employés of various departments and with the people we put on the streets, swell the ranks of the unemployed.

Deal in "Idiotic Fashion."

"We are hysterical and worse. It would be infinitely better if the entire executive department could be securely confined upon the Rapidan and the entire congress lost in the woods for a period of a month, until we get our heads upon our shoulders again and our feet upon the ground. We are dealing here in paradoxical and I might almost say in idiotic fashion with appropriation bills and with human beings affected by appropriation bills."

The 10 per cent cut in the appropriation for the bureau of standards brought up the question of the justification of expending millions of the taxpayers' money on research largely for the benefit of industries which to the extent that the government finances such activities are spared such expense and thereby receive what is tantamount to a subsidy.

Senator Simeon D. Fess [Rep., O.] was full of enthusiasm for this form of federal aid to industry and dubbed the 10 per cent reduction "false economy."

"It has just come to my attention," he said, "that one of these research men has been for some time attempting to ascertain the secret of the light from the firefly, making the statement that that is the most perfect light with the least expenditure of energy that is known. Science seems to be led to believe that there is a possibility of finding the secret, and if it should be found, think of the revolution which would be made in the creation of light for utility purposes to say nothing about any other direction in which it might be used."

Urges U. S. Accept Silver in Foreign Debt Payments

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 1.—[Special.]—The latest project of the silver mining states to boost the price of silver is a joint resolution which Senator Carl Hayden [Dem., Ariz.] will offer in the senate tomorrow.

Senator Hayden's resolution would authorize the President up to July 1, 1936, to accept silver in payment of debts owing the United States by foreign governments. Silver would be accepted at the rate of one and one-half ounces for each dollar of indebtedness discharged, provided the debtor nations agree to not melt or debase their own coins to obtain silver for debt payments.

As a further inducement to debtor nations, the resolution stipulates that when a government satisfies the President it will restore all of its silver coinage to a fineness of at least nine-tenths silver, or shall otherwise increase the use of silver for coinage purposes the President may accept silver payments from such government at the rate of one ounce of silver for each dollar of indebtedness. The silver so received by the United States shall be coined into standard silver dollars and deposited in the treasury, and silver certificates issued against the silver coinage.

Sees Buying Power Gain.

"The primary object of this legislation," said Senator Hayden, "is to bring the world-wide vicious circle of declining prices to an end by enhancing the purchasing power of nearly one-half of the people of the world who have no other money than silver. This is to be accomplished by creating a demand for silver during the next four years, which will insure an increase in its value. The demand will arise from continual purchases of silver from the various foreign governments who will find it to their financial advantage to contract for silver in the open market in order to make payments on their indebtedness to the in that metal instead of gold."

Recalling that silver is now selling for less than 30 cents an ounce, the senator contends that if the price can be restored to its pre-war level of about 60 cents as a result of regular and sustained buying by foreign governments, the inevitable result would be creation of a market for raw materials and manufactured commodities in all countries such as Mexico, China, and India where silver is the standard of value. Any apparent loss which might be sustained by the United States, he believes, would be offset by a gain in revenues resulting from improved foreign trade.

Points Out Safeguards.

His resolution, the senator declares, safeguards against the possibility of foreign nations dumping their silver coin on the United States and ceasing thereafter to be users of silver money, yet holds out special inducements to those governments which will restore their silver coinage to a uniformly established degree of fineness.

It has been estimated, says Senator Hayden, that since 1920 European nations and their colonies, dominions and dependencies, have sold about 375 million ounces of silver derived from the demonetization or debasement of silver coins.

Of that amount about 200 million ounces were marketed by governments now indebted to the U. S. and over 100 million ounces by the British government for India. "It was these sales," he said, "which did more than anything else to cut the market price of silver in half."

BRITAIN HAS NEW BIG MYSTERY GUN; MOVES LIKE TANK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 1.—Mysterious mobile artillery tested recently at various points on the coast is reported to have left British gunners more than satisfied. The new gun has wandered almost all over the island, leaving telling target records behind.

The caliber of the new weapon is being kept secret. It is 33 feet long and is mounted on a tractor which looks like a cross between a tank and a submarine. On firing it sinks back again into its quaint mobile bed.

During the night this gun has been taken from point to point, and has hurled its projectiles from well inland at targets in the North sea and in the channel 20 miles away.

WIFE OF MASSIE READY TO FACE HER ATTACKERS

Will Testify at Retrial of Rape Case.

HONOLULU, May 1.—(AP)—Robert Bell of New York gave assurance today that Mrs. Thalia Massie, his niece and the wife of the convicted "honor" slayer of Joseph Kahahawai, will testify at the retrial of four Hawaiians charged with assaulting her last Sept. 12.

ROBERT BELL. [Acme Photo.]

Bell is the brother of Mrs. Granville C. Fortescue, who with her son-in-law, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U. S. N., and two naval enlisted men, was convicted Friday of killing Kahahawai in revenge for the attack.

It had been reported that Mrs. Massie, because of the attitude of John C. Kelley, prosecutor who obtained the convictions, would resist reappearing in the rape case, but Bell said today she had consented.

Accused Keep Out of Sight.

The first trial of the case resulted in a divided jury.

During the first trial, which began Nov. 18 and lasted three weeks, Mrs. Massie's name was withheld by all Hawaiian newspapers except a Honolulu Japanese daily, which carried the story in full in both its English and Japanese sections.

The alleged assailants of Mrs. Massie, who have been free on bond, spent part of the time in jail for safekeeping and, since Friday's verdict, have remained out of sight in their homes under police protection.

A conference will be held tomorrow between representatives of the attorney general's office and the public prosecutor to fix a date for the beginning of the new trial. Deputy Attorney General Harold Kay said it might start within a fortnight.

Kelley on the Fence.

The conference also was expected to determine whether Kelley, who obtained Friday's convictions by his vigorous prosecution, would conduct the territory's case in the assault retrial. Kelley declined today to say whether he would handle the retrial.

Navy officials held that Kelley's conduct in the murder case, should remove him from the prosecution of the Hawaiians.

Kelley said new evidence has been found since the jury did not agree. He said the territory has an "infinitely stronger" case than during the former trial.

Sentiment concerning the rape trial, as well as the murder hearing, is widely varied. It ranges from the feeling of those who with an eye on official Washington, urge a conviction to offset mainland criticism of the Fortescue and Massie verdict, to those who express the belief a conviction would reflect on the justice of a verdict of guilty in the murder trial.

Defendants "Bearing Up Well."

Meanwhile, the defendants, though shocked, are "bearing up under it wonderfully well," Bell said. "We all were tremendously surprised. We didn't see how there could be a conviction."

Bell and his sister, Mrs. Helen Ripley, represented the defendants at a conference of attorneys after the verdict Friday. A long meeting was held at Pearl Harbor, attended by Clarence Darrow, chief of defense counsel, and George S. Leisure, his associate, principally, it was said, to reassure the defendants.

Montgomery Winn, assistant defense counsel, said today there was little to do now except wait until sentence is pronounced on Friday, after which a motion for a new trial will be filed. Winn said the motion for a new trial will not be argued Friday, but at a later date to be fixed by Judge Charles S. Davis, who heard the case.

Darrow, who appeared almost numbed by the shock of the verdict, seemed in better spirits today and planned a motor car ride with friends.

Honolulu spent a quiet Saturday night, and the lack of activity was accentuated by a heavy rain which fell nearly all night. Patrol cars maintained steady beats without incident.

Blue Eyed Baby, 8 Hours Old, Found by Watchman

A healthy blue eyed baby boy less than eight hours old was found abandoned on the porch of a building at 2501 West Monroe street early yesterday by William Hatch, a watchman, who called the Warren avenue police, and the baby was taken to the county hospital. The child weighs 6 pounds 7½ ounces.

CANOE UPSET; 2 WEST POINT CADETS MISSING

West Point, N. Y., May 1.—(AP)—Two second year cadets of the United States military academy were missing tonight following discovery of their overturned canoe in the Hudson river. The students are Alan J. Light, son of Samuel K. Light of Washington, D. C., and Leo A. Skeim, whose nearest relative is listed as Mrs. Russell Needham, Valley City, N. D.

The cadets set out in a heavy Ponson canoe yesterday and were last seen near Bannerman's island, north of the academy, headed toward Storm King mountain. A strong wind was whipping the river.

Their canoe was discovered drifting upside down near Newburgh early today. Word of the discovery did not reach the military academy until this afternoon, more than twenty-four hours after the cadets set out on the river.

West Point officers went to the scene immediately and identified the canoe. It had been pulled ashore 2 miles north of the Newburgh Yacht club.

An army amphibian plane, piloted by Lieut. J. M. Weikert, cruised up and down from Bannerman's island northward while canoe squads manned by fellow cadets explored the river edges and land patrols scouted along both banks in search of the missing youths.

Both Light and Skeim were qualified swimmers.

DENTIST AND WIFE ROBBED.

A young bandit who waited for them to place their automobile in their garage held up Dr. Harry M. Harnick, 4130 North Lawler avenue, a dentist, and Mrs. Harnick early yesterday. He took jewelry valued at $2,150 from Mrs. Harnick and $35 from the dentist.

Must Rest Eyes

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 1.—Ordered again to take three hours of complete rest daily, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald returned from Geneva today, loud in his assertions that the disarmament conference must succeed. He declared that he is going back to renew discussions as soon as French Premier Andre Tardieu's health permits.

The prime minister was reëxamined by the eye specialist who has been treating him since his operation on his arrival.

He declared that the question of France and Italy entering the London naval pact is the acid test of the conference. He admitted that economic questions entered the Geneva session, "although they are not part of the conference."

Inquest Today Into Killing of Youth by Policeman

An inquest will be held this morning at the county morgue into the death of Joseph Thac, 24 years old, 10802 Buffalo avenue, who was shot and killed early yesterday by a policeman when he caused a disturbance at a dance given by the Kewanee Athletic club in the East Side Turner hall, 108th street and Green Bay avenue. Thac, with his brother, Steve, 22 years old, had invaded the dance hall and were ejected by Policeman John Crum of the east side station. Both men seized the policeman's club and started to beat him. Crum shot the elder brother twice in the chest and seized Steve.

CITY'S WONDERS THRILLING ALICE IN WONDERLAND

Surprising as a Rabbit with a Waistcoat.

New York, May 1.—[Special.]—Alice in Wonderland stood before a microphone in her suite in the Waldorf-Astoria today and described for the big and little children of America a tiny bit of the immortal topsy turvy land down a rabbit's hole and through a looking glass.

The white rabbit with the pink eyes, who "actually took a watch out of its waistcoat pocket" peered over her shoulder, and muttered once again: "Dear, dear! I shall be too late!"; the Cheshire cat grinned monotonously at the miraculous steel disc, and the walrus spoke, as it always has, of many things, "of shoes and ships and sealing wax, of cabbages and kings." And Lewis Carroll himself spoke into the microphone in words written long ago, when Alice read three Carroll letters and a rhyme, believed to have been hitherto unpublished.

And Mrs. Reginald Liddle Hargreaves of Lyndhurst, England, who 70 years ago as a demure 10 year old was the inspiration for Lewis Carroll's whimsical creations, seemed almost as excited with her newest adventures in the wonderland of New York as she was in 1862 when Pastor Dodgson, an Oxford don, spun for her amusement his imperishable nonsense.

Probably because of her lifetime of association with the Mad Hatter, Father William and the sanguinary queen, who insisted: "Off with their heads!" Mrs. Hargreaves has become accustomed to the elfish tricks one is likely to encounter in looking-glass land, but the express elevators of the tallest building in the world and the rumble of Fifth avenue traffic can still give her a thrill despite her gray hair and her 80 years, lacking two days.

Her Voice Trembles.

The pace of New York seemed to have tired her and her voice trembled, what with the fatigue and the excitement of it as she faced the little quivering disc that 70 years ago would have been as much of a miracle as a rabbit with a waistcoat pocket.

"My coming here," she said, after her son, Capt. Caryl Hargreaves, formerly of the Scots Guards, had introduced her, "is an adventure overseas instead of underground.

"America and New York City are such exciting places that to visit them takes me back to wonderland."

Her voice wavered as it sped out over the radio network to thousands of eager ears.

"I am beginning to think that when Lewis Carroll described the 'tumble down the rabbit hole' he visualized in a prophetic manner going down the Empire State building.

Elevators Thrill Her.

"Express elevators don't give me much time to take things off the shelves, however," she added.

Her voice trembled again.

"If the children expect to see a girl like me—I mean a young girl such as I was, like the one in the books—I am afraid they will be disappointed. After all, if they had seen me in the boat in 1862, they would probably have thought my sisters and I were just like other children. Then, if they hesitated a minute, they might have noticed the kind looking person who was stroking the oar, and if they had stopped to listen to what he was saying, they might have looked at us again, wondering whether we were quite ordinary children going down rabbit holes and having tea with the doormouse."

Mayor Metcalf of Omaha Passes Through Chicago

Mayor L. R. Metcalf of Omaha, Neb., passed through Chicago yesterday en route to Washington, D. C., with a party of five friends. He arrived at 9:35 a. m. on the Burlington and left at noon on the Pennsylvania railroad.

STIMSON MOTORS TO FRENCH CITY ON WAY HOME

GRENOBLE, France, May 1.—(AP)—Henry L. Stimson, American secretary of state, and his party arived by automobile tonight from Geneva and will leave for Cannes tomorrow morning. They will embark on Wednesday for the United States.

Mr. Stimson decided last week to go home after he twice was unsuccessful in an effort to break deadlocks affecting two important problems at Geneva, Franco-German relations and the Franco-American disarmament impasse.

Premier Andre Tardieu of France was unable to come for either of the two conferences arranged to discuss these problems.

HUNGRY MONKEYS LOOT ORCHARDS IN SOUTH AFRICA

EAST LONDON, Union of South Africa, May 1.—(AP)—Troops of starving baboons and monkeys, driven from their feeding grounds by the march of civilization are wreaking havoc on orchards and farms of the eastern province.

Pineapple and banana fields have been stripped and many acres of maize and kaffir corn laid bare. The baboons and monkeys formerly made their homes in the thick wild brush along the coast. This has been cleared away for agricultural purposes and the Simians have been driven inland.

The beasts sometimes shower stones on automobiles as they pass along the roads.

"How Long Has This Been Going On?"

say many men when they see our new ready-to-wear suits

They are men who formerly have worn only custom-tailored clothes, and have not been aware of the tremendous strides taken by the ready-to-wear clothing industry. They are astonished to find refinements in style and workmanship and selection of fabrics that they thought could be had only in made-to-order suits.

We have been making and selling well fitting clothes for such a long time that it's no longer news to us. Perhaps we've been too casual about it all. The remarks we hear daily lead us to believe that we have.

To men who have always worn custom clothes, but who would like a suit that fills the bill in every respect, at a much lower price, we recommend our Calvin model, shown above, in choice materials and best of ready-to-wear workmanship.

4 INVESTIGATE THE G-E YEAR SERVICE PLAN

Before You Buy Your Refrigerator

The Mechanism of Any Refrigerator is More Important to You than the Price Tag

LET'S GET DOWN TO THE FACTS on modern refrigeration. It is misleading to focus all attention on incidental features . . . or on the price tag only. The mechanism is your most important consideration in the selection of a refrigerator. When it fails, service and repair bills commence. Continuous service charges on a "cheap" refrigerator can eat up the very savings modern refrigeration makes.

General Electric's 4-Year Service Plan protects every new buyer against any failure of the famous Monitor Top mechanism for four full years!

General Electric spent fifteen years perfecting a mechanism that would give uninterrupted, economical service.

Today, the G-E Monitor Top is the only refrigerator mechanism entirely sealed-in-steel. Belts that can stretch and break, fans that can get out of order, shaft seals or stuffing boxes that can leak, are all eliminated. Only the G-E gives you the benefit of natural air cooling.

The G-E mechanism requires no attention . . . not even oiling. It is the cleanest, most simple and efficient refrigerating mechanism ever developed. Its four year record in more than a million and a quarter homes is unparalleled in refrigeration history.

Don't confuse lowest price with lowest cost . . . probably the most expensive refrigerator you could buy would carry the lowest price tag. Look ahead six months . . a year . . five years! Buy a General Electric and you buy but once.

As little as $10 delivers a full-sized General Electric to your home tomorrow. Its savings start at once and continue through the years. And, it's as easy to buy as the cheapest.

HAYMARKET RIOT VETS AGAIN HEAR A MAY DAY CALL

Strange Contrast Staged at Des Plaines Station.

May day, the date selected by communists and other radicals for their annual demonstration, presented a contrast yesterday.

CAPT. JOHN STEGE.

Upstairs in the old Des Plaines street police station 11 veterans of the Haymarket riots of 46 years ago were meeting to commemorate that occasion, when anarchists tossed a bomb in their midst, killing eight and wounding 70.

Downstairs, Capt. John P. Stege and Lieut. James Flynn were sending out a detail of police on exactly the same mission as that of 46 years ago—to preserve order while the present day anarchists held an open air meeting, paraded around the Haymarket section and then on to Ashland auditorium for the "United Front May Day Conference."

Send Their Best Wishes.

The "boys upstairs" sent their best wishes to the "boys in blue downstairs" and wished them luck as in their day's work. Out marched the detail under the command of Capt. Stege who said that although he was prepared for any emergency he expected no trouble. He said the present day communist carries a banner instead of a bomb.

The Haymarket veterans went on with their meeting which was called to plan for the dinner to be tendered them at the Midwest Athletic club on Wednesday, May 4. The Haymarket bomb was tossed on May 4, 1886.

Only 15 who answered that riot call are alive today. The eleven who attended yesterday's meeting were Capt. Frank P. Tyrrell, president of the association; Jeremiah A. Kennedy, Andrew O'Day, Solomon C. Steele, John Sisk, Hugh McNeill, George W. Roycroft, John Kinsella, Edward J. Hanley, Thomas Meany, and Freeman Steele.

Mayor Cermak, Judge Henry Horner, State's Attorney Swanson, Judge Kickham Scanlan and Deputy Police Commissioner John Alcock are expected to attend the Haymarket Riot Veterans dinner. The West Side Kiwanis club, assisted by the Kiwanis clubs of the city, is sponsoring the gathering.

No Disorder During Parade.

Yesterday's parade was carried out without disorder. The communists left their automobiles near the place of assembly, Ogden avenue and Randolph street, picked up their banners, and began the procession. They marched around a square mile and then filed into Ashland auditorium to hear the program of speeches.

Three women and two men were arrested by Melrose Park police yesterday when 300 persons staged a demonstration in that suburb. The entire Melrose Park police force of 14 men and 10 special police, all under the direction of Chief Arthur Leeseberg, were on duty during the day. Those arrested, police said, were distributing communisitic literature.

Meanwhile two loyalty demonstrations were staged by Polish-American citizens. One was at Pulaski hall, 1715 South Ashland avenue, where the Washington bi-centennial and the adoption of the May constitution of the Polish republic were observed. The other was at Polish Turner hall, Ashland avenue and Tell place, where an American flag was presented by Anthony Czarnecki, United States collector of customs, to the women's auxiliary of the Polish Legion of American Veterans. Among the speakers at the meetings were the Rev. Casimir Gronkowski, Stanislas Kustra, Benjamin Knapczyk, Emily A. Napieralski, Capt. Stanislaus Gnaster, L. Lipaczynaski, Polish vice consul, and Mrs. Francis Wozak.

AUTO INJURES 2 WOMEN LEAVING CHURCH SERVICE

5 Traffic Deaths Listed in Day.

Two women who had just left services at the Moody Bible institute, La Salle street and Chicago avenue, were knocked down by an automobile last night as they stepped off a safety island.

One of the women, Mrs. Hannah Sorenson, 62 years old, 4417 North Paulina street, was taken to the Henrotin Memorial hospital in a serious condition. The other victim, Mrs. Emilia Carlson, 57, of 7015 South Morgan street, was taken to the Augustana hospital. Police exonerated Arthur Matheson, 1039 North La Salle street, the auto driver. He was driving north in La Salle street at the time of the accident.

Five deaths from automobile accidents yesterday increased the Cook county motor toll to 367 for the year. The victims:

William Kimble, 21 years old, 5410 Lake Park avenue, a railroad mail handler. Killed when he was caught between two lanes of fast traffic in the outer drive at 56th street. A northbound sedan hit him, and continued on.

William Piasinski, 10 years old, 1226 North Artesian avenue. Fatally injured in front of his home by an automobile driven by Stanley Jameson, 1416 North Springfield avenue.

George E. Pratt, 75 years old, 7210 Lowe avenue. Killed by an automobile as he alighted from a street car at 111th street and Fairfield avenue. Police arrested Charles Daninez, 1836 West 21st place, the driver. They charge he passed a standing street car.

Bernard Smith, 19 years old, 10114 Indiana avenue. Died in St. Bernard's hospital of injuries received when a car in which he was riding struck the support of a viaduct in State street near 63d street.

Walter Ligas, 17 years old, 2245 South Irving avenue. Died in the county hospital of injuries received Saturday when he fell from a truck on which he had "hitched" a ride.

Several hours after his car had struck a girl and he had driven away, Philip Bonadona, 24, of 1364 Mohawk street, surrendered to police. He pleaded that he became frightened over the accident. The girl, Reta Radke, 7, of 4241 Kenmore avenue, was hit in front of her home, and is in a serious condition at the Lake View hospital.

Operate on Cobra's Eye to Aid It in Shedding

New York, May 1.—[Special.]—The fourteen foot cobra in the Bronx zoo underwent a successful operation on its right eye today to aid it in shedding its skin. In recent sheddings the snake's skin would not come off the eye cap. Today the serpent was maneuvered onto a specially devised table and held motionless. Then Dr. Raymond Ditmars, the curator, cut away the superfluous eye cap. The snake wriggled back into its cage and looked very pleased.

ONLY MEALTIME RECORD CLAIMED FOR GOVERNORS

Los Angeles, Cal., May 1.—(AP)—The west's flying governors, James Rolph Jr. of California and Fred B. Balzar of Nevada, were like two boys after a particularly exciting lark as they took off for Sacramento at 1 p. m. today, following a transcontinental hop.

They didn't break a time record when they flew from the national capital to Los Angeles in 23 hours of elapsed time yesterday, and today they joined their pilot, Roscoe Turner, in denying that they even tried. But they did something no governor or brace of governors has ever done before.

At the airport at Burbank around midnight last night a large throng frowned uneasily as the scheduled time for the arrival of the governors' plane arrived and passed. But at 12:15 the east throbbed with an airplane's motors, a moment later the riding lights gleamed far above, and at 12:20 the ship taxied up the runway. The governors shook hands with Pilot Turner as the latter started for a microphone to announce they had made the final leg from Winslow, Ariz., in less than three hours, and that for the first time in history governors were able to eat breakfast in Washington and dinner on the west coast.

MYSTERY VEILS DEATH OF YOUTH IN POLICE CHASE

Mystery surrounded the fatal shooting early yesterday of George Henderson, 26 years old, a jobless Joliet electrician, who was killed in the seat of his automobile when he smashed it up in fleeing from two Elmhurst motorcycle policemen. Police said he committed suicide.

Henderson, who was employed until a few weeks ago in the Joliet plant of the Illinois Steel company, drove to Chicago Saturday with Ernest Boutet, 603 Collins street, Joliet. Henderson had been living with Boutet and they had come to Chicago to buy some supplies for some electrical work in the Boutet home, according to members of the Boutet family.

Stopped by Elmhurst Police.

They were stopped at 3 o'clock yesterday morning by Policemen Samuel Wharton and Ralph Robbins on St. Charles road in Elmhurst. The police searched Henderson and Boutet and found no weapons. Then they ordered Henderson to drive behind them to the Elmhurst police station, intending to lock the pair up as suspicious characters.

The police turned a corner and Henderson turned in the opposite direction in an attempt to escape. In his flight, he drove from a dead-end street onto the tracks of the Great Western railroad and wrecked the auto. The policemen said that they found him dead in the front seat, a bullet through his head and a pistol in his hand, when they reached the scene a moment after the crash.

Find Abandoned Liquor.

Boutet attempted to escape on foot, but was arrested. He was too intoxicated to be questioned, police said. Wharton and Robbins found a suitcase, containing two quarts of moonshine, which they said was thrown from the car during the chase.

Boutet was locked up in the Du Page county jail at Wheaton. An inquest will be held today into the death of Henderson. Joliet police said that neither man had a record, and that as far as they knew both were respectable citizens. Boutet's daughter, Yvette, told them that Henderson had a revolver which he sometimes carried in his car.

Police Chief Walter Pflaume of Elmhurst advanced the theory that Henderson, worried by the loss of his job and crazed by moonshine, may have taken his life in a fit of temporary insanity.

Moline Puts Firemen and Police on Half Time Duty

Moline, Ill., May 1.—[Special.]—City police and firemen went on half time duty today as a result of the city council's decision to reduce the pay roll $13,000 in the next year. City employes and their superiors have worked out a system of part time employment to avoid dismissals.

MARSHALL FIELD & COMPANY

FOR A WEEK-END MOTOR TRIP RUN DOWN TO CAIRO

396 Mile Route Bisects Illinois.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cairo, Ill., May 1.—[Special.]—The drive from Chicago to this picturesque old town at the conflux of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers is a week-end tour recommended by the Illinois Chamber of Commerce in a campaign with the slogan "See Illinois First." The campaign has the altruistic purpose of encouraging automobile owners to know their own state and the commercial purpose of stimulating the tourist trade, which has become a two billion dollar a year industry.

Start Over Route 4.

The preferred route leaves Chicago over Ill. 4, passing the big factories in the southwest side of the city and the many smokestacks of Joliet's steel mills. Continuing southwest, the highway goes through Dwight, where the Keeley institute is treating more alcoholics since prohibition, and through Pontiac, where the population of the state's reformatory has increased under Volsteadism.

At Bloomington, the U. S. 51 and Ill. 2 markers are picked up and followed for the rest of the way to Cairo. There are broad acres where farmers are cultivating the crop surplus.

Through Decatur and Pana the route crosses the National Old Trail at Vandalia, the first capital of Illinois. In the town square is the old capitol, where a young legislator from New Salem, Abraham Lincoln, once jumped from a window, according to a popular story, to destroy a quorum of the general assembly that had been locked up by the sergeant-at-arms. Vandalia was the western terminus of the National Old Trail as authorized by an act of congress signed by President Jefferson.

Into Near Mountains.

Continuing south, through the coal mining centers of Centralia, Duquoin, and Carbondale, the pavement swings into hills sometimes called the Ozarks of Illinois. From the tops of grades there are vistas as in mountainous country, panoramas of broad valleys and green bluffs. The trees are in leaf.

The pavement enters Cairo on an old flood levee through about five miles of lowlands on this narrow tip of southern Illinois between the Mississippi and Ohio rivers. This was the road used by Gen. U. S. Grant while encamped at Cairo preparatory to his Kentucky and Tennessee campaign.

QUAKE ROCKS FRENCH RIVIERA

An earthquake early yesterday rocked the French pleasure resorts on the Mediterranean coast and spread panic throughout the district. An accurate estimate of the damage has not yet been received. The tremors were felt at Nice, Cannes, Monte Carlo, Avignon and Aix. Terrified thousands hurried to the streets in night dress in many places.

FRENCH RIVIERA PANIC STRICKEN BY EARTHQUAKE

Pleasure Coast Rocked by Tremors.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MARSEILLES, France, May 1. — The most violent earthquake recorded hereabouts since 1912 jarred hundreds of thousands of terrified sleepers out of their beds early today in towns up and down the Rhone valley and along the Riviera.

As far as is known, no lives were lost and the material damage to property was negligible, but panic was widespread. The shock, which lasted four minutes, was distinctly felt here a little after 3 a. m. Floors shook, walls creaked and picture frames danced erratically.

Earth Rumbles.

At Nice, Cannes, and small resorts along the pleasure coast the shock was felt much harder. A series of jars, accompanied by an ominous subterranean rumbling, brought terrified families scrambling into the streets in night dress. Furniture moved about and even the walls of buildings could plainly be seen to sway. A torrential downpour accompanied the phenomena.

Even on the aloof Cape of Monaco, where Monte Carlo is situated, the quake was noticeable. The last straggler around the gambling tables of the sporting club was alarmed to see cards slide off the decks as if pushed by an invisible hand.

Early reports from Avignon, for several centuries the seat of the French popes, state that some damage was caused. Antiquarians were worried for fear that the medieval walls of the town's world famous papal palace and the remnants of the bridge where light hearted Provencals used to dance, may be undermined by the shocks. Efforts to obtain an accurate account of the damage still are unavailing.

Scenes of Horror.

At Aix en Provence, once the Roman capital, the shocks are said also to have been felt violently. Scenes of horror occurred at Pierrefeu as a panic broke out in the lunatic asylum.

According to the observatory here, the epicenter of the quake should be about ninety miles from Marseilles, either to the northwest or southeast out to sea. This, however, does not coincide well with reports that the tremors were felt with increasing violence down the Mediterranean coast toward the Italian frontier.

West Indies Feel Tremor.

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao, Dutch West Indies, May 1.—(AP)—Five light earth tremors were felt here today. There was no damage. The disturbances came in the early hours.

Dr. Frank Norris, Texas Minister, Preaches Here

Dr. J. Frank Norris of Fort Worth, Tex., arrived in Chicago yesterday on the Santa Fe to fill an engagement at the Chicago Gospel tabernacle, 825 Barry avenue. He preached three sermons at the tabernacle yesterday. Dr. Norris, who is pastor of the First Baptist church of Fort Worth, was acquitted by a jury in Austin, Tex., several years ago of the murder of D. E. Chippa, wealthy Fort Worth lumberman.

ELDERLY COUPLE, WITH DAUGHTER, ARE FOUND SLAIN

Quincy, Mass., May 1.—(AP)—Three persons were found shot to death today in the home of Edward W. Dutton here. They were Mr. Dutton, 68 years old; his wife, Mrs. Ida May Dutton, 62, and his stepdaughter, Mrs. Willington Bartell, 38, divorcee.

An old-fashioned revolver containing five loaded cartridges and one discharged cartridge was found in Dutton's hand. Dr. Frederick E. Jones, medical examiner, said he inclined to the opinion it was a case of double murder and suicide. But both he and the police were puzzled by their failure to find any discharged cartridges in addition to that in the revolver.

The authorities began a search for Willington Bartell, divorced husband of the younger woman, for questioning in the hope he might shed some light on the case. Bartell was last reported to be living in East Boston.

Duncan Renaldo, Actor, to Fight Alien Charge Today

Los Angeles, Cal., May 1.—(AP)—Duncan Renaldo, film actor under indictment for making a false affidavit regarding his birthplace, is to appear in the United States District court here tomorrow in an attempt to prove himself an American citizen.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE MASSIE VERDICT.

The Massie verdict was the one least expected and the one the country was the least prepared to accept. The alternative had seemed to be a disagreement or acquittal. Disagreement might have been inherent in a jury composed of mixed breeds and nationalities when the question was so charged with the imponderables of race. What actually comes of the trial is an island verdict, a verdict of the possessions against the possessor, given regardless of the strains of blood represented in the jury box. That is something for serious consideration in connection with the future government of the islands.

Kelley, the prosecuting attorney, white and American, attacked the navy. He is a product of native politics. Cristy, the judge to whom the indictments were returned, from whose court the trial was removed for cause, is also affected by native politics. It was in his court that the prosecution failed of conviction in the rape case. The prosecution could not get a verdict when five natives or breeds were brought to trial for a crime which is as abhorrent to Americans as murder, which is more abhorrent when committed as these gangsters committed it than is the crime of murder in passion.

It might be said—and apologists will say it—that the verdict, guilty of manslaughter, was legally unescapable. The Hawaiian rapist was killed, whether the injured husband and mother and the two sailors planned to kill him or not. But legal justice requires some different precedents than those of this case. It must not be a singular instance in the record of the courts, but the unexceptional rule. It cannot have a background of miscarriage of justice with political connivance. The theory of law must deplore private justice. It is passionate and erring, but it cannot in all cases be written out of the probabilities of the American people and the point cannot be ignored that in the law of English speaking peoples private justice has deeper roots than the king's. It preceded the justice of the commonwealth.

The defendants in the Massie case had waited for the law of the islands to take its course. The wife, the husband and the mother subjected themselves to the necessary torments involved in the prosecution of the five men who had raped the woman and seriously injured her, breaking her jaw in their brutality. The jury refused to convict and the Hawaiian community not only accepted this verdict quite calmly but proceeded to slander the victim.

The Hawaiian community is not large, comparatively, for the handling of police cases, but the police were either indifferent or worthless. The Americans who had suffered from an unspeakable crime found that under the island government the law was prepared to forget it and ignore them. They then undertook private justice because they could not submit to injustice. Thereupon the island law, having been indifferent, became vindictive. Regret that navy men had to take justice in their own hands must begin with regret that the law, the government and the political conditions of a possession of the United States are such as to make extralegal justice necessary. The alternative was that rape by gangs should be regarded as of small consequence. One-half of the judicial, police and prosecuting zeal which was expended against the defendants in the manslaughter case might have satisfied justice in the rape case.

It may be noted that in accordance with an undesirable theory of defense in American courts the navy lieutenant had to be regarded as temporarily insane before his lawyers thought he could face twelve men with the confession that he had shot the legally immune ravisher of his wife. Instead of a fake insanity the true defense was that there had been corruption of law.

Native moralities are said to be different from the American code which makes the inviolability of woman the essential of civilization, but native moralities are not the foundation of law in Hawaii and they do not explain the attitude of the white officials of government there. That explanation may be sought in politics. The greatest degradation of political action will be found when persons of a supposedly superior race obtain their place by the suffrage of people they would regard, outside of questions of their own political advantage, as their inferiors. When the officials of a governing class seek advantage by propitiating the people of simpler or lesser breeds government becomes contemptible. That apparently is the situation in Hawaii.

It would be disastrous in any possession, but Hawaii is the outpost of the United States. It is the Pacific naval base and the western protection of the American frontier. In this all important naval base politics directed by American officials has produced an anti-navy spirit to satisfy native voters and the thing is intolerable. A white prosecutor in a criminal trial lines up not only the natives but island minded whites against the defense forces of the United States. He appeals to prejudice against admirals and sailors to send a naval lieutenant to jail because the naval lieutenant was forced by island injustice to punish a crime with his own pistol.

The navy is in Hawaii because it must be. The men of the navy are there because they are sent by the government. Their wives apparently are there at their own risk.

The Massie case in all its particulars, inclusive of the original crime and of the verdict against the navy defendants, disclosing the conditions now revealed, requires a reorganization of the government of the islands. The present one is a failure and a peril.

MORE FARM BOARD SQUANDERING.

The farm board has made a formal request to congress for another hundred million dollars. The money is intended "to finance the foreign sale of the farm board's surplus wheat and cotton."

The dispatches do not report that Chairman Stone of the farm board was kicked out of the committee room amid the jeers of the senators, and it is therefore improbable that his request was met in the fashion which it deserved. The failure of the senators to do their plain duty in the premises testifies either to their exaggerated sense of politeness or to arrested mental development.

The taxpayers have already thrown away half a billion dollars on the farm board. Congressmen may be forgiven for failing to anticipate the unsoundness of the stabilization scheme. A lot of reasonably intelligent people made that mistake. But there can be no excuse for inability to see the failure of the plan after it has been given a fair trial and after its weaknesses have been exposed.

The hundred million which is to be tossed after the half billion is intended to be "loaned" to foreign consumers of American wheat and cotton. They cannot buy now, it is said, because they haven't the money, and bankers won't lend it to them. The United States government, which has been unable to collect its debts from abroad, is to step in, however, and feed and clothe foreigners at the expense of American taxpayers. The loans are to run for several years—how many is not specified—and are to be repaid years after the wheat has been eaten and the cotton cloth is reduced to rags.

The allied powers say they cannot repay the war loans which preserved their national existences. Can any man in his senses suppose that they will show any greater regard for debts to the farm board? The moment collection is demanded the cry will be raised that America lent the money for its own purposes and therefore the debt is not one which needs to be acknowledged.

Not the least extraordinary aspect of the matter is that the wheat and cotton are intended for sale to Holland, France, and Belgium, three nations which have been drawing gold out of the United States at an unprecedented rate. These are the nations which can't pay cash for the bread they must have to live and the clothes they must have to hide their nakedness; no one can pay.

What the farm board really wants to do, of course, is not to finance the sale of its holdings to these nations at present prices, but to dump American wheat and cotton abroad in the belief that if the elevators and warehouses here are emptied prices will improve. The only certain result of the dumping operation would be the addition of a hundred million dollars to the load which the American taxpayers are carrying. The taxpayers are invited to sell wheat and cotton below the market price, and, as if that were not enough, to lend the purchase money to nations which are preëminently solvent, but probably wouldn't repay.

And Mr. Stone got out of the room alive and not even scratched.

TWO DRY, FORTY-SIX WET.

The final tabulation of the poll of the Literary Digest shows forty-six states opposed to the continuance of national prohibition and only two in favor of it. Kansas and North Carolina alone of the dry states are satisfied with conditions under Volstead and in each state the majority was one of a few votes.

The acceleration of the movement of opinion against the eighteenth amendment in the last two years has been astonishing even to the people who knew that a manifest folly must have in it its own destruction. States which vote wet in the canvass of sentiment have not all voted wet in the elections, but the increasing number of congressmen opposed to prohibition shows the political trend.

Opinion is moving rapidly toward a change which may soon take form in any one of a half dozen different ways, all preparatory to a complete retreat from the mistaken policy which made the United States constitution the container of a police ordinance and the United States government the custodian of individual conduct.

Editorials of the Day

WHY DO THEY SPEND OUR MONEY?

[New York Evening Post.]

The most important question before the United States today is: Why do they spend our money?

Why does congress keep on appropriating? Why is it that the federal government costs us a billion more dollars than it did in the boom year of 1927? Why is it that Ogden Mills does not say, as he must understand, that the government has got to cut costs? Why does he go along with committees, with commissions, with politics, and offer reasons for continued spending instead of plain arguments for stopping spending?

Why is he so "sound" in proposing taxation? Why does he rest content with advising congress on the best way to place taxes? Why does he point the road to cuts, after the revenues have been laid? Why doesn't he tell congress that the thing to do is to make every possible cut and then impose taxes to make up the margin wherewith to balance the budget?

Ogden Mills has it quite wrong. The President has it wrong, too. The thing to do is to cut first and then balance. What congress is doing is to tax first, and then cut.

Can't they understand? Can't Washington understand? Can't Ogden Mills and the administration understand that the great issue, the real issue, the supreme issue is: Stop spending our money!?

The national budget of four billion dollars should be cut to three billion dollars. The boasted $200,000,000 cut is paltry. And we aren't even going to get that. The first congressional reaction is to restore the cut-out items. "We must not cut our allowance for vocational education."

Why not? Why not cut it? Thousands of our citizens have had to cut it. Thousands of them have had to take their own children out of school and college. Why shouldn't the federal government have to do it? It is sad business, but the government can't afford it. The government cannot long easily pay the bills.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

AND NEXT MONTH IS JUNE!

This is May—so consequently and in the usual order of things next month will be June. At least it always has been that way, and, while things are pretty much upside down and the other way around these days, it is reasonable to entertain the thought that next month is June.

But suppose it is, what of it. Ah, we were coming to that before we were so rudely interrupted. Next month being June, the Democrats and the Republicans will have their national conventions and name their standard bearers for the campaign which will result in somebody being named as the peerless leader of the great American commonwealth for the ensuing four years. That is, the time is almost here when we should take some of our thought from baseball, prize fights, blossom, May, and beauty queens and ponder a little over who we think would be the best man for the presidency.

It's no use to ponder over a Republican candidate; that's all settled, and the convention committee that will break the news to the nominee have already been appointed and bought their stovepipe hats and the nominee has written his speech, beginning, "Surprised as I am at the news you have brought me," etc., etc., etc.

But the Democrats are still in the air. Franklin is going strong, but Al jumped up in Massachusetts and said "whoa" so sharply that Franklin almost did a nose dive. This was great stuff for the dark horses who are now snortin' around and a rar'in' to go. The Republican convention will be about as full of thrills as the directors' meeting of the East Lawnview Rock Garden and Whist club, but the Democratic convention in the Stadium promises to be so lively they're planning to keep the prize fight ring where it is and have a full supply of eight ounce gloves ready for distribution. And it's still a question whether the convention will adopt Robert's Rules of Order for its debates or the regulations laid down by the late Marquis of Queensberry. So it can't be said yet whether the chairman will tap with his gavel and shout "Order!" or clang the big gong and yell "Time!"

PROCESSIONAL.

Bright sunshine floods the azure skies
Above the towns, this April time,
Where factories blink their batlike eyes,
Stripped of their veils of smoke and grime.

Bright mocking sunshine that can give
No cheer to men distraught and broke,
Who only hope and pray to live
To see the sun eclipsed by smoke.

The sneers of Winter may be borne,—
To Winter no one makes a prayer—
But when the Springtime laughs in scorn
It is a grievous thing to bear.

In times of war with marching hosts
We won the glory valor yields,
But now, besieged by skulking ghosts,
Our homes are silent battlefields.

Yet patiently, with undestroyed,
Unswerving faith, from dawn to dawn,
The Army of the Unemployed
Still carries on—will carry on.

In humbleness, and yet in pride
They carry on; and, somehow, know
A nation chastened, unified,
Will triumph o'er this spectral foe.

And they shall greet another spring
With fires relighted, zeal renewed,
And they shall laugh, and they shall sing
This pean of their gratitude.

Though thorn-set was the way we trod,
And rough and steep and perilous,
We did not lose our faith in God,
Nor let God lose His faith in us.

EOLUS.

MINNIE, THE MANATEE, is being brought from Miami to Chicago to the Field Columbian Museum, her future home, in a large glass tank full of salt water. We shall be indeed pleased to meet Minnie, the Manatee, but, honestly, Senator Hooey Long, the Kingfish from Louisiana, would be a lot more fun.

IVAR KREUGER, the Swedish match king who was supposed to have committed suicide in Paris, has been reported alive and well in London, Stockholm, Athens, Constantinople, Singapore, Tokio, Buenos Aires, Rio Janeiro, and many other places, but not New York. This is indeed surprising. Day by day New York seems slipping back into second or third rank among the great cities of the world. What about Chicago? Oh, didn't you know? The late Mr. Kreuger is a cab driver in Chicago in daytime and a Big Butter 'n' Egg Man at the speakeasies at night.

MOVING DAY! Why does everybody want to move today? Probably some faint lingering instinct away back in the brain of the days our forefathers dwelt in caves and along about the first of May the frost got out of the ground and the soft earth tumbled in, just simply ruining the old home. So the cave dwellers picked up their bone knives and their clubs and their bearskin bedding and moved. And we still have the urge, except those who are wise enough to figure the reason out why one wants to move on the first of May and pushes it laughingly to one side as a silly superstition. So the thinker refuses to do anything in the way of moving today—HEY—this is the last line, Bob—don't put it here—it's May moving time, so——

THE BYERS CASE.

On my desk lies the first letter received in response to the publicity given the Byers case.

Ten months ago our correspondent was given radium pills for heart trouble. She took three of the pills a day until she had taken twelve. That ended the treatment. Seven months later she commenced having pains in her jaws and her teeth started breaking.

The probability is that these pills contained neither radium nor mesothorium. Even if they did there is no likelihood that twelve of them, taken by mouth, in four days gave her enough radium or mesothorium to poison her. If she will have some of these pills tested for these two substances she will probably find that she was humbugged and, in this instance, the knowledge of this fact will make her very happy.

And now, what are the dangers of so-called radium medicines? Radium, mesothorium, and lead are related. In fact, the physicists tell us that radium slowly changes to mesothorium, and this mineral in turn slowly changes to lead. Perhaps in one stage of the earth's history all the lead which now exists was radium, and in another stage it was mesothorium. The most learned physicists find in this and some other discoveries a very considerable proof that the alchemists of a few centuries ago were on the right track.

All three are poisonous. All are slow in their action, as well as peculiar when compared with other substances. All are apt to be stored in the bones and some other tissues and, later, to be fed out into the tissues when conditions favor that. In the case of all three complete elimination by the body is slow and difficult. Radium is destructive to tissues when they are overradiated by it. Radiation is a procedure used by physicians and physicists every day and the proof that overdosing is sometimes done is conclusive. It is used internally as a solution of the substance or of the emanation in spring waters and as medicines, and the proof is far from convincing—if there be any—that when so used it is poisonous. The dosage in which it is used is not in excess of the eliminating process.

On the other hand there is considerable proof that mesothorium is harmful and sometimes fatal under existing conditions of use. The so-called radium watch dial fatalities were due to mesothorium rather than to radium. Employés painting luminous dials on timepieces had the habit of pointing their delicate paint brushes by putting them into their mouths and then into the mesothorium solution. They absorbed excessive doses of mesothorium, the excess was laid down in their bones, as so frequently happens with lead workers, and bone destruction and other effects followed. The kindred subject of lead and lead poisoning has been discussed often.

The facts told in the newspapers about the Byers case are these: Mr. Byers, a year or more ago, commenced drinking a mesothorium water that came from the same city in which the watch dial cases occurred. He may have been directed to take a bottle or so of it by his physician. He thought it was doing him good, so he kept it up on his own responsibility. Perhaps the physician would say he had his prescription refilled indefinitely. Mr. Byers thought if a little was good, more would be better.

In the course of a year he took almost unheard of quantities of the water and of the mesothorium it contained. He developed symptoms which some physicians suspected might be due to mesothorium. He went to a physicist and the scientist applied tests which showed that Mr. Byers' bones were loaded down with mesothorium. No way of safely getting this substance rapidly eliminated was available and the sufferer died from an overdose of mesothorium.

A FURRY TONGUE.

C. P. writes: I am 60 years old. I always have furred tongue. What is the cause and cure?

REPLY.

Among the causes are: Sleeping with the mouth open, constipation, belching, and other manifestations of reverse peristalsis, difficult digestion during the night. The cause should be removed if possible. Among other treatments are: Scraping the tongue with a dull edge, such as that of a case knife, and chewing gum.

SACCHARINE.

M. E. C. writes:

1. Is saccharine injurious to the normally healthy person?

2. What is the chemical reaction of saccharine on food?

REPLY.

1. Not in the quantities in which men use it to sweeten coffee. President Roosevelt had one of his wars over this question.

2. There is none. It supplies a sweet taste and that is all.

MARRY THE MAN.

D. T. writes: The father of the young man I intend to marry died of cancer. Is this disease inherited?

REPLY.

Cancer is not inheritable. Marry the young man, and live happily ever afterwards. Some families have more than their share of cancer but you have no proof that the young man's family belongs in that group. No family wholly escapes the affliction.

PUBLIC SHOWERS.

Chicago, April 28.—[Friend of the People.]—Would like to know why the men's public showers at Pulaski park are not repaired. There are a number of these at this park. Only a few of them work and none can be regulated so a person can take a warm shower. The water is either very cold or very hot. This has been going on for some time. The district consists of poor working people. There are only a few private baths to the block. Many delay taking a bath because of the showers not working right. There has not been any grass growing in this park for a few years. Why do they neglect it? The parks at the far north and west are not treated this way. T. M. M.

At various times it is true that the mixers in our shower room get out of order, especially when they have been in service for a good many years. Our maintenance department is kept busy making the needed repairs on same. The showers at Pulaski park have been gone over in the last ten days and have been put in shape for the time being. However, an order has been placed for a new mixer which controls the hot and cold water of this shower room. Due to financial stringency we have been delayed in having a new mixer installed before this. Regarding the second complaint, that there is no grass at this park and that the park is terribly neglected, it is not true. There are certain portions of this park that are kept up with grass plots and flower beds around the fountain near this building. Due to the excessive use of the playground it is impossible to grow grass in the playfield. Where it is possible to keep up shrubbery and grass every effort is made to do so.

Superintendent Small Parks and Playgrounds, West Chicago Park Commissioners.

ENTERED ILLEGALLY.

Chicago, April 28.—[Friend of the People.]—I entered the United States in August, 1925, for a visit of six months at the age of 16. Instead of returning I secured employment and have resided here since. 1. Can I leave the United States, go to Canada on a visit, and return here without any trouble? 2. Do I have to apply for citizenship papers before I can leave the United States?

I. G.

1. It seems probable that your entry is to be regarded as illegal, and hence it would be unwise for you to return.

2. This would bring up the question of the legality of your entry.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

Every Man's University

Beginning tomorrow THE TRIBUNE will present a series of daily questions and answers indicating what several members of the University of Chicago faculty consider the type of thing a well educated individual should know.

Material related to the humanities, the biological sciences, and the physical sciences will be represented in this feature. There will be twenty-five questions and answers in each division. All questions have been prepared by men active in teaching the new freshman general courses at the university. Arthur P. Scott, associate professor of history, has written all the questions and answers for the humanities. History, art, religion, literature, and philosophy are the subjects included.

Questions in the biological sciences have been prepared by Merle C. Coulter, professor of botany, and Dr. Anton J. Carlson, professor and chairman of the department of physiology. The material is selected from the fields of botany, physiology, zoölogy, paleontology, anthropology, bacteriology, pathology, psychology, genetics, eugenics, and ecology.

Hermann I. Schlesinger, professor of chemistry; Harvey B. Lemon, professor of physics, and William D. MacMillan, professor of astronomy, are the authors of questions and answers relating to the physical sciences. Chemistry, physics, and astronomy will be treated.

The professors do not pretend that the information to be imparted in this feature represents even a small portion of the material covered in the freshman courses at the University of Chicago. The questions are much broader in their implication than the brief answers to be printed here indicate and, according to the authors, are at best suggestive of what a fairly well educated individual would think about when he reads or hears such questions.

Each question will be answered in the issue following the day of the question's first appearance. With the unanswered question the previous day's question will be repeated and answered as the author has presented the material to THE TRIBUNE.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

Why may it be worth the while of a twentieth century American to study the history and cultures of the past?

[This question will be repeated and answered in this space tomorrow.]

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 2, 1916.

BERLIN.—Future German-American relations probably can be looked forward to with less apprehension. The Associated Press is permitted to make this statement, although dispatches bearing on the nature of the German reply to the American note respecting submarine warfare have been stopped by the censors. The kaiser's plan, it appears, is to avoid a break with America.

EL PASO.—Washington's ultimatum has reached the border. Secretary of War Baker wired Gens. Hugh L. Scott and Funston that negotiations with Gen. Alvaro Obregon, Carranza minister of war, must not be predicated on the withdrawal of American troops from Mexico. This last word of the Wilson administration will be delivered tomorrow to Gen. Obregon at the second conference of the series between representatives of the United States and Mexico. Gen. Obregon announced that he would submit the ultimatum to President Carranza and await his reply. At present the prospect for peace looks dark. It is a commonly known fact that Gen. Obregon in recent speeches has advocated force of arms if the United States government refuses to withdraw its troops.

PARIS.—German troops in dense masses made a violent attack on positions captured by the French north of Dead Man's hill on the Verdun front. The attack was defeated, the war office report says, with the Germans suffering "enormous losses." At Hill 304 in the Vaux region there were incessant bombardments.

WASHINGTON.—President Wilson suffered an overwhelming defeat when by a vote of 213 to 165 the house of representatives recorded its opposition to any proposal to fix a definite period of time within which the United States must withdraw from the Philippine islands. This action was taken despite the personal appeal made last week by the President to the Democratic majority to pass the Philippine bill providing for the hauling down of the American flag in not less than two nor more than four years.

THE BONUS DEFENDED.

Chicago, April 26.—On Friday, April 22, there was published in THE TRIBUNE a cartoon showing an ex-service man with spindly legs, skinny arms, scrawny neck, disappearing chin, mouth like a black bass, walleyed, and no forehead. The poor, unlerfed creature is about to be hit in his shrunken middle by a high explosive shell on which is written "Dawes' Opposition." The purpose of the cartoon, I take it, is to ridicule the full payment of the bonus movement.

Time was when this soldier and his comrades, marching down the avenue, starting out on the road the end of which was not in sight, were pictured as men of great physical strength. The faces loaned them by the artists of war days were intelligent faces, good to look upon. In camps and at ports of embarkation politicians told them the soldiers of Alexander, Hannibal, Caesar, and Napoleon were dwarfed in physique and stunted in brains when compared to those who made up the A. E. F. "If you fall on foreign battlefields yours will be a glorious death. The honor of dying for one's country is given to but few; I envy you."

Now they are subject of a cartoonist's ridicule and shot at by their former glorified supply sergeant, Comrade Dawes! It is hard to understand how Comrade Dawes, whose inventive genius gave to suffering humanity the underslung pipe; who gave to the nation the Minute Men of the Constitution [now deceased]; who as director of the budget made the startling discovery that brooms bought for the navy were identical with those bought for the army; whose Melody in F has lired the widow's tears, and who worked out a Plan which brought back every dollar owed us by European nations, can take such fiendish delight in shelling his former comrades in arms and forcing them to a place in the bread line.

If I thought the veterans, on drawing their bonus, would put it in banks not eligible for loans from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, I would join with Comrade Dawes and Legion officials on the public pay roll in intensifying the barrage. But since every dollar given the veterans will be spent in the payment of debts and in the purchase of the common necessities of life, and will relieve many of them from the stigma of pauperism, I find myself not in accord with my modest, retiring, soft spoken buddy of '17 and '18.

DYEING THE HAIR.

Chicago, April 25.—I wonder why so many women dye their hair? Are they foolish enough to think that they are deceiving any one? Do they think that dyed hair makes them look younger or more attractive? If they do, they are sadly mistaken. The truth of the matter is that the lines of old age in their faces are far more marked than in those who have natural hair. Another absurd idea is that gray hair makes them look older, and that a woman with gray hair seeking a position is out of luck. There is nothing further from the truth. Gray hair is far more beautiful because it is natural and does not make a woman look older.

Every employment manager will inform you that gray hair is no handicap when applying for a position, and that women with gray hair are far preferable to those with dyes so loud and unsightly that even the inmates in the home for the blind could detect them.

We all know that a woman is only beautiful and attractive in so far as she is natural and herself, and such women are always revered and respected by all worth while men.

ADMIRER OF REAL WOMEN.

STUDENT PASSES.

Chicago, April 20.—Now that the Chicago Rapid Transit company has hit upon the idea to issue weekly passes, I suggest they go a step further and continue to issue school ticket books to high school students after the student is 17 years of age, as they are all dependent and very few are through school at 17.

PARENT.

A COMPROMISE.

Chicago, April 25.—Your brilliant editors will surely pardon a layman whose only excuse for presuming to explore the subconscious mind of the majority is a closer contact and consequently a better slant on the reactions of people to the appeal of our statesmen, who pause hesitatingly, in one hand a bottle, in the other a halo.

We are not extremists, nor bigots, and not reactionary. We are progressive morally and cannot surrender. The half ripe fruit of a century of temperance toil is not so easily shaken from the tree. The repeal of the 18th amendment no more meets the popular will than its strict enforcement. It must stand as testimony to our traditional moral leadership, as a beacon light to future generations. We can retreat. We will compromise. We will concede to human nature a degree of imperfection, a right to restrained folly, the privilege to live as it wills hampered only by duty to neighbors and to posterity.

At the same time we are conscious of a civic duty to restrain the gormandizer in the interest of society, and to protect the child from the evils of the barroom and the vices associated. We will tolerate a lesser evil, a wanton clothed. To quote Montesquieu, "Political, like moral, good lies between extremes." In order to put a crimp in bootlegging, sound the death knell of speakeasies and make of us once more a contented, law abiding citizenry, define "beverage" as any product under 10 per cent alcohol content, to be dispensed, under license, in original bottles.

Define any excess of 10 per cent as medicinal, to be dispensed on prescription from government, or state depots, and always in government custody.

E. B. MCMILLAN.

HIS VIEWS ON BASEBALL.

Chicago, April 28.—Out of deference to my younger brother we listened to a broadcast of a baseball game. Even with the announcer trying to make popup flies, foul balls, and grounders with handles on them into something to get excited about it was boring, but not quite as boring as watching a game and having women shriek when an outfielder catches a fly ball that the rankest amateur would catch barehanded.

I'll go watch Babe Ruth, Hack Wilson, or Shires, but to listen or watch the same monotonous procedure of the infielders throwing the ball around, the coaches going through meaningless motions, somebody running for Hartnett, or somebody hitting for Faber is to me like operating a drill press or trying to collect past due accounts: the same old stuff or story. And as for a ball game attracting 40,000 occasionally, as one of your correspondents mentioned, if he will please enlighten me why so many people go to wrestling matches, how Len Small got nominated, and, as reported, why 20,000,000 listen to a crooner, and why I can't get a good glass of beer for a nickel, I'll tell him why people watch 18 men go through the same motions every day and pay for it.

JOHN WARD.

FROM A TAXI DANCER.

Chicago, April 25.—I feel it is time for some one who knows to say a few words about taxi dancers. I am a taxi dancer and have been for ten years. I am also a voter and a property owner, paying close to $300 a year to the city of Chicago. I have worked at the same academy for the last six years. It is and always has been decent and clean, and a dancing school in every sense of the word. Why doesn't THE TRIBUNE mention the fact that there are some quiet, refined, decent and clean taxi dance halls in Chicago which should not be confused with places like the Floridan? W.

SLOGAN FOR 1932.

New York, April 27.—In the parlance of show business the "nut" is the expense. To "crack the nut" is to make the income cover the outgo. Why not a slogan for 1932, "Crack the Nut with Coolidge"?

JAPANESE RAID COREAN HOMES WITHIN SHANGHAI

Sleuths Search Houses; Many Arrested.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, May 2 [Monday.]—Japanese animosity, which has previously been directed against the Chinese, has suddenly been diverted toward Shanghai's Corean population as a result of Friday's bombing.

Every Corean home in both the international settlement and the French concession was searched yesterday. Most of the Coreans fled from their residences and sought refuge in the homes of American and British friends. In several cases American missionaries provided refuge for a large number of Corean Christians to "prevent persecution at the hands of the Japanese."

One American missionary woman said that she saw Japanese detectives beat a Corean woman who refused to tell them where her son was hiding.

Japanese Are Warned.

The French authorities refuse to comment on the situation, but it was reported last night that the French consul general, Jacques Meyrier, has warned the Japanese authorities against the activities of the Japanese detectives in their search of Corean homes and in making arrests.

Most of Shanghai's Corean population, approximately 1,000, reside in the French concession and have previously been granted political refuge, but the French apparently have changed their policy now and are permitting the Japanese to arrest all those suspected of revolutionary activities. All arrested Coreans will be sent to Corea for trial following a preliminary investigation here.

A Japanese official communique last night stated that the military and naval victims of the bombing are recovering, but no mention was made of the condition of Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japanese minister to China.

A dispatch from Sasebo, Japanese naval base, last night stated that Dr. Shichiro Goto, a high Japanese surgical authority, is being rushed to Shanghai aboard a naval cruiser for the purpose of attending victims of the bombing.

RUSSIA DRAFTS ARMY

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, May 1.—The soviet government has been mobilizing trained reserves for service in the far east for more than a month, according to a Baltic diplomat stationed at Moscow. He cites interesting details of Moscow's method of picking new soldiers. Thus far, according to the minister, not a single peasant has been called to service. Instead 15 per cent of the membership of the communist party, chiefly youths, have been summoned.

Military preparations, he said, are kept in strictest secrecy, the war commissars sending orders to separate factories and institutions where the administration gathers 15 per cent of the communists. These are immediately entrained. By selecting workers exclusively, Moscow hopes that they will prove more reliable than peasants, who are considered untrustworthy, and who, even when they are called to regular military service, begin training with sticks instead of guns.

Two Routes Over Mountains.

From various cities and industrial districts of central Russia the recruits proceed along two routes across the Ural mountains. Upon reaching Chelyabinsk and Sverdlovsk, they are detrained for two days of rest, and are fitted with uniforms. Upon their arrival at Irkutsk, guns are issued, but no ammunition is allotted until they reach Chita, where they are trained in camps heavily guarded by Gaypapou troops.

At the present time, according to the information of the Baltic minister, Moscow has an army of 100,000 communists east of Chita along the Manchurian frontier. This army acts both as a reserve for the regular Red army there, and as a buffer to protect the government in case the regular Red army rebels.

But even the communist army is considered insufficient for protection by Moscow, which has behind it a hand picked Gaypayou army, even better armed and rationed. It consists of professional soldiers who do not have terms of enlistment, but serve indefinitely.

Where Armies Are Stationed.

These three armies are stationed as follows:

The staff of the Gaypayou is quartered at Irkutsk and Chita; the newly mobilized communist army is stationed at the towns of Onon and Aga, where the Trans-Siberian railway forks, the northern tracks following the frontier to Vladivostok, and the southern route cutting directly across Manchuria to Harbin; several regiments are quartered behind the regulars who are concentrated at Blagoveschensk, Khabarovsk and Vladivostok.

The total armed force of Russia in the far east is estimated by the minister to be between 200,000 and 250,000 men. He concludes his report by stating that enormous supplies of provisions and munitions are being concentrated at Irkutsk, while the best rolling stock in Russia, with picked railroad men have been impressed to serve on the Trans-Siberian railway, east of Lake Baikal. The threat of war, he says, has interrupted the entire five year plan and is responsible for the decrees discharging 25 per cent of the workers in all branches of soviet industry because their food supplies have been diverted to military use.

League's Probers to Changchun.

MUKDEN, Manchuria, May 1.—(AP)—The league of nations' commissioners investigating Sino-Japanese affairs wound up their preliminary business here today and prepared to start for Changchun, the new Manchurian capital, tomorrow.

Wellington Koo, the Chinese assessor with th ecommission, will go with his colleagues to Changchun despite the reported warrant for his arrest issued recently by the new government of Manchuria [Manchoukuo].

Aviation Notes

A national organization of army air corps reserve pilots was perfected in a two day meeting ending yesterday at the Morrison hotel that was attended by 50 reserve pilots from all parts of the country. The organization is the Air Corps Reserve Officers' association. The following officers were elected: President, Capt. G. V. Kelley, Freeport, L. I.; vice president, Lieut. A. J. Reinhart, Dallas; secretary-treasurer, Capt. M. J. Harper, New York; judve advocate, Lieut. R. C. Farrell, Kansas City; directors, Maj. D. M. Outcalt, Cincinnati; Capt. Graff Allen, Flushing, N. J.; Lieut. Morris Connell, Boston; Lieut. Vernon L. Hubbard, Pittsburgh; Lieut. A. D. Hillman, Kansas City, and Lieut. F. E. Edwards, San Francisco.

Daily passenger service between Indianapolis and Louisville, providing the connecting link on through continuous air travel from Chicago to Miami, Fla., via Nashville, Chattanooga, Atlanta, and Jacksonville, was opened yesterday by American Airways. Another daily passenger line connecting St. Louis and Louisville, via Evansville, was opened by American Airways.

Last night a new schedule, the fifth passenger plane daily, was inaugurated over United Air Lines from Chicago to Cleveland. The plane leaves at 7 a. m., arrives in Cleveland at 10:40 a. m. South Bend, Ind., has been added as a point of call on certain flights.

AIR MAIL PARLEY TO MAP NETWORK OF WORLD LINES

Brussels Is Host May 30 to Conference.

BY ANN SOMERS HOUSE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, May 1.—An international air mail conference to organize air mail service between all European countries, and possibly between Europe and America, will meet here on May 30. It is expected to establish an "International Air Mail bureau" here and thus make the Belgian capital the world's air mail crossroads.

Air mail promises to become a far greater source of income for international air lines than any passenger service. The conference, therefore, will discuss for the most part methods of transporting mail at maximum speed and minimum cost.

Seek Fast Service.

All Europe, and perhaps America, is to be so organized that mail leaving, for instance, Stockholm at night will be distributed the next morning in London, Paris, Switzerland, or even in Northern Italy.

Night air mails will receive a great deal of attention henceforth. Air mails leaving London are to be distributed less than twenty-four hours later in Danzig, and at least a day is to be gained for air mail on practically all European routes.

Brussels Is Terminal.

Brussels is now the terminal station for air lines from London and Malmoe, Sweden, and soon will be for the route from Berlin. But more are hoped for, as air mail going from the east to the west of Europe or from the north to the south and vice versa might be exchanged in Brussels. A mail bag starting by plane from Berlin shortly before noon, might arrive at 7 p. m. in London, if the change of airplanes were efficiently organized in Brussels.

An international air mail bureau, it is thought, might fix schedules for such air mail services, combine air mail and train mail services and settle questions of air rates. The former Belgian "air minister," Maurice Lippens, will probably preside at the air mail conference.

EX-WATCHMAN KILLS SELF.

John Miller, 70 years old, 6231 Kenwood avenue, committed suicide by inhaling gas in his flat yesterday morning. He had been employed as a watchman until a few months ago, when he quit.

Flying Forecast

Special flying route forecasts for the period from 9 p. m. May 1 to noon May 2 [central standard time]:

Chicago-Detroit-Cleveland—Generally clear, preceded by overcast extreme east; mostly moderate to fresh northwest winds becoming gentle to moderate.

Chicago-Kansas City—Mostly clear except probably becoming overcast extreme south with some indications of light showers; mostly moderate shifting winds preceded by northwest over north portion.

Route forecasts for 12 hours, ending at noon:

Evansville-Atlanta—Clear sky; moderate northwest winds up to 1,000 feet and fresh northwest, diminishing at 5,000 feet.

Cleveland-New York—Mostly cloudy; moderate northwest winds up to 1,000 feet and fresh west or west northwest at 5,000 feet.

CHICAGO YOUTH STOWS AWAY ON MAIL PLANE

Cleveland, O., May 1.—(AP)—An urge to go places, born of too much hitchhiking, today overcame Donald Wagner, 21, Chicago bank clerk, and thereby hangs this tale.

At 1:15 a. m. Pilot Lew M. Gravis took off from Chicago airport with 1,000 pounds of mail. It at once was evident to Gravis that the ship was misbehaving. At Toledo he was hard pressed to land and take off right side up.

At Cleveland airport the explanation came. "How do I get out of here," a voice asked from the tail fuselage, and it wasn't long until Wagner was dragged out, an air mail stowaway.

The indignant airmen turned him over to the police, who later released him at the request of E. P. Lott, vice president of United Air lines.

International Trucks contribute to the Success of Oscar Mayer & Co.

SUCCESS is bestowed where success is earned . . . in this year, as well as any other. And it is logical that the high standards of Oscar Mayer & Company have won such high favor for its products. Tavern Sliced Bacon, Tavern Baked Hams and German Wieners are known and preferred for their extra goodness.

The quality of this company's products is more than matched by the matchless quality of its service . . . in which the International Harvester Company is proud to play a leading part.

The Chicago plant of Oscar Mayer & Company has standardized on Internationals, and 31 of these fast, powerful trucks deliver the company's products over a radius of 160 miles from Chicago. They provide the rugged strength and dependability that are needed . . . and the striking good looks that attract trade.

Since standardizing on International Trucks, the Chicago plant of Oscar Mayer uses less equipment, but hauls more and bigger pay loads. Lastly, Internationals give this great company today's most vital need . . . economical hauling. Internationals have reduced their truck maintenance costs by more than $26,000 per year!

Let Internationals give you the benefits of low-cost hauling! These trucks are built for it, and the International Harvester Service Organization is planned for it.

Whatever your type of business, and whether you need one truck or a hundred . . . International can do for you just what it is doing for Oscar Mayer and countless others. Come in and see the full line. Let us arrange a demonstration on your own job.

CONGRESSMEN'S KIN WELL PAID FOR LITTLE WORK

Clerk Relatives Crowd Federal Pay Rolls.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 1.—[Special.]—While senators and representatives give loud lip-service to the cause of economy, that ancient disease of government—nepotism—whereby the public pay rolls are loaded down with relatives continues to flourish on Capitol Hill.

It will give the taxpayers something to think about to learn that on the senate pay roll, doing no work but drawing public money at the rate of $2,580 a year, is an aged mother-in-law. It becomes still more interesting when it is known that the senator in the case is none other than Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader in the senate.

In addition to his mother-in-law, Senator Robinson has two other relatives on his clerical staff of five. One of these is H. Grady Miller, the senator's brother-in-law, who is a Little Rock bank president and seldom gets to Washington. The other is a nephew, Joe Brewer, who really earns his salary as the senator's secretary.

It is not always easy to draw the line between relatives who actually earn their pay and those who are on the rolls for purely pecuniary purposes.

Mrs. Rainey Really Works.

Mrs. Garner always has been secretary to her husband, now Speaker John N. Garner of the house, and those who have seen her opening up her husband's office at 8 in the morning will testify that she is worth the $3,900 a year she receives. Back on his farm, however, the speaker has his son, Tully C. Garner, whose $1,100 a year is not so easily explained.

Another working wife is Mrs. Henry T. Rainey, wife of Representative Rainey of Illinois, who is Democratic floor leader in the house. Mrs. Rainey does a secretary's work for her secretary's pay of $2,500 a year.

Senators are allowed $10,320 a year for clerk hire and representatives $5,000. They can pick their own employes.

During the last session Representative U. S. Stone of Oklahoma created a furor by introducing a bill to abolish relatives for clerical jobs. But the bill got nowhere.

It is reported that more than half the members of the two houses have relatives on the public pay roll. There is no way of telling for certain, for senators and representatives don't like to discuss it.

Radicals Get Their Share.

The congress radicals' theory of redistributing the national wealth by government fiat finds some practicing exponents among the membership.

Senator Smith Wildman Brookhart [Rad. Rep., Ia.] has his son as secretary and had two daughters on the pay roll during last summer's recess. Another son is in the commerce department and has recently had a trip to Bangkok, Siam, to take the place of a commercial attaché on sick leave.

Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky is another prominent Democrat who believes in keeping the family together.

Senator Nye of North Dakota, another Republican radical whose special committee to investigate senatorial campaign expenditures became notorious, has kept his brother on the pay roll for a number of years.

Senator Reed Smoot [Rep., Utah] chairman of the senate finance committee, likes to be thought a treasury watchdog, but has had his son, Ernie, on the pay roll.

To attempt a complete list of all relatives on the pay roll would be wearisome. It is not always possible to learn just how much work is done. And it is not always possible to obtain confirmation of what appears to be the facts in the case.

Clerks' Names Like Employers.

There appears below, however, a partial list of certain senators and certain clerks taken from the last reports of the secretary of the senate and clerk of the house, showing full and part time employment during the fiscal year 1931. There appears to be a somewhat startling similarity of the names in the two lists.

Pilot Weds Girl He Met on Trip in Mail Plane

A month ago Miss Elphae Hartshorn of Kansas City missed a United Air Lines passenger plane for Cleveland at the Chicago airport. It was the last passenger plane that day, but a smaller plane carrying mail only was ready to leave. Pilot J. L. [Monty] Brandon of the mail plane agreed to carry Miss Hartshorn. A week ago Brandon flew as a passenger to Kansas City on his day off to see Miss Hartshorn. Last Friday night she arrived here from Kansas City and they were married at Elmhurst. Miss Hartshorn is the daughter of Mrs. Florence Hartshorn of Kansas City. Brandon flew with the British Royal Air force during the war, later serving as a pilot for White Russian forces. The newlyweds are living at 119 North Parkside avenue in Austin.

DEMOCRATS MAY STAGE FIGHT ON TWO-THIRDS RULE

New York, May 1.—[Special.]—An attack on the rule to make the nomination for President may be made at the Democratic national convention at Chicago on June 27.

Supporters of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt have such a step under consideration, it was learned today, and have legal opinion that the convention at any time may decide by a majority vote of delegates to abandon the precedent and nominate by a majority vote.

The two-thirds rule was first adopted at the Democratic national convention in 1832. The Republican national conventions since the formation of the party have nominated by a majority vote. Only two Democratic candidates have obtained a majority and then failed to win. Champ Clark was beaten by Woodrow Wilson in 1912, and Van Buren by Polk in 1844.

Slowing Up Modernization of Navy Is Costly, Perilous

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 1.—[Special.]—The American warship construction and modernization program has been allowed to slow up to a point where several of the vessels, including three battleships, will be completed from three to five months later than had been anticipated, it became known today.

REAR ADMIRAL GEORGE ROCH.

Inquiry disclosed that the Hoover administration, in the face of an acute situation in the orient which has kept all American combat ships in the Pacific for months, has permitted its battleship modernization program to drag along at a rate which will postpone by at least five months the date when the powerful ships can rejoin the fleet.

Completion of several of the 10,000 ton 8 inch gun cruisers will also be delayed. According to testimony given before the house subcommittee handling navy department appropriations, but four of the eleven destroyers appropriated for during the seventy-first session of congress have been commenced. Six were held up by presidential order, and of the other five but four are under way.

Delay Also Is Expensive.

Investigation disclosed that the delay in battleship modernization has not only lengthened the time when the United States fleet must operate with eleven rather than fourteen battleships but also has served to increase the expenditures of the government at a time when the word economy is on all lips.

According to testimony given the house subcommittee by Rear Admiral George H. Rock, chief of the bureau of construction and repair, the increased expenditures on the three battleships, due to delay, will run between $750,000 and $1,000,000 even if no further delays occur.

Rear Admiral Rock based his loss figure on estimates indicating that the battleships Idaho, New Mexico and Mississippi will each have to remain in dry dock five months more than would have been necessary had adequate appropriations been asked for and provided last year so that an orderly and efficient modernization schedule could have been followed. He said that failure to furnish sufficient funds had compelled the navy department to slow up the modernization of the battleship and put them on a twenty-six instead of a twenty-one months completion schedule. He estimated that each ship cost the government an extra $50,000 for each month of delay.

Money Not Forthcoming.

An appropriation of $10,000,000 for carrying on modernization work on the Idaho, New Mexico and Mississippi was voted in the second deficiency bill approved in the closing weeks of the 71st congress which ended March 4, 1931. According to Rear Admiral Rock the navy anticipated that an additional $5,000,000 would be made available by not later than February this year. Work on the modernization of these vessels which included elevation of their turret guns to increase the range as well as a general thickening of the armor protection was begun last year on a schedule calling for competion of the work in twenty-one months. This would have turned the ships back to the fleet during the coming fiscal year.

But according to Rear Admiral Rock the administration failed to ask congress for the additional $5,000,000.

"Therefore," he said, "the work on the ships had to be spread out over a correspondingly longer time. It will be obvious to all that keeping a ship in a shipyard longer than the time necessary to perform the work at an efficient rate of progress increases the expenditure."

Fails to Get Full Amount.

Rear Admiral Rock said that unless congress appropriated the full $15,000,000 asked to finance work on the three battleships during the 1933 fiscal year, the cost of the work on the vessels again would be increased, due to slowing up work.

The house naval subcommittee placed responsibility for the delay in battleship modernization thus far on the administration. In reporting on this matter to the house the committee stated that the administration should have asked congress for sufficient funds to carry on the work.

Hindenburg Gives Students Motto—"Forward in God!"

BERLIN, May 1.—(AP)—President Paul von Hindenburg today gave academic youth this motto: "Forward in God!" The aged president boomed his advice through a brightly bedecked auditorium where 69 fraternities were holding a festival service of the German Students' league.

LEGGE RETURNS HOME; DECLARES EUROPE ON MEND

Harvester Executive Tells Conditions Abroad.

ALEXANDER LEGGE.

Mr. Legge saw conditions in Europe on the mend through gradual restoration of public confidence. He said that government economy, particularly the abolition of useless bureaus, would give impetus to a similar restoration of business confidence in America. He taxed congress with responsibility for the bureaus, adding "there are some good men in congress, but you never hear about them."

Mr. Legge had been away from his president's desk at the International Harvester company for five weeks. His trip was on company business.

Found Working on Farm.

A reporter found Mr. Legge rooting up weeds to the south of the dormitory on the farm he has established as a memorial to his wife, who died in 1924. The farm is a country club for women employés of the corporation. His lanky figure was bent over the grubber. He wore an old hat, leather jacket, army shoes, and chewed at a cigar. He offered another with, "Have a cheap cigar."

"Well," he said, "generally speaking, conditions are not so bad in Europe. They didn't fall as far as we did because they were not so overinflated. We took a nose dive off the Empire State building.

"England is coming along out of the slough. France, of course, is in the best shape. And there's a lesson for a lot of people, particularly lawmakers. France has always taken care of its farmers. So France has upheld its buying power.

Finds Germany a Problem.

"A banker friend of mine in London asked me to write him my opinion of Germany. I wrote him back that what he needed was not a farmer's or an economist's or a financier's opinion but an alienist's. But they'll come out. Maybe the Nazi movement will work itself out. The men behind Hitler may have some understanding. You know one man is too small to handle such a mental condition."

"If the citizens of this country could know about government bureaus and their workings, they would rise up and some of the fellows in congress would go there with different ideas. You know how they begin. There's a flood, a tornado, a Japanese bug or some other germ. Congress sets up machinery to fight the peril.

"The original action is commendable, but the peril passes and the machinery is there and appropriations are made to it year after year. Some one moves to abolish it and there is a terrible howl. Maybe some congressman has a brother-in-law or a sister-in-law in the bureau, and it stays.

Farmer Must Help Himself.

"The farmer must get most of his help from himself. The conservative farmer is not so bad off as some other people. If he didn't mortgage himself too heavily in trying to get more land, the farmer is pulling through. At least he has provisions for himself and his family. And the surplus, for the most part, is not as great as it was a year ago."

Mr. Legge was interrupted by the cackling of guinea fowl on the other side of a clump of bushes. He shouted, "Shut up, you noisy fools!"

"The farmer and his troubles have been the subject of much political debate and many promises have been made," he continued. "Most of them are mere political hooey. What is needed is a careful study of problems, some action and less wind. It's easy to talk with a few facts, but it is hard to get all the facts and get them straight."

Country Is Not Slipping.

"A friend of mine in New York says we have hit the bottom; we may not be climbing out, but we are not slipping. And that's my idea exactly."

"Chicago has been moving in the right direction with slashes in governmental expenditure. That is restoring confidence locally. We need the same thing on a national scale. It can't come overnight, but it is comforting to know that the worst is passing."

HONORED

Prof. Edward Curtis Franklin of Leland Stanford Jr. university, who has been awarded Willard Gibbs medal of the Chicago section of the American Chemical society for a lifelong study of liquid ammonia solutions which opened new field in organic chemistry.

POLICE SEIZE 4 YOUTHS, 2 GIRLS AS HOLDUP GANG

Lieut. Stephen O'Meara and a squad from the Chicago Lawn police station raided an apartment at 6214 South Troy street early yesterday and arrested four youths, suspected of being the gang that has robbed a number of department store deliverymen on the southwest side recently. Two girls in the flat also were taken into custody.

The prisoners are Gertrude Wickman, 19 years old, 5810 South Winchester avenue; Verna Vassar, 20 years old, 5730 South Winchester avenue; Harry Filas, 20 years old, 6202 South Troy street, alleged leader of the gang; William Skoglund, 20, of 5843 South Lincoln street; Raymond Larson, 20, of 1923 Garfield boulevard, and James Goldrick, 17, of 5533 South Damen avenue.

NEW RULING ON U. S. LOANS TO BANKS SOUGHT

Nelson Asks Carlstrom for Second Opinion.

State Auditor Oscar Nelson called upon Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom yesterday to issue another opinion on the legality of state bank receivers borrowing funds from the Federal Reconstruction Finance corporation to pay claims to depositors of closed banks.

The attorney general issued an opinion a month ago holding that, in the absence of any specific statute on the question, bank receivers had implied authority to contract such loans.

OSCAR CARLSTROM

At the time Auditor Nelson expressed doubt that the opinion was applicable, inasmuch as the finance corporation had laid down no specific requirements for borrowers.

Cites Wording of Application.

The finance corporation after the first ruling sent the auditor a set of the application forms and agreements receivers must sign to secure loans. Mr. Nelson dispatched these to the attorney general with his new request for the opinion on loans.

"You will note," Mr. Nelson wrote the attorney general, "that section 1 of the application says: 'The applicant represents that he is fully authorized to contract for such loan and to pledge the assets of his trust, in accordance with the terms and conditions of this application.'

"In the absence of an express holding by the Supreme court that a receiver has such authority, would you advise receivers to make such representations?

"You will also observe that under section 11 of the application the receiver must agree that he will make no dividend disbursements except on checks so drawn that their endorsement by the depositor will constitute an assignment of his claim against the bank to the Reconstruction Finance corporation, to protect the latter until the loan is repaid.

Must Have Authority.

"Assuming that a receiver obtained a loan and disbursed the same as dividends under the required provisions, would any one or more dissenting creditors, by refusing to make the assignment, in any manner subject the receiver to suits to recover on their claims previously adjudicated as valid?

"You will further observe that under its rules the Reconstruction Finance corporation will not entertain applications by receivers for loans to pay dividends to depositors unless the receiver is specifically authorized by statute to borrow money and pledge assets for such purpose, or, in the absence of such statute, unless his authority to do so has been established by a decision of the court of last resort."

Shortly after Mr. Carlstrom issued his first opinion Howard Sims, loan agent of the corporation here, revealed that receivers of the Cheltenham State bank and a bank in Hubbard Woods had applied for loans. The corporation has at yet taken no action on these applications.

ROB RESTAURANT MANAGER.

Three armed men entered a restaurant at 339 Madison street yesterday and robbed the manager, Charles Miller, 6134 North Mozart street, of $300.

A Free Ticket between Los Angeles and Seattle

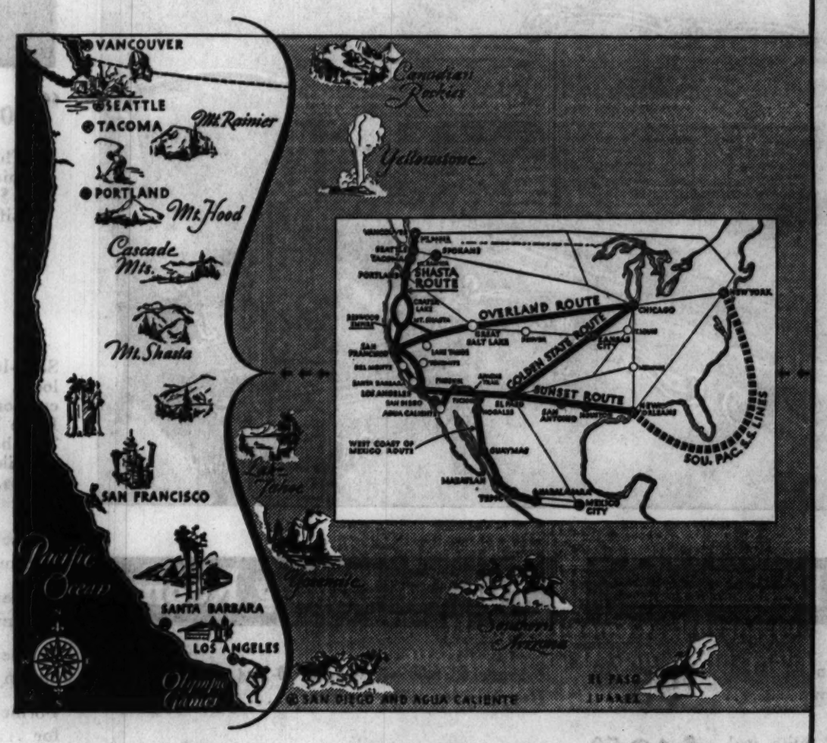
CALIFORNIA



Low Fares—Beginning May 15

SOUTHERN PACIFIC offers you a new privilege with these summer roundtrips to the West: See the whole Pacific Coast—at no added ticket cost! Of course no railroad can give away tickets, but this new privilege virtually amounts to a free ticket between Los Angeles in Southern California and Seattle in the evergreen Pacific Northwest. Use two of Southern Pacific's Four Great Routes and get this extra value.

Suppose your destination is Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland or Seattle. You can go straight to any one of these cities and back at the summer fare of $90.30. But under Southern Pacific's new privilege, on a roundtrip to any of these cities you can enter California on the Sunset or Golden State Route, enjoy southern California, then northern California, continuing on through Oregon and the Pacific Northwest and returning on any northern United States or Canadian line. Or you can reverse the order, going direct to Victoria, Vancouver or Seattle and then on down the coast. In either case the rail fare is not 1¢ more than $90.30.

Southern Pacific
FOUR GREAT ROUTES

These Men KNOW the West!

Any railroad office can sell you a Southern Pacific ticket to and from California, but you'll probably find the most up-to-the-minute information about the Pacific Coast at 77 East Jackson Blvd. Here you will talk to men who intimately know the West, for they represent the West's pioneer railroad—the railroad that serves more of the Pacific Coast than any other. A phone call or letter will receive careful attention.

WEST PARK BOARD FLOUNDERING IN A BOG OF DEBTS

Find Liabilities Exceed Income for 3 Years.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The west park board is floundering in a financial mess in which it appears to become more deeply entangled the more it struggles to get out. While an official statement is lacking, it is reported the board has current liabilities of approximately $6,126,000. This is more than its probable tax income for the next three years.

The board is in arrears on its pay rolls. It owes for supplies, materials, and equipment. It defaulted on $500,000 in bond issues last year. It is reported to owe large sums to its employés' pension funds. The records show that the board spent 60 per cent more last year than it can reasonably expect in income. Its 1931 tax warrants are selling for a trifle more than 50 cents on the dollar.

Liabilities Pile Up.

The current liabilities of the West park system may be summarized as follows:

Items.	Amount.
Tax warrants outstanding	$1,854,000
Unpaid bills, pay rolls and other	3,280,974
Collected taxes owing police pension	348,292
Collected taxes due employés' pension	491,650
Interest on tax warrants	151,070
Total	$6,125,986

These are the figures which the board is said to have presented a banker from whom it sought a loan to pay employés just before the primary. The banker is reported to have said the board had nothing to offer as security. Last week, however, the board obtained a small loan, but it is said to have been on the condition that 750 employés be discharged, which was done.

Lists Taxes Owed Board.

Before the primary the board pleaded it had current assets of $4,591,000, in the form of uncollected taxes, as follows:

Year.	Amount.
1929 taxes	$ 306,000
1930 taxes	2,284,000
1931 taxes	1,917,000
Total	$4,591,000

But those assets are found to be more apparent than real. For the years of 1929 and 1930 those figures are based on the theory that 90 per cent of the taxes will be collected. For 1931 the taxes are reckoned on the assumption that valuations will be decreased 14 per cent and that 90 per cent of the amount levied will be collected.

The facts are that less than 70 per cent of the 1929 taxes have been collected. Instead of getting in 90 per cent of the 1930 taxes, the collections so far are $106,638,703 out of a total of $280,283,770, or 36.74 per cent. In lieu of a reduction of 14 per cent on the 1931 taxes, County Assessor J. L. Jacobs was quoted last week as having told the legislators that the cut on real estate "will be 25 to 40 per cent."

Last year the board is reported to have spent and incurred liabilities of $3,163,997, while its tax and miscellaneous income cannot reasonably be estimated at more than $1,917,000 for 1932.

The quotations on the board's tax anticipation warrants have been going down. On Saturday the house of Enyart, Van Camp and Fell offered the board's 1931 warrants at 63, and the highest bid was 58. Otte & Co. reported bids of 55 for the warrants and only 60 asked for them.

12 Points Under Scrip.

These prices are 10 to 22 points lower than the quotations on 1931 tax warrants of other local governments. They are 12 points below the prices on the board of education scrip.

On 1930 tax warrants, which can be immediately cashed for par by using them in the payment of current taxes, the West Park warrants were offered for sale Saturday at 10 to 12 points under face value.

Police Tricked by Uniform; Aid in Escape of Bandits

BARCELONA, Spain, May 1.—(AP)—Police unwittingly aided in the escape of five bandits who robbed a pension bureau of $1,000 last night. One of the bandits, dressed in a police uniform, fired at a pursuing crowd. The real police joined in the firing, thinking the pursuers were the robbers. Nobody was hurt, but the bandits escaped.

RUSSIA TURNS ON WORLD'S LARGEST ELECTRIC PLANT

DNIEPROSTROY, Russia, May 1.—(AP)—Power began to flow today in what ultimately is intended to be the world's largest hydro-electric plant. Dnieprostroy, one of the soviet's most ambitious projects, was given its first official trial. The current was turned on merely as a test "formal opening." Power for actual use in this area will not be transmited until Aug. 1.

The first three turbines of nine separate generating units began to hum while thousands of workers who spent five years on the project looked on and cheered. A trainload of foreign tourists also watched the proceedings. Designed and built by American engineers and equipped with American machinery, the plant is destined to supply electric energy to an area of 70,000 square miles and a population of 16,000,000, including the important Donets coal basin and the great metal works of Dniepropetrovsk, now being constructed nearby.

When completed the plant will have a generating capacity of 756,000 horse power with an annual power production of 2,500,000,000 kilowatt hours. It represents an investment of 220,000,000 rubles (nominally $110,000,000). Start of the project ahead of schedule was made possible by completion of the great Dnieper river dam—also described as the largest in the world—before the spring thaw. Surrounding the huge project is arising a city designed to accommodate 150,000 workers.

Mongrel Dog in Church; Bites Priest and an Usher

A mongrel dog entered SS. Peter and Paul Roman Catholic church, 91st street and Exchange avenue, as the Rev. Joseph Paquette, 631 North Lake street, Aurora, was celebrating mass yesterday. Father Paquette attempted to sieze the animal as it approached the altar, and was bitten on the hand. George Begel, 9231 Brandon avenue, an usher, then tried to capture the dog, and was also bitten on the hand. Other members of the congregation caught the animal and took it to the South Chicago police station for examination for rabies.

THE WHISPERER

By ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

"The 'Whisperer' Crimes" have held London terrorized for months. Numerous wealthy persons have been kidnaped and held for ransom. The ransom victim is sent a small wireless receiving set by means of which the "Whisperer" speaks, using his own short wave, and gives directions for delivering the ransom demanded. Police dare not interfere because death results for the captive if directions are not carried out.

Joyce Morrow, engaged to Roland Blatch, secretary to Sir Henry Glaseborough, M. P., a leading philanthropist, is taken captive. Roland is forced to steal jewels which are in his keeping for the bandit to insure the safe return of his beloved. When Joyce is again safely home, Roland decides to accept an offer from the bandit to join his band and try to recover the jewels. He is sent to an address where a woman named Connie gives him a facial treatment which alters his appearance. Roland reports every day to Connie, where the Whisperer talks to him through a telephone loud speaker, but remains hidden from view. He is sent to collect ransom from Lord Whiddon, and is involved in the killing of Lady Whiddon when her husband fails to meet the Whisperer's demands. Roland finds the Whisperer's hideout. He sees Sir Henry leaving and is faced with the staggering truth that the Whisperer is Sir Henry. Prowling through the house Roland becomes locked in the room used to imprison the captives. The Whisperer's next victim is the young daughter of Renbold Harner, minister of development in Australia, who is in London with special credit from his government to place orders for British made farm machinery. Harner refuses to use his government's money for ransom.

INSTALLMENT XIX.

THE PRISONERS ESCAPE.

Roland heard the words but they meant nothing to him. Nor did the voice. He opened his eyes and stared at a ceiling broken by a ridge of something bulky—the back of the sofa—then came a girl's voice.

"I've written it. What do you want me to do with it?"

Then the man's voice again: harsh and menacing.

"There is a panel on the left of the door. I shall open it and you can pass the letter through. Have you marked the envelope 'urgent'?"

"Yes. But you won't get anything out of my father. He's a poor man."

There was a spirit of pluckiness in the girl's voice that galvanized Roland into sudden knowledge of what was happening. He knew now that he was alone in the room with a new victim. His first care must be not to startle her—for if she were to cry out her voice would be heard by means of the loud-speaking telephone.

He heard the panel click—heard footsteps recede.

Coolly—without the least compunction at the thought of taking life—Roland fired.

He struggled up and did it clumsily.

"O!" gasped the girl.

He pulled himself up and faced her, unaware that he had a two days' growth of beard and that his eyes were bloodshot.

"Don't be afraid of me!" he whispered. "I'm a prisoner with you—but they don't know I'm here. Whatever you do, don't make a noise!"

She stared at him in horror and shrank back.

"Please don't be afraid!" he begged.

"I'll tell you all about myself in a minute. Whereabouts is that panel?"

She pointed and he edged away in case of observation. That brought him over to the corner near the wash basin and he beckoned to her. After a moment's hesitation, she came close to him.

Quickly he gave her the bald facts that explained his presence in the room. Her fear had vanished and she told him her own circumstances.

"Do you think—that is, will your father pay the ransom? It'll probably be a pretty stiff one."

"He can't possibly," she answered. "He has very little money of his own besides his salary."

"He'll probably pay it with the government money."

"You don't know my father."

"If he doesn't pay it——" Roland hesitated, for the girl's own sake, he had better tell her the truth. "If he doesn't pay it they will try to kill you. You and I then have a single chance. When that door opens."

He took out the revolver and showed it to her.

"O, how perfectly splendid!" she exclaimed.

"It won't be splendid, I'm afraid," he said gravely. "It'll be pretty awful. We shall have a bit of time to wait—because they won't know yet that your father hasn't paid up. But in half an hour or so, to be on the safe side, we'll get together behind that sofa. You keep right down on the floor, remember, and don't look up on any account. If I am killed, grab this revolver from me and make the best use of it you can. It's your only chance."

The girl nodded understanding. She was so cool that he wondered whether she could realize what was before her. If she did not, so much the better! It would be no good breaking down her nerve by telling her exactly what it might mean when at least two desperate men opened fire on each.

In half an hour they crouched down together behind the sofa. It was a big sofa and would stop any ordinary revolver bullet. To prevent her mind dwelling on the ordeal that lay ahead, he told her to bring the writing materials and they passed the time playing paper games.

They had sat there for the better part of an hour when the panel clicked.

There was just a click—then footsteps—then silence. A minute passed—still silence. He put his lips close to her ear.

"Go and examine that panel," he whispered. "Then come back and tell me what you see."

Thirty seconds later she was beside him again.

"There's a metal nozzle thrust in it and it's making a low hissing noise."

Poison gas! He remembered the cylinders in the Whisperer's room and was sure of it. The ransom not paid, the Whisperer meant to do murder.

That meant a change of tactics.

He could make his way from the back of the sofa to the washstand without coming within sight of the panel and he did so, beckoning her to follow.

"That oilskin package in the armchair over there," he whispered. "Go and fetch it, but hold it so that they won't be able to see through the panel what you're doing."

"What is it?" she whispered as she returned.

"Gas masks," he answered. "I picked it up intending to show it to the police when I was caught in here. A bit of luck for us. Now listen. I'm going to put one on you and the other on myself. We shan't be able to talk. But you'll be able to see through the goggles. Watch me for signs."

He signed to her and they got back behind the sofa. Previously he had planned to spring up as soon as the door opened and take his chance of a shot. But now, with the mask muffling his hearing, the door might open without his being aware of it.

He edged along the floor to the other side of the sofa until he could just see the lintel of the door while keeping out of vision-line of the panel.

How long the vigil lasted he had no idea. His eyes were fixed on the door for so long that his vision blurred.

Actually the door was more than half open before he realized it.

In the doorway stood a tall figure masked like himself.

For a second or so after it seemed as if the three of them had been frozen into immobility. They were like people in a picture. Close to Roland, Miss Harner lay on the floor behind the sofa, staring through the goggles of her gas mask. Roland's whole attention was on the figure in the doorway.

Instantly Roland sprang forward. The other man's hands fumbled towards his pocket as Roland reached him.

"Put your hands up—or I swear I will kill you!" Roland roared through the gas mask. The muzzle of his revolver was dug hard in the pit of the stomach, his finger pressed against the trigger. He was ready to kill.

The other man leant oddly against the lintel and offered not even a show of resistance when Roland ran a hand over him and took his gun.

It did not occur to Roland to search for a second weapon.

His one thought, now that the first appalling danger had been overcome, was that the Whisperer stood before him, wounded and unarmed—his prisoner. Unless there were others of the gang in the house.

He ran along the landing—to the workshop—to the Whisperer's room. Both were empty.

Safe, so far! If there were any others of the gang about they would have heard the shot and would be in action by now.

"I've got the Whisperer!" It was a shout of triumph.

But there was Miss Harner to be looked after.

He ran back and nearly stumbled over the now prostrate form of the man he had wounded.

Miss Harner was still lying behind the sofa. She was a good, plucky girl. He touched her arm and signed to her to follow him.

In the corridor, he moved the wounded man, then shut the door to prevent the gas from spreading throughout the house.

The other man was conscious, for, with Roland's help, he struggled, groaning, to his feet.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Cottage and Castle

FUNERAL TODAY FOR ONE VICTIM OF PLANE CRASH

Rites for Other Flyer to Be Tomorrow.

Arrangements were completed yesterday for the funerals of Lieut. Charles H. Fargo and Lieut. Henry Sandusky, the two army air corps reserve pilots who were killed Saturday afternoon when an army training plane crashed into a two flat building at 124 East 75th street. Military escorts will attend both funerals.

The services for Lieut. Fargo, who is survived by his widow and two young sons, will be held at 4:45 o'clock this afternoon in Graceland chapel. Dr. A. S. C. Clarke, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church of Evanston, will officiate. Burial will be in Graceland cemetery.

Relatives on Way Here.

Mrs. Fargo's father, Francis R. Hart, a banker of Boston, and her sister, Mrs. Lloyd Nichols of Beverly Farms, Mass., are en route to Chicago for the services. Pallbearers will be Kenneth Little, Neil C. Dawes, Charles T. Adams, Edward L. Cooley, Harold Samuels, J. P. Spang Jr., Herbert H. Kennedy, Arthur Dole, John G. Ralston, and John J. Finley.

Lieut. Fargo was 33 years old. He resided at 1512 North Dearborn parkway. He was a sales promotion expert for the United Fruit company and a member of a family well known in Chicago society.

The services for Lieut. Sandusky will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the undertaking rooms at 3125 West Roosevelt road. Burial will be in Waldheim cemetery. Lieut. Sandusky was 35 years old. He resided at 444 St. James place. He is survived by two brothers and five sisters.

Expert's View of Accident.

Capt. C. W. Connell, air corps officer for the 6th corps army area, after an official investigation of the crash, said yesterday that he did not believe there was either structural or motor failure in the plane. He said the ship was new and had been inspected by Lieut. W. V. Newhall, engineering officer of the 33d division aviation corps, Illinois National Guard, just before the two reserve pilots took off in it.

Capt. Connell said the motor trouble that resulted in the smashup might have been caused by the fuel mixing regulator being accidentally knocked open. This would starve the motor of fuel and cause it to miss fire, he said. Lieut. Newhall said the plane and motor were in perfect condition when he inspected them.

An inquest will be held at 10 a. m. today in the undertaking rooms at 809 East 75th street.

PAINTER HANGS SELF AT HOME.

Emil Anderson, 58 years old, 2138 North Kenneth avenue, a painter, who had been ill and out of work for two years, arose during the night and hanged himself early yesterday from the back porch of his home.

"CONVICT-MADE" SALES DROP; HITS FRENCH PRISONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 1.—The French prison administration is grappling with an unusual problem growing out of the economic crisis: There is unemployment in the French hoosegows.

Hitherto large French prisons have been relatively successful as industrial plants, very specialized and with a high standard of efficiency. For a year, however, the market for convict made articles has steadily diminished. Now many of their knickknacks can no longer be sold at all.

The administration has not been able to expand the sales, so many of the prisoners are literally jobless. This is bad for the morale of the prisoners and worse for the morale of the prison administration which is beginning to wonder if it may not have to shut down some of its "plants" to keep from going broke.

Arloine Walton, Retired School Teacher, Dead

Miss Arloine M. Walton, 342 West Marquette road, a teacher in the Chicago schools for more than thirty years, died yesterday, after a short illness, in St. Luke's hospital. Miss Walton, who retired two years ago, last taught at the Yale Elementary school. Surviving are two brothers, Lyman A. Walton, retired banker and former south park commissioner, and Louis Walton, and a niece, Mrs. Ernest Freund. Funeral services will be held this evening from the chapel at 63d street and Harvard avenue. Burial will be in her birthplace, Alexandria Bay, N. Y.

Shot in Leg Before a Taxi Dance Hall, He Says; Held

William Schamph, 24 years old, 1242 South 58th avenue, Cicero, was taken to the Bridewell hospital as a robbery suspect yesterday when he appeared at the office of Dr. Blaine L. Ramsay, 35 South Hoyne avenue, for treatment of a gunshot wound in the leg. He said he was accidentally shot by a friend whom he knew only as "Eddie" in front of a taxi dance hall at 1705 Madison street.

Cook county uses jurors at the rate of 3,000 a month, according to a report completed yesterday by the jury commissioners. These jurors serve all courts in the county with the exception of the federal.

LEOPOLD NEUMANN.

Under the present system, it was stated, 200 men are summoned to the commissioners' office every day by registered letters which cost the county 17 cents apiece. The names of the men are taken from directories and telephone books.

When the prospective jurors arrive they are received by Chief Clerk Martin Peterson, who directs them to Commissioners Leopold Neumann and Joseph H. Barnett. The examination of each man is made by one or the other of these two, who pass upon each juror personally, Chief Clerk Peterson explained. The third commissioner, James J. McVicker, is a member of the legislature, and in his absence most of the routine duties are performed by the other two.

Once a man has been accepted or qualified for jury service the commissioners ask him to pick the time when it is most convenient for him to serve. His name is placed on an identification card and the card is placed among the cards of other men who have been chosen at the same or approximately the same time. Later there is a drawing in the presence of a clerk and a commissioner, and the jurors are arranged in venires of 100 each.

It is this method of choice at random which causes the most trouble in the commissioners' office, Commissioner Neumann said yesterday.

"I have an average of from 10 to 20 ward committeemen and other politicians come to me every day and say they have men they want to get on juries. We can't do it. We must obey the law and pull the names at random."

Normally a juror serves two weeks. He then is free from service for another four years, after which his card will be placed in the jury box for a possible redrawal. A juror is paid $5 a day for his term of service, regardless of whether he is used on any jury. A grand juror serves for one month at a time.

Chicago Resident at Time of Fire Succumbs

Mrs. Wilhelmina Stuhlmacher, 89 years old, 196 Montclair avenue, Glen Ellyn, died at her home yesterday after a lingering illness. Born in Germany, she came to this country as a girl and was a resident of Chicago at the time of the great fire. Later, with her husband, the late August Stuhlmacher, she moved to Crown Point, Ind., where she lived until nine years ago. Surviving are three sons and two daughters. Funeral services will be held at the Evangelical Lutheran church, Crown Point, at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

SOVIET DIPLOMATS MAKE CERTAIN THEY WILL NOT GO HUNGRY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, May 1.—Riga laughed yesterday when the automobile of the soviet minister, flying a red flag, proceeded through the center of the city en route to the depot carrying two secretaries of the soviet legation and a load of groceries.

Inquiries revealed that the secretaries were en route to Moscow to attend the May day celebration and that the packages contained eggs, butter, meat and other provisions not obtainable in Moscow, even at the special store where only diplomats and foreign newspapermen are permitted to purchase them. Moscow's four hotels, where the delegations of foreign Reds are quartered, also received shipments of food from Riga during the past week.

Riga newspapers call the soviet minister's car "Al Capone, Model 1931." Capone's armored car, fitted with bullet proof glass, attracted the attention of the soviet government, which purchased 20 of them from an American firm for the use of its ministers abroad.

CIVIL WAR VETS TO TAKE PART IN N. Y. BEER PARADE

New York, May 1.—[Special.]—Veterans of the civil war will take part in Mayor Walker's beer parade on May 14, it was announced today by the beer parade committee. Col. William Griffith has asked that his fellow veterans be assigned a place in the parade with the younger ex-soldiers.

The announcement declared that the beer parade has struck a responsive note among all veterans' organizations in the city and has extended over the state and nation, as well. American Legion posts in California, Louisiana, New Jersey, and other states have already written in asking for details on the manner in which the New York parade will be arranged and conducted, the committee said.

Pilot and Mechanic Die When Airplane Crashes

Lockport, N. Y., May 1.—(AP)—Two Lockport men were killed today as their plane nosedived from a height of about 200 feet and crashed on the landing field of the Lee-Van De Mark airport here. They were James W. Wylam, pilot, 42 years old, and Vernon C. Fuller, mechanic, 39.

Chinese Flyer Killed.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 1.—(AP)—Willie Ong, 27 year old Chinese aviator, was killed today by the crash of his airplane. It failed to come out of a tailspin. Ong, an amateur, was a member of the Chinese Flying club.

Child Killed by Plane.

Towanda, Kas., May 1.—(AP)—Ina May Bloir, 12, was crushed to death today beneath a plane piloted by her cousin, Mrs. Harriet Barrett of Pawhuska Okla., which crashed after striking a telephone wire. Mrs. Barrett was injured dangerously. The Bloir girl and other friends had gathered to welcome the aviatrix on her arrival here to visit her mother, Mrs. Serreta Apalding.

Change Name of Historic Chilean Port to Magallanes

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MAGALLANES, Chile, May 1.—The Chilean government has officially announced that it has changed the old maritime name of Punta Arenas to that of Magallanes to denote the historic port in the Magellan straits and the southernmost city of the world. At the same time it announced that a civil flying club has been established there with nine state donated planes of American manufacture, and arrangements are being made to link up the port with the principal Patagonian centers by air.

New Luggage a Miracle of Big Capacity

Designers Know How to Create Space.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

HAVE you been reading steamship and travel ads . . . are you saving your shekels so that you will be able to go canoeing in the Balkans, tramping in the land of Mussolini, climbing around Switzerland or go completely tourist and ambitiously ankle over all of Europe to see whether it is as stimulating as it has been advertised?

Of course, there are a few brave souls who have covered every league abroad with the aid of just one suitcase . . . but the harrowing tales that have leaked back across the sea heavily score Aunt Lou and Cousin Susie, and even Uncle John and countless others of us who simply can't go anywhere without a van load of excess baggage.

Perhaps, after a few more pungent remarks or criticisms have been duly recorded, we shall see our traveling errors and scrap all the old chest-like containers and other obsolete carrying devices . . . pack up our slim, traveling wardrobes in the new 1932 baggage and be off to see the world.

You'll probably shock the stolid calm of the London Bobbie . . . surprise the chattering Paris gendarme into silence . . . completely awe guides and porters and even make the local baggage smasher stutter with relief when you leave for a three or four months' trip with two pieces of baggage where you formerly packed at least six.

Two well designed pieces will be sufficient this season to supply your wardrobe needs around the globe . . . new luggage has been planned by experts who have calculated with caution and remarkable restraint just the right size, the perfect depth and width for all practical traveling purposes . . . the girth and capacity is amazing and most deceptive, at least from the outside elevation . . . you'll never believe that you can pack so many things until you do the filling yourself . . . your pet walking brogans will never be in Rome in the extra suitcase you sent ahead when you need them during the unexpected week-end spent enjoying the English countryside . . . warm clothes can be unpacked just as soon as the sun goes down, wherever you are shivering, because the big new wardrobe suitcase holds them all and is right at your side.

Traveling bags and week-end cases are marvels of efficiency and compactness . . . a good packer can always squeeze just one more thing into them as easily as though they were rubber.

And the bachelor or week-end extra man has been exceptionally planned for . . . of course, the family man can and will use them, but the feminine packer left at home will get all the kick of the new valet suitcase especially planned for week-end masculine guests, who practically make the best and most successful parties . . . these cases are large but not aggressively so . . . they are smart, swagger, and expansively capacious . . . the official list of the limit as to apparel which can be stowed in its depths looks like a haberdasher's dream of what the well dressed week-ender should wear . . . two suits, a dozen shirts, plenty of ties and socks and other necessities, as well as shoes, and the suits are so arranged and flatly folded that the lucky possessor merely takes out the suits with hangers attached and no pressing is necessary.

Air minded sightseers, masculine or feminine, are going to get a thrill out of the new airplane luggage . . . it's as light and airy as the ether . . . there are five graduated sizes of suitcases, a wardrobe case and hat boxes . . . this airplane stuff is very new and very smart . . . it is made of light wood, which is also used in airplane construction, it is covered with a fabric that can be sponged frequently and freely, as the original luster always returns.

New Dollhouse of Mrs. Thorne Nearly Done

Home Decorations Praised in Magazines.

BY JUDITH CASS.

NO ONE would be surprised if Mrs. James Ward Thorne were tempted to enter the ranks of the professional decorators, because her talents in that direction have been given national recognition during the last few years. The Thornes' Chicago apartment at 1200 Lake Shore drive and their house at Santa Barbara are outstanding examples of her exquisite taste. Mrs. Thorne was her own decorator in both cases.

Then there are the dollhouses which Mrs. Thorne designs and decorates herself. The one which was auctioned off at the Woman's exchange sale last Christmas was lovely enough to make adults as well as children long to own it. Just now Mrs. Thorne is putting the finishing touches on another dollhouse which, from all reports, is a marvel of miniature perfection. All of the tiny furnishings have been made by Mrs. Thorne with the assistance of a Swiss wood carver.

One or two periodicals noted for their high standards in matters of home decoration have devoted space to reproductions of the Thornes' Santa Barbara house, and the latest issue of House and Garden has pictures and descriptions of five rooms of the same stunning house.

"Accenting the French theme" is the general caption for the pictures, for all of the color schemes for the rooms were selected by Mrs. Thorne to emphasize old French furniture and rugs. In the drawing room, for instance, "a rare Aubusson rug in misty blues, rose and beige tones inspired the delicate color scheme . . . Chairs are covered with gray-rose velvet, while the blues of the rug are repeated in the taffeta coverings of the other pieces . . ." The morning room walls of deep cream are "a neutral background for the Aubusson rug in rose and blue, and the gray-rose of the taffeta curtains . . ."

Tables Arranged by Mrs. Thorne.

On another page of the same magazine are three tables arranged by Mrs. Thorne on the high terrace overlooking the ocean and the Santa Barbara hills. One is set for a children's luncheon and has for a centerpiece a long eared donkey with panniers of flowers. The others are tea tables—one for an informal tea with china set on a small, movable table, and another more elaborate setting with a silver servie.

A profile picture of Mrs. Thorne, which illustrates the table of contents of House and Garden, reminds one again that this Chicago woman is as famous for her beauty as for her artistic gifts. Since her debutante days she has been referred to constantly as one of the most beautiful belles of Chicago.

The Thornes have not opened their Santa Barbara house this winter, but will be leaving in late June to spend the summer there. Mrs. Thorne will depart tomorrow for a week's stay in New York.

Three Plays at Arts Club.

The Arts club program of three plays by its own drama committee last night was the occasion of one of the gayest and liveliest Sunday evenings of the club's season. The players, most of whom have won a share of renown in local amateur theatrical circles, were applauded with enthusiasm by the large audience, and Mrs. Helen Walton, who directed and coached all three plays, was showered with congratulations.

"Queens of France," a suave comedy by Thornton Wilder, was the first number on the bill and apparently the most popular with the audience. The setting for the play was New Orleans, 1869, so the quaint costumes gave the ladies of the cast an opportunity to look extremely picturesque.

The cast included Mrs. Henry Field, who played a cocotte; Mrs. Horace Horton, a bourgeoise; Mrs. Proehl H. Jaklon, a school mistress, and Mrs. Alice Francis, an old woman. Gerald Frank, completely disguised by a wig, sideburns, and mustache, played the rôle of a crafty lawyer who bamboozled each of these poor women into thinking she was the lost "Queen of France."

The next offering was "The Imbecile," a typical Pirandello work, with a cast including Abbott Ross, Harold Simonds, Clifford Manthorn, Anita Baker, Roger White, Charles Goodmanson, and John Beloy. The final production was "The Cow," a riotous farce by Jean Sartene. Deering Davis, Dunlap C. Clark, Howard Cox, and Margaret Schreiner composed the cast.

A back drop and side curtains were used to make a stage of the tiny platform at the end of the Arts club gallery. Each play had its own settings and props and the technical equipment was managed with professional thoroughness by the André Ament associates.

Mrs. John Jelke in New York.

The baby week committees of the Infant Welfare society will have to get along this year without one of their most active members—Mrs. John F. Jelke, who is in New York for a sojourn of a week or ten days. Mrs. Jelke is prominent in the affairs of the Lake Forest branch of the Infant Welfare.

The Arden Shore drive in Winnetka, which has some of the most enthusiastic workers for the camp among its citizens, will open with a tea this afternoon at the residence of the town chairman, Mrs. Arthur J. Mitchell. A group of boys and girls from the camp will provide the program. Mrs. Roy E. Bard is treasurer of the Winnetka committee, Mrs. George R. Quin secretary, and Mrs. George T. Leach is industrial chairman.

Mrs. William L. Hodgkins, president of the Chicago Y. W. C. A., will give a luncheon today in the tea room of the new west side residence of the Y. at 105 South Ashland boulevard. The building was dedicated a week ago and

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., May 1.—With everything framed to give Greta Garbo the biggest hand in the glittering history of Hollywood premieres, Greta failed to show at the local $5 opening of "Grand Hotel" at Chinese theater and her absence nearly allowed Marlene Dietrich to steal the spectacle away from her rival exotic.

The MGM Movie company and the theater threw everything together that could be thought of to provide a spectacle that would dazzle all the senses.

A stage prologue that outdid everything put on during more profitable movie years; Will Rogers as master of ceremonies act, to josh everybody from the two Barrymores, Lionel and John, to President Hoover; Will Mahoney dancing a jig on top of a xylophone while his feet tapped out complicated tunes; Conrad Nagel at the mike introducing all the stars and describing the scene as they entered the outdoor foyer; pots of incense perfuming the air about the theater for a city block; millions in ermines and orchids, and fifteen thousand American citizens jostling against 500 police in an effort to see it all, like a big three ring society circus.

As non-Hollywood readers of this description will have ample opportunity to view the picture "Grand Hotel," if they haven't already done so, it will be our point to describe the setting at the Chinese theater, which isn't seen anywhere else.

Will Rogers was in good form.

"You wonder what I'm doing here. Well, Fred Niblo [who usually acts as a Hollywood master of ceremonies], is in Europe. They wanted Eddie Cantor to do this instead of me, but Eddie wanted more money. Eddie held out for either $1,000 or a ticket for each member of his family. Sid Grauman, the theater manager, finally said, 'Why give a show only for the Cantor family?'"

Turning to the Barrymore boys, who both played in the picture, Rogers said:

"Next we get to the family which leads the artistocrats of our industry; the fellows whose name provide a trademark on the American stage and screen."

Lionel refused to come down to the stage to be spotlighted, whereupon Rogers bade Joan Crawford to stand and ran up the aisle from the stage to escort her, sun tanned as a butternut, in an electric blue satin, backless gown, into the spotlight. When Joan also chose to slip back to her seat and her husband, the humorist chided her by saying he did not see how such a beautiful girl, married to a fine young man like Douglas Fairbanks Jr., could "make love through the picture like she did, to two bozos who look like Beery and Lionel Barrymore."

Rogers predicted that "Grand Hotel" is the only hotel in the United States which will make money this year, and capped his act, after introducing or mentioning every one in the cast except Greta Garbo, by walking to the wings and bringing out "the girl whom all of you have been waiting and hoping to see."

The audience, of course, expected Garbo, but "the girl" proved to be Wally Beery [who started his movie career in the old Chicago Essanay days as a female impersonator], dressed in a siwash squaw idea of the ne plus ultra in evening attire. Beery fanned himself with a scarlet fan and tittered, while the audience, at first nettled—to be deprived of its expected peek at Garbo—chuckled.

Marlene Dietrich occasioned more comment than any other woman in the audience, sweeping slowly up the theater aisle in a striking outfit of white satin gown with long black satin wrap lined in another white satin shade, and leaning on the arm of her husband, Rudolph Sieber, recently arrived here from Germany.

The opening was due to begin at 8:30 p. m., but did not get under way until long past eleven, due to the celebrities' limousines being compelled to push through a mile of boulevard choked black with people.

Urge Private Homes as Best Orphan Refuge

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Any home, even if it be somebody else's home, is a better place for a child than a public institution. Moreover, it costs the community less than upkeep of orphan asylums. The one exception, members of the American Legion and its auxiliary learned yesterday at the Hotel Sherman, at a child welfare conference in observance of national baby week, is one where really bad influences are present.

It was Edna Zimmerman of the division of visitation of children of the state department of public welfare who told the conference of the value of homes versus asylums. It was Ralph Spafford, director of the Soldiers and Sailors' Children's school at Normal, Ill., who presented comparative costs under the two systems to corroborate her statements.

As against an approximate $200 expended annually on a boy or girl reared in the privacy of its own or a foster home, Mr. Spafford detailed the annual cost to the school of $687 for the same purpose. There are 712 children of soldiers and sailors at the institution he directs.

Col. Harry Hill, child probation officer of the Juvenile court of Cook county, informed the conference that many needy boys and girls are being placed in boarding homes by the court at the low figure of $20 a month. An annual appropriation of $350,000 from the Cook county board defrays the expense of the work, so valuable in directing the lives of these wards of the community into channels leading to useful citizenship rather than dependency and crime.

The popular conception of the Juvenile Detention home as a place for criminal children is a fallacy, Col. Hill declared. It should be regarded, he declared, as a haven for youngsters who need medical and mental help, and guidance in vocational training.

For the first time in the history of the Episcopal church in Chicago a native East Indian was ordained into the ministry yesterday. He is John Aaron, a student at the Western Theological seminary. The ordination took place at St. Mark's church, Evanston, with the Rt. Rev. Frank A. McElwain, bishop of Minnesota, officiating. The Rev. H. L. Bowen, rector of St. Mark's, delivered the ordination sermon, and the candidate was presented for ordination by the Rev. A. E. Knickerbocker, rector of St. Paul's church, Minneapolis.

Mr. Aaron's father was a minister of the Anglican church and died in the mission fields of India. Mr. Aaron said he will start back for Madras within a short time.

City's Dentists Offer Free Examinations to School Children

Every pupil in the city's schools may have a free dental examination during Youth week, May 8 to 14, it was announced yesterday by Dr. Charles R. Baker, president of the Chicago Dental society. School teachers will be provided with examination cards, which, when properly signed, may be presented by children to any member of the dental society for an examination. The Chicago Medical society announced recently that its members will give school children free physical examinations during the week to enable parents to correct defects which may be hindering their children in school.

Tag Sales Today Will Aid Aged and Adult Charities

Hundreds of volunteer tag sellers will be out today in the annual drive for the benefit of Chicago's aged and indigent. The tags will be sold for whatever the purchaser wishes to pay and the proceeds will go to the Federation of Aged and Adult Charities. Last year $94,593 was raised in the tag sale.

Charges School Waste of 85% in Arithmetic

Washington, D. C., May 1.—(AP)—Eighty-five per cent of the arithmetical instruction to school pupils should be eliminated, in the opinion of Dr. Robert K. Speer of New York university. He regards most of it "dead wood."

In a speech tonight, Dr. Speer said: "Who cares if children are not proficient in complex fractions, arithmetical ratios, foreign exchange, arithmetical and geometrical progression, involution, square, and cubic root?

"If we teach all the children, the arithmetic necessary in the following activities—buying at a store, making change, reading, writing letters, and traveling—we will have covered a large percentage of their total use of arithmetic."

New York, May 1.—(AP)—The 110th anniversary of the birth of Ulysses S. Grant was commemorated at his Riverside drive tomb today with a parade of patriotic organizations. Five members of the Stalhelm, German war veteran organization, paid their respects.

"SKY BRIDE."
Produced by Paramount.
Directed by Stephen Roberts.
Presented at the Oriental theater.
THE CAST.

Speed Condon ..... Richard Arlen
Alec Dugan ..... Jack Oakie
Ruth Dunning ..... Virginia Bruce
Willie ..... Robert Coogan
Jim Carmichael ..... Charles Starrett
Mrs. Smith ..... Louise Closser Hale
Eddie ..... Tom Douglas
Bill Adams ..... Harold Goodwin

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!

Item: There's nary a bride, sky or otherwise, in this number. "Sky Bride" is the name of an airplane.

Here's a movie that has plenty of good acting but that fails to ring the bell because of too obvious efforts to thrill you and elicit your sympathy. It is dedicated to those brave, rash lads, the stunt flyers.

The first scenes are principally devoted to the brilliant and dangerous flying of three pals who, with their genial barker, and also pal, make the hick towns at circus time and endeavor to wangle a living by taking passengers up after the show is over.

Time and again the barker has begged the boys not to take the chances they do—but the words of "Mother Dugan," as they call him, are wasted. Comes a day when a miscalculation results in a crash which kills the "baby" of the trio, young Eddie Smith. "Speed" Condon, whose "Sky Bride" has caused the tragedy, cracks up—and disappears.

Faithfully Dugan and Bill Adams search for him. Then, broke, and under obligation to send money home, Bill is forced to abandon the hunt. That leaves Dugan a lone trailer.

At last he discovers "Speed" where you before have located him. Plane shy, morbid and utterly wretched, he's working as mechanic at an airport—and living at the boarding house run by a dear old Mrs. Smith, whose interests in life are her boarders—the boys from the airport—, her tiny orphaned grandson and the son she believes to be "flying somewhere."

A happy old lady till, one day, she learns from a belated letter that her darling has met death by accident . . .

"Speed" "finds" himself through a spectacular act of bravery—which saves Mrs. Smith from another crushing sorrow.

Arlen and Oakie really do wonders with the material they had to work with and the supporting players offer competent aid, with the exception of Virginia Bruce, who may be an actress some day.

(Some of the flying IS remarkable).

On the stage — "Zombie" — fresh from its recent run at the Adelphi. If you didn't see it then here's your chance to get an eyeful of Pauline Starke, in whom you were so interested when she was a movie actress.

"DIE LINDENWIRTIN VOM RHEIN."

Produced by Tobis.
Directed by Georg Jacoby.
Presented at the Cinema theater.
THE CAST.

This is a German musical comedy of no particular merit. The picture is long—one hour and thirty-five minutes long, to be exact. It tells an involved story that even English titles don't make any too clear. Neither music, singing, nor acting makes much impression on you, and, while the action and German dialogue elicit some laughter from German patrons, there wasn't a chuckle in the carload for me.

The picture's assets are its settings and scenery.

All that's all I can think of to say about "Die Lindenwirtin vom Rhein."

See you tomorrow!

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The exhibition which opens today in the Chicago galleries, 220 North Michigan avenue, is like a chain of jewels strung along the walls. The paintings glow with color and enhance by contrast the different beauties of their neighbors. Each picture is a gem. Taken together their instant effect is one of great beauty.

Perhaps, if we consider the round of paintings as a chain of precious stones, the clasp should be the magnificent, somber, grim and tragic, the relentless "New God" by Byron Boyd, a portrayal of Lenin's tomb in Moscow to which is wending its slow way a procession of pilgrims, the modern devouts in a religion which is of man's making. On either side the glitter and gleam of more colorful canvases, though none more effective, attract us.

Charles P. Killgore offers a stunning mountainscape, a rainbow shining faintly above the broad shoulders of the high Sierras.

Frederick V. Tellander shows his intriguing "Book Stalls Along the Seine" and his fascinating "Breakers," a wide sweep of wet sand with the waves sucking reluctantly at its smooth, yielding breast and further out more eager waves running gallantly in, lit with the green and dark blue of depth and bearing a white plume of foam on their crest.

Claude Buck gives as a charming portrait of his little son before a table of colored scraps, "The Stamp Collector," Joseph Allworthy lives up to his reputation in a brilliant, smooth still life and surpasses it in a portrait of a model in gypsy dress. Lucie Hartrath offers "Blue Days and Fair," a summer landscape in Brown county. Jessie Arms Botke shows two delightful canvases, the one of deep sea fish and the other of swans.

J. Wellington Reynolds submits a gloriously fair Madonna and Child, in the mood of the Italian primitive, lovely and delicate in color and composition. Marshall D. Smith offers several picturesque canvases, one of the finest the "Gate-Fez." John F. Stacey shows a beautiful landscape, "Chateau Gaillard," and J. Jeffrey Grant has stirring work in his "Merry-Go-Round" and "Sea and Rocks."

The exhibition will continue through May. It is well worth seeing.

Chicago Story League.

Puppet Shows in Revival in U. S. Theaters

Entertainment Older than Civilization.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Puppetry, riding the crest of the wave of revival, presents the curious anomaly of the oldest and the newest in theatrical taste.

The little characters without egotism [and that is why their interpretations are superhuman, Gordon Craig of the Moscow Art theater explains] are older than most civilizations. Out of them grew the theater as we know it today. But only in the last year or two in this country have they engaged the attention of regular theater goers.

Chicagoans, who, by the way, are making puppets, studying puppets, and talking puppets, are soon to have an opportunity to see a performance that clings nicely to the ancient traditions of the puppet theater. It is "Stringing Broadway," the program the Tatterman Marionettes are bringing the week of May 8 to the Goodman theater—with the backing of society since a share of the proceeds will benefit the North Avenue Day nursery.

A musical revue satirizing everyone from Coolidge to little Red Riding Hood, it recalls the European "enfant terrible" that ridiculed with impunity the politics, fashions, and celebrities of a bygone day. Among those most interested in this sophisticated puppet performance is Mrs. Nathaniel Owings, the former Emily Otis.

There is always a certain amount of confusion concerning these terms—"puppets" and "marionettes," words frequently used interchangeably. Puppet is a general term applied to any kind of moving figure or doll in a dramatic performance, according to old Noah Webster. There are many kinds of puppets, but they fall roughly into three main classes—marionettes, shadow puppets, and guignols.

The marionette is a jointed figure operated from a wooden or metal control in the hands of the operator and suspended on wires or strings. Shadow puppets are two dimensional figures, usually made of parchment or an animal hide which has been stiffened, and operated between a strong light and a screen so that only their shadows are seen. This type of puppet is especially popular in China, Greece, and Turkey, and many of the figures are transfucent and beautifully colored. The Field museum, by the way, has one of the finest collections of Chinese shadow puppets in the world. The third type of puppet is the guignol—the familiar "Punch and Judy" type operated by thrusting the hand inside the hollow body of the doll.

These distinctions were explained the other day by Miss Edith Zahringer of 5130 Ellis avenue, who in the last year and a half has become a puppet enthusiast. Her house is full of puppets; she has already produced five plays; and spends all of her leisure making new puppets or perfecting the old.

"I have had two big incentives in taking up puppetry as a hobby," explained Miss Zahringer, who instructs in public speaking in a south side convent. "One was the visit of that Englishman, Hilary Pepler, famous for the puppet shows given in his barn in Ditchling, England. The second ties up with my work. I was having a good deal of difficulty with a group of nuns in a class in public speaking when I remarked one day, 'You ought to try talking behind a curtain.'"

"This suggested a puppet show," she continued, "and presto! what it did for the public speaking class was amazing. Best remedy for timidity you can imagine."

Miss Zahringer went on to explain that the origin of the puppet is still something of a mystery—some authorities say it came into being along with fairy tales on the banks of the Ganges "in the old wonderland of India." Others claim Egypt as the birthplace of the little figures, among them Dr. Berthold Laufer of our own Field Museum. The tombs of ancient Thebes and Memphis have yielded up many small painted puppets of ivory and wood whose limbs can be moved by pulling a string—mostly the images of gods.

A list of famous people down through the ages who have been devoted to puppet entertainment is quite astonishing. There is evidence that Archimedes, Socrates, and Plato were regular patrons of the marionette theater and that the Roman emperor Antiochus was so delighted with the art that he had a staff of puppeteers as part of his royal household. Charles V. of Spain and Louis XIV. of France also required the continual presence of puppet troupes in their palaces.

There is almost no end to the list of great literary figures who have written for or about marionettes—Shakespeare, Ben Jonson, Cervantes, Voltaire, Goethe, George Sand, Anatole France, Materlinck, Bernard Shaw, and Schnitzler. Michael Angelo modeled puppet heads [unfortunately lost] and Haydn, Mozart, and Gounod composed music for the puppet theater.

Wife Is Willing to Be Hostess to Mate's Flame

Doris Says She Deserves to Be Called "Poor Fish."

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The sympathy expected of some wives passeth all understanding!

It's all right, commendable even, to bring adult experience to weighing certain lapses on husbands' parts and be tolerant and forgiving. But when the gentleman of the house argues in favor of bringing his sweetheart into his home on the grounds of a passion for the lady he cannot overcome, it is just about time for the wife to rise up in her righteous wrath and flay him with a few stinging comments on her own need of sympathy and understanding.

The case in point includes the reappearance of an old flame in a husband's life. When the man married his wife he believed he was over this earlier passion. Everything was going along smoothly in the domestic menage until one night he broke down and told his wife of his feeling for the old girl. Or, as the wife describes the occasion:

"One evening he came out with a question. He asked me if it was possible that a person could love two people at the same time in the same way and felt that he could not do without either of them?"

Then followed the disclosure about the old girl and the request to bring her into their home.

We have had this situation presented in some of our news thrillers. One you recall, no doubt, was of comparatively recent happening. There are some persons who argue for the nobility of a wife who makes hostess of herself for her husband's amour. To us, the wife in such position appears nothing so much as a first class illustration of that well known member of the fish family broadly advertised as not entitled to an even break.

There are certain dignities that any human must conform to in order to inspire respect. There are unquestionably dignities that a woman, especially a wife, must uphold in spite of open hearted generosity and sympathy. She has rights that must be retained. She has a position that, for the sake of her sisters as well as herself, she should hold impregnable, whatever the man may do outside of the home.

Truly, we cannot offer much sympathy to a woman who willingly exposes herself to the bad break that human history indicates will be hers if she affirms the Mormonic request.

Time Needed to Overcome the Habits of Years

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Question: "I am a young mother with a boy and girl 4 and 8. I have been in such poor health that I had to be away from them for three years. On my return I find them absolutely unruly, impudent to me and disobedient. Now comes the task of training the children.

Answer: You were away from the children at a time very difficult for them. From one year old to four carried the boy from babyhood to little childhood. This is a time when important early habits and associations are being formed.

The little girl was from five to eight when you were away. These years carry a child into quite a measure of independence in both mind and body. Consequently, they need careful guidance, then.

Appreciate these facts and it will help you to the patience you will need over a long period of time. You have a task but you can accomplish it if you do these things: First, do not blame the children in your own mind; second, understand them; third, make it your business to learn how to manage them.

Reading will help you a great deal. If you do not know what to read, we have booklets on such subjects as obedience, shyness and patience. Also, lists of brief reading for mothers.

Question: "Our library here is very modest, but I would like to get from you some advice for reading on progressive education. Can you list a few books?"

Answer: The ideas underlying progressive education are best understood by reading various books rather than one. If these books are not in your library I suppose you know that many public libraries will purchase books at your request for circulation. How about seeing if a pay circulation library will not do so? Then you might tell others about the books available.

Here are a few good ones:

"New Schools."
"Better Schools."
"Youth in a World of Men." [This is very general, but excellent.]
"Creative Power."
"Creative Youth."

Also, the magazine called Progressive Education is fine.

Details of author, publisher and so forth will be sent on request and receipt of stamped self addressed envelope.

Warn Gardeners of Disappointment in Seedling Trees

BY PAUL POTTER.

Seedling trees are not always to be trusted to develop into the same sort of trees from whence their seed has dropped. Quite often one discovers a young cherry or apple seedling coming up in a corner of the yard and is tempted to allow it to grow.

The chances are great that it would be better to hoe out the young plant and that it would not develop into a fruiting tree or one that is shapely for shade and decorative purposes. Nursery trees, of the sort now on the market in great variety and at such low prices, are really parts of two plants.

In other words, a seedling root has been cut off at the nursery and the top from a tree of known value budded into this root stock. Both shade and fruit trees take several years to mature. They occupy considerable area in the yard. Hence it is useless to speculate on the stray seedlings when known value is to be obtained so economically. Rather isolated fruit trees which have matured and bear lightly often prove to be self-sterile. The use of bouquets of flowering limbs from varieties congenial to the barren tree is helpful in such cases.

Dr. Robert Millikan Will Give Thomas Lecture Tonight

Dr. Robert A. Millikan president of the California Institute of Technology and former president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, will deliver the Hiram W. Thomas lecture tonight at the University of Chicago, on the subject of "This Changing World."

Thirty Years in Far North Told in Book

Amazing Story of Life in Arctic Circle.

"Thirty Years in the Golden North," by Jan Welzl. [Macmillan.] Published tomorrow.

IT was only by chance that a journalist who knew the value of Welzl's experiences opened the letter which Jan Welzl sent to the Lidové Noviny, a Czech newspaper. The journalist, intrigued by the letter, though it was a confused account of a polar hunting expedition, went to see Welzl and arranged with him to record his life in the north in a way that could be understood by every one.

Welzl told his fascinating story to Edvard Valenta and B. Golombek, who visited him informally over a period of two months and learned all about his life up to that time. A more detailed account of this interesting piece of luck and the ensuing developments appears in the introduction to "30 Years in the Golden North." Welzl, an uneducated man, revealed in his talks with these two journalists a sometimes amazing naïveté which made it difficult indeed to determine whether many of the fantastic things related were his own experiences or merely fancy and hearsay mixed inextricably with fact.

It was a difficult task to put this book together, but it is obvious to the reader that the numerous and enthralling experiences collected and put between the covers are well worth the efforts of Jan Welzl and his collaborators.

This book tells the story of Jan Welzl, a Czech by birth and a locksmith by trade, who decided that there was more chance for a young man to be his own master in the far north. So he packed his worldly goods, which were practically none, bought himself a cart and horse and traveled across the dangerous wilds of Siberia. He was landed, by a whaling ship, on the island of New Siberia in the Arctic circle. He became a trader and was soon one of the most prosperous men on the island. He traveled to Alaska and Canada and San Francisco and took a trip down the Yukon when the gold boom was on. His adventures include the fantastic, the utterly perilous, the humorous and always the interesting.

Early in the book it is evident that Jan Welzl's object in life is to make money in a big way. His trading activities bring him in a lot of money with which he buys a whaling ship. From one thing to another he goes, earning money and becoming "the big business man" of the north. As a final reward for his experiences and the variety of his interests and activities the natives and polar settlers make him the chief of New Siberia with the power of life and death. With this election the first volume ends. The last phrase, "But there are other stories to tell about all these things," indicates that there is a second volume to come.

The brilliant and simple descriptions of the north, the polar twilights, the great blizzards and frosts, and the tides make reading that is thrilling and effective. For instance, "At the next high tide the ice was very thick and offered resistance to the sea, which was squeezing against it from below. The sea pressed harder and harder, until suddenly the ice gave way before the thrust of the tide, pieces of it whizzed through the air and from all sides could be heard a sort of dreadful bellowing, the rocks bore the brunt of crash after crash, and the thunderclaps now became continuous, like a long spell of gunfire. It made me feel that I would go crazy." Many people, he goes on to say, were driven mad by the noise and dashed out into the unbearable cold to meet their deaths. There are many descriptions of the arctic climate and scenery, all of which seems almost too fantastic to be true.

Jan Welzl tells many curious things about the life and the customs of the uncivilized Eskimo in New Siberia. He says that the Eskimo women on his island bear their first child when they are between six and eight years of age. The child is given a bath, which is the first and last bath in his entire lifetime. The average span of a woman's life is twenty-two years, a man's around forty. He says that when an Eskimo has been sick for a month the household decides that he is no longer of any use, so some one takes the person out and kills him.

There are many tales about the Eskimo's life and customs, his religious festivals, his sports and recreations. The Eskimo that Jan Welzl describes is frankly primitive and his habits and customs reveal that he has had little if any contact with civilization.

In the chronicling of the author's adventures some of the most astounding and incredible bits of information come out about the Eskimo prophets and their function in Eskimo life. In this book the reader will find, in a charming, disarming and simple style, a vast store of information, useful and otherwise, on nearly every phase of life in the golden north. M. D.

ENGAGEMENT

Dr. and Mrs. Alfred S. Burdick of Ravinia announce the engagement of their niece, Miss Ora L. Brown, to Jerry F. Leaming, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Leaming of Highland Park. Miss Brown was graduated from the University of Chicago and Mr. Leaming from the University of Illinois.

Movie Actresses Show Two Types of Eyebrow Beauty

The elongated eyebrow, extending almost to the cheekbone ridge, as worn by Greta Garbo, is a favorite with many women.

French Outfits for Women Who Rise in World

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Since women have risen so high in the world that they have taken to saying it in airplanes, it is time Paris fashions did something about it. If you are going to hop in your plane and light on a friend's lawn in another country or state for tea you might as well land in the latest Paris style.

It was Baroness Accurti of Ardanse who realized that more and more smart women, of the British aristocracy particularly, were taking to flying, and it was she who designed the costume shown today for the aviatrix who wants to be as chic as she is daring.

This dress is in a supple but warmth giving jersey which has narrow yellow stripes. And stripes, incidentally, are one of the badges of sports chic for spring. This particular dress, which is rather fitted, has sleeves which become fuller near the wrist, where they are caught into a close fitting band. This sleeve fullness comes from an inserted bias band on the outside of the arm, near the wrist. It is trimmed with two buttons.

The bodice and center panel of the skirt are made in one piece. The fullness of the skirt comes in the godets, which start above the knees on either sides of the front panel. The belt does not go all away around the waist, but starts at the front sides and fastens in back on the left side.

Inter Nos Circle.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Suiting the eyebrows to the face is a branch of beauty interest that could bear more study. It is curious how new worlds are ever popping up to be conquered in a beauty way. This eyebrow business has been getting some attention always, but for the last year or so women are studying it for all there is in it pictorially.

It is amazing what a change can be made in a face with just a clearing out of the too heavy growth, especially if the clearing is done from underneath. Ordinarily, women do their tweezing from the "body" of the eyebrow line or trim along the upper line. Perhaps with some this works out satisfactorily enough. Next time you are thinning yours out you might try the under treatment, though. It makes a slight and often a flatteringly lifted line of brow when you clean out the excess hairs from underneath.

It's startling the effect often gained with an eyebrow thinning that does not suit the face. I note in older women the facial damage is usually more marked than on the young one when a line of brow is adopted that does not suit face and feature. Especially on the highly rouged and perhaps bleached or dyed type of older woman is this true. Young faces manage to survive almost any assault. They might be prettier with the right line, but the wrong line of brow never hardens or changes for the worse the young face so much as it does the older one.

There is a tendency at the moment to have the brows slanting upwards toward the temples. Possibly this is a Marlene Dietrich influence. But all women haven't the Dietrich beauty of face to support this odd shaping of brow. The Garbo elongated brow extending almost to cheekbone ridge has many favorites. On the right types these unusual eyebrow shapings may be attractive and arresting—but they do not suit every one.

You see an occasional woman, striving for originality, whose brows appear to begin in the middle of the usual line. If she is original enough every other way, well and good—but it's not an eyebrow model to copy generally.

The arched brow, for which the struggle used to be put up by all women, is no longer an arbitrary ruling. Quite often a face is improved with the brows shaped in a fairly direct line with a slight lift at the bridge of the nose. Anita Page's most recent photos show this uplift.

You may have to do a bit of experimenting to get just the right eyebrow line for your particular face. You can use a pencil to mark the outline before you begin plucking or tweezing. Anyway, here is a facial feature that bears looking into so that you may add one more asset to your already accumulated charms.

New Dollhouse of Mrs. Thorne Nearly Done

Home Decorations Praised in Magazines.

the tea room will be formally opened to the public at noon today. The dining room is a special feature of the building, having been copied after a Parisian restaurant by Mrs. Ralph Small, who did the decorating of the residence.

Assisting Mrs. Hodgkins as hostesses will be Mrs. Howard W. Fenton, Mrs. Melvin A. Traylor, and Mrs. Bryan S. Reid. Mrs. Allan M. Clement is chairman of the building committee.

Mrs. Alvin T. McCord will conduct a book sale tomorrow at the White Elephant Rummage shop at 27 East Ohio street. Assisting in the capacity of saleswomen will be Mrs. Alfred C. Croftan, Mrs. M. Knickerbocker Woods, and Mrs. Edgar C. Rowe.

Society Makes Summer Plans.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark J. Lawrence of Hubbard Woods are planning to divide the summer between their farm in Wisconsin and the Adirondacks while their children, Nancy Blaine and John Lawrence, are away at summer camps.

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Harrington and family of 232 East Walton place will move out to Lake Forest for the summer on June 8.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster of 2704 Lake View avenue are moving out to their Lake Forest house the end of this week to spend the summer there.

Mrs. Frank R. Meadowcroft of the Webster hotel will depart in early June to spend the summer in Maine.

"The Rockefeller McCormick New Testament—a Bryzantine Art Gallery" will be the topic of an address by Dr. Edgar J. Goodspeed on Wednesday afternoon at the Chicago Woman's club, under the auspices of the club's summer activities committee.

THE STAGE

Donizetti's "Don Pasquale," offered in English as an operatic comedy, is announced by the Blackstone theater for an opening May 16. Vittorio Trevisan, the buffo-basso of many opera seasons, will be the star of the company. The title rôle of this piece is a happy medium for his gifts as a singing actor.

Oscar Shaw, until recently one of the stars of "Everybody's Welcome," has formed a theatrical producing firm. His first venture will be a musical comedy of the intimate type, with himself as its star.

"Counselor-at-Law," which will be crowded out of the Selwyn theater next week by "The Devil Passes," will be moved to the Erlanger theater to continue its run, unless there is a last minute change of plan. "The Blue Mask," which will surrender the stage of the Grand Opera house to George M. Cohan's "Confidential Service" next Sunday night, may be transferred to the Great Northern theater.

The Theater Guild's touring company of "Mourning Becomes Electra," headed by Judith Anderson and Florence Reed, will begin an engagement at the Alvin theater, New York, May 9, to replace the original company, which has moved to Boston. This arrangement will give Broadway an opportunity to compare the two casts and perhaps to revise its opinion that nothing could be better than the performances of Alice Brady, as the vengeful daughter, and of Alla Nazimova, as the lustful mother, in Eugene O'Neill's triple decked tragedy.

The Stage, a magazine which continues the tradition of the Theater Guild Monthly, although not under the management of that organization, has placed a new candidate in nomination for the Pulitzer drama prize of the year. It is "Night Over Taos," by Maxwell Anderson, which was staged by the Group Theater, an offshoot of the Guild.

Intricate Cut Gives Slender Line to Frock

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

The bias cut of the bodice, accented by button trim, with a similar treatment at the front of the skirt, gives a charming slender appearance to this smart frock. The one sided rever, pretty and feminine, ends in a bow. The original dress was made of a small patterned silk crêpe in blue and white. Plain silk crêpes and sheer woolens are also suitable for this daytime dress.

The pattern, 2749, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years, and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material with ½ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

Did you ever want to sail into the neighbor who insists that she "throws together" a cake and "whacks up" a batch of biscuits as the family comes tearing in to dinner?

I have.

It sounds so superbly speedy—and isn't.

If only there were fewer spoonfuls, cups and pinches of this and that in the things we eat, how much more fun cooking would be—and how much fewer the hurry lines in our foreheads!

Six months ago I was heatedly discussing this universal household worry with a neighbor—a woman of long years of experience in the art and science of cooking. She put an idea into my head. And today I no longer have to shrug as I smile at the terms "whack up" and "throw together." For she showed me a way to get my biscuits and cakes ready to pop into the oven almost as soon as the wish for them has popped into my head.

My culinary friend calls the solution to our problems "mother's mixups" [the name was her small daughter's—not patented]. These "mixups" are really prepared flours—not grocery products, but strictly home grown affairs based on our own pet recipes. And, as a member of the Time Savers' union, I want to pass on to you the secret of this clever time saving device.

Let's start with muffins. Choose your favorite recipe and multiply each dry ingredient—flour, sugar, baking powder, and salt—by eight. Measure out the amounts exactly. Sift these all together several times and consign the "mixup" to a large cereal box or tin containers with tight fitting lids.

The following ingredients went into my box:

4 quarts flour.
2 cups sugar.
½ cup baking powder.
4 teaspoons salt.

On the outside of the box paste a label telling how much moist ingredient—fat, milk and egg—you will need for one batch of muffins; also how much of "mother's mixups" [one-eighth of the total, of course].

My label read:

1 egg.
1 cup milk.
4 tablespoons melted butter or oil.
2 1-3 cups "Mother's Mixup."

Combine all the moist ingredients and stir them into the "mixup," using not more than twenty-five strokes. Don't expect to have the batter smooth, or the muffins will be full of holes and will have tough, unattractive crusts. Turn the batter into greased gem tins and bake in a hot oven [410 degrees F.]. It will take fifteen minutes for small gems and about twenty-five for the larger muffins.

If you cover the mixture tightly, your "mixup" will keep indefinitely. And the next time the hopeful family demands a batch of mother's muffins, simply take three minutes—combine the waiting muffin "mixup" with the milk, egg, and melted fat, and whisk the pans into the oven.

So much for the muffin problem. Now, why not try "mixups" for baking powder biscuits, corn bread, griddle cakes, waffles, sponge cake, butter cake—whatever quick breads or cakes are most popular at your house? Lined up on the pantry shelf they have a comfortably reassuring look, and by thus doing a little forehanded planning you will have speeded the "whacking up" process 100 per cent.

HALLAHAN STOPS CUBS; CARDINALS WIN, 7-1

Favorites Out; Open Race, Say Experts.

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., May 1.—By the tragic mishap to Burning Blaze, leading western candidate, and the probable elimination of Top Flight, champion 2 year old and previous future book favorite, the fifty-eighth Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs next Saturday becomes the most open race in recent years. That is the consensus in this center of thoroughbred conversation, where no other subject than Derby colts and their chances even gets a hearing.

COL. E. R. BRADLEY

Those very considerations which removed these two leading contenders from calculations, however, added others to the list, so that possible starters still remain at 20, with prospects that 15 of this number may go to the post. Indeed, absence of Top Flight and Burning Blaze probably will add to the number of starters, rather than reduce the field, just on the theory that the $50,000 stake now is more open.

Mad Frump Coming West.

Track officials here have not received definite word from the C. V. Whitney stable, owner of Top Flight. Notice that Mad Frump from the same owner will make the western journey is accepted, however, as evidence that the filly which won more money last year than any horse of her sex ever compiled on the American turf, will be an absentee. These Kentucky hardboots accept that verdict as sound judgment, figuring in the absense of specific information either that the filly is not yet ready for the races or that she has gone back from her 2 year old form.

Genuine sympathy, in all quarters, was extended to the Nash Brothers of Chicago. Burning Blaze's injury was a cut, almost severing the small tendon at the back of the leg just above the heel. Whether he can be made ready for any late autumn races is doubtful.

Tick On Is Choice.

Of the twenty colts still remaining as possible starters Tick On, which finished second to Top Flight in the Pimlico Futurity and which was gaining at the end, is now the future book choice, with the Bradley pair, Brother Joe and Burgoo King, as second choices. Universe and Economic, which ran first and second in the Wood Memorial Saturday, in which Top Flight finished fourth, are notable accessions to the list, accession of whose chances little had been heard previously in these parts.

Early pace of six furlongs in 1:12 in that race, with Universe on top and Economic in attendance, and the fact that this pair fought it out through the stretch with Curaco, third, three lengths back at the end, convinced the chart followers that here was a genuine menace to Tick On, Bradley's pair, and all the others.

You may throw out, as horsemen say, one bad race if it be a first start, as when Tick On finished second to Springsteel, but when they win the first time out in the spring, with an apparent willingness to go on, there is genuine enthusiasm among those to whom racing is a serious subject.

Prize Lures Owners.

Now, with perhaps a half dozen eligibles standing out on their records, why will the others face the barrier, many of them with no apparent chance? Well, there's this open race prospect: there is the pride of an owner who estimates his nag more highly than others; there is the $500 starting fee against approximately $48,000 first money, and lesser rewards for second, third, and fourth.

Back of all this, too, is the opinion of some keen turf followers that the caliber of 1932 3 year olds is below usual standards. That thought was voiced by veteran turfmen even before Top Flight's foldup Saturday. Here's their argument: Colts normally should defeat fillies because they are stronger and larger.

Colts Are Below Par.

Top Flight was unbeaten as a two year old. Top Flight is a filly. Therefore 2 year old colts of 1931 were not up to standard. One may take this argument or leave it, because in turf history many notable mares have achieved success.

Except Tick On, already here, the eastern challengers are expected to arrive tomorrow. Possibly one or two may be added later, but that is doubtful, although Zev, winner in 1923, raced in the east on Tuesday and did not arrive at Churchill Downs until Thursday before the Derby. Here is the current list of possible starters:

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Wild Bill Hallahan, who was quite a hero in the late world series, cooked up a conspiracy yesterday which put an end to the Cubs' winning streak of seven games. Wild Bill treated them to a feast of walks, and in their haste to collect these gratuities the Chicagoans neglected their hitting. The Cardinals, however, displayed no such neglect against Guy Bush. They batted their usual nemesis almost at random and accomplished an easy 7 to 1 victory which nudged the Cubs out of first place.

In doing an excellent job of living up to his nickname, Wild Bill dispensed ten free tickets to first base. He started five different innings in this reckless fashion. He went so far as to walk three men in one inning without being scored upon. But when it was a matter of hits he was almost as impregnable as a Scotchman. He was disturbed by only three singles, none of which came in the five closing innings. By way of encouraging him in his work his teammates helped to nullify his many passes by staging four double plays.

Twelve Hits Off Bush.

In contrast to Hallahan's way of doing business, Bush gave up only one base on balls. There may have been a reason for this. The Cards didn't wait 'em out. They slapped everything which came close, and the success of this style is attested by twelve hits for twenty bases in the first seven innings. George Watkins was the chief contributor to the long distance feature with a homer and a double out of three hits. Rip Collins, after kicking up one disturbance with a single, added to the extra base total by tripling and bringing in another scoring epidemic in the seventh.

The Cardinal run which started the day's scoring in the second inning was Hack's gift to the downtrodden champions. He made a low throw to first on Blade's grounder. Pepper lined into Richbourg's hands, but Wilson nicked the bricks in the left field corner with a double and Blades ran home. Jurges made a fast play to throw out Gelbert. Bush invited more trouble for himself by walking Hallahan. This gave Adams a chance to commit some of his customary mischief, but the best he could produce was a fly to Richbourg.

Along Comes Watkins.

Bad news for Bush began to spread in the third when Frisch led off with a single to left. Bush got two strikes on Watkins and then probably figured he could sneak over a third. It didn't work. Watkins drove the ball into the top of the bleachers in right. The next two batters were handled easily but Pepper stirred up a slight fuss by singling to right. He stole second and continued to third on Hemsley's bad throw, but received no further assistance.

The Cubs put a lot of action into their half of the third, but all they got out of it was their lone run of the day. The fuss started with a walk to Jurges. He scooted to second while Frisch was throwing out Bush on a drive slowed down by Hallahan's bare hand. Hack singled to left and Jurges tried to score, but a beautiful throw by Pepper caught him sliding into the plate. Hack moved to second on the throwin and Hallahan tried to catch him off the base. The throw was wild, so Hack hustled to third and when Watkins' return peg rolled to the stand, Hack scored. Herman then walked and a single by Richbourg sent him to third. A double steal was started, but the Cards broke it up to end the inning.

Pepper Drives in Two.

A snappy double play, featuring Herman and Jurges, stopped the Cardinals after two had singled with one out in the fourth, but they made amends for this treatment in the fifth by reeling off three hits in succession. Collins singled to center with one out. Blades hoisted a low drive over Grimm's head for a double, Col-

Horses Gallop Today; Aurora, Sportsmen's Park Open Gates

BY FRENCH LANE.

Tannery, fresh from two brilliant victories at Lexington this spring, last night ruled as the favorite to win the Aurora handicap, which is the headliner at the Aurora track, where the Illinois racing season will be ushered in this afternoon.

Tannery beat such good ones as Joey Bibb, Bather, Betty Derr, and Gold Step in his Lexington triumphs, giving unmistakable signs that he is back in the same fine condition which won him so much backing in the Kentucky Derby of two years ago. So in the overnight speculation Tannery was held at 5 to 2, with William Schmidt's Chicago entry of Hyman and Supreme Sweet, the second choice, a half point back at 3 to 1.

There are 13 in the handicap field which is expected to mark the beginning of the most successful season the jockey club down in the Fox river valley ever has enjoyed.

No More Gets Backing.

The handicap gives promise of developing into the best race ever run over the Aurora track. There are more good horses in it than have ever contested for the prize before.

Considerable backing also developed last night for the C. E. Davidson entry of No More and Hot Shot. Chicago fans are not forgetting how No More rattled off six furlongs at Arlington Park last July in 1:10 1-5 to beat some of the best sprinters in the country. Six furlongs is the distance of this afternoon's handicap. The odds against No More and his roommate were 4 to 1.

Dr. Freeland, a Preakness winner of three years ago and since then victorious in many noted stakes, was somewhat overlooked in the betting. He was at 8 to 1, most of his admirers holding to the opinion that six furlongs is not far enough for him. However, the best race he has run lately, but he was pretty far advanced anyway. It looks as if Burgoo and I held the others safe.

"The east is something else again. I rate Universe and Economic right with Tick On, although we did not hear much of them until the Wood Memorial. Both were good last year.

"But here, Wake, is the situation. Burgoo and I have great incentive to win the Derby. Col. Bradley needs another pair to finish one-two to round out his turf career of some 40 years. You remember Behave Yourself and Black Servant in 1921 and Bubbling Over and Baggenbaggage in 1926. Just think if we could make it three times that way how we'd look to the colonel. Moreover Burgoo is a son of Bubbling Over and before we vanned over from the farm, the old man told Burgoo he'd lick the daylights out of him if he disgraced the family name. And Bubbling Over might do that.

"Another thing, we both can step in heavy going. You saw our workout Saturday over the full route. Wasn't it a beaut? We'll go at least once more like that. Of course, I outfooted Burgoo at the end, but he wasn't forced out. In fact, he might have been kidding when he finished four lengths back, for he's addicted to horseplay. Anyway, here's what I want to predict: That the Bradley colors will finish one-two for the third time in the history of the Kentucky Derby. I'll not say which of us will be on top, but I know what I think."

Just then Burgoo King pranced down from the sleeping porch and good naturedly, although sleepily, said: "Been listening to a lot of boloney, I see. Joey sure is the loud speaker. That came from his idleness last year while I was out earning oats for both of us. He's all right, at that," continued Burgoo King, as he muzzled his stablemate rather affectionately.

"How's the old man?" we asked.

"O, the Bubbler's fine physically, but he had some Insull stocks in the strong box, so he's pretty sour mentally. Said if I saw you to give you and French his regards and to ask if you still pulled on the old corncob pipe. Drop in some other time when Joey isn't around and I'll give you the real dope."

"What's the finish?" we queried.

"Bradley, one-two," Burgoo replied.

"Who'll be on top?"

"I'm too modest to answer, but it won't be Brother Joe," chuckled the King, as he let fly a playful heel into his stablemate's ribs.

So now, Wakers, you know just as much as we about the Bradley pair.

FEED BOX DOPE.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 1.—[Special.]—Wending our way among the stables at Churchill Downs this morning about an hour after daybreak, the Wake sought the Idle Hour farm barns of Col. E. R. Bradley, whose Brother Joe and Burgoo King have become the leading western representatives for the Kentucky Derby next Saturday since Burning Blaze broke down in his final tightening up race.

Burgoo King, after an exercise gallop and a fairly hearty breakfast, had returned to the sleeping porch for a little nap, but Brother Joe, now regarded by many as the more formidable of the pair, was seated in a comfortable chair out in front while the stable barber had lathered him for the morning shave. Brother Joe was attired in a green and white lounging robe of the stable colors with a light sweater beneath.

Between gasps of lather suds, Brother Joe whinnied "Good morning, Wake, old topper, it's fine to see you again. Nothing the matter with you that money won't cure, is there? Glad you turned up while the Rex is pounding the hay so I can tell you a few things first.

"You see Burgoo and I are pals because we're in the same stable, but it's like playing contract with the wife—each of us thinks he's better than the other and indeed the stable is divided on the subject. Of course, you want the wife to win because you're partners and a tenth of a cent a point is something these days, but don't they make some strange bids?

"Well, you see I didn't rate much as a 2 year old—out of the money in both starts. Burgoo didn't take so many bows either, but like Tick On he was getting better toward the end of the season and looked as if he was a stayer, and you have to stay to get anywhere in this Derby so early in the season. Top Flight beat both of them in the Pimlico futurity, but they both were going faster than she was at the end of that mile and sixteenth.

—o—

"Although I feel sorry for the kid on her showing in the Wood Memorial, neither Burgoo nor I took her as seriously as many experts. She was a rather sensible youngster and consistent, too—one can't deny that—but the best of these babes get flighty about her age and think too much about parties and the boys.

"Now you know the dope as well as I do, perhaps better, but I suppose you want to know what we think we have to beat. Here in the west, Liberty Limited is dangerous if he is right. He hasn't been working much lately, but he was pretty far advanced anyway. It looks as if Burgoo and I held the others safe.

"The east is something else again. I rate Universe and Economic right with Tick On, although we did not hear much of them until the Wood Memorial. Both were good last year.

"But here, Wake, is the situation. Burgoo and I have great incentive to win the Derby. Col. Bradley needs another pair to finish one-two to round out his turf career of some 40 years. MORIARTY QUIT TO PROHIBITION, BUT HE WAS REGULAR

Yales Revere His Grocery with Back Room.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 1.—[Special.]—It is not safe to submit an illusion to inspection, argument and evidence. In a recent piece about Ed Moriarty, an old man who had sold ale to the young Yales for many years, I was misled by some of his obituary notices to believe that he had continued to sell ale to the Yales without regard for prohibition until the time of his recent death.

He was honored posthumously in many affectionate writings and it occurred to me that he had occupied the same position in the social scheme at New Haven that the revered Benny Havens, the bootlegger, occupied at West Point where cadets and alumni still sing his name softly in the anthem of the military academy which begins, "In the army there's sobriety promotion's very slow."

I have, however, a communication from an old Yale, Deak Lyman, who indicates that Moriarty was a Benny Havens in all respects except that he never was a bootlegger. For that matter, in the modern sense, neither was Benny Havens. Benny was licensed to sell mildly alcoholic beverages to the West Point cadets of the classes shortly before the civil war.

Quaffing Was O. K.

But he had an obstinate notion that young men who were men enough to carry muskets in war were men enough to carry their liquor in time of peace, so he did not abide by the superintendent's definition of a mildly alcoholic beverage. He sold mild whisky and mild, nutritious rum to the cadets until he became a nuisance and was put off the grounds.

Thereupon he established a civilian saloon convenient to the reservation and resumed dealing, subject only to the liberal customs which applied to the liquor business everywhere. The officers apparently continued to patronize Benny Havens for some years but the cadets, presumably, were unable to frequent his place because they are not allowed to leave the reservation even now and the restrictions of their liberty were much more confining then.

Maj. Gen. William R. Smith, who retired as superintendent Saturday, was recalling not long ago that when he was a cadet the prejudice against athletics was so strong that he was sentenced to walk the area with a rifle and pack a certain number of hours for playing catch with another cadet. But if he had been come upon by an officer as he sat drinking ale or wine with another cadet under proper conditions there would have been no offense.

Eddie Had a Grocery.

Deak Lyman writes: "Eddie Moriarty ran Tuttle's grocery store on Broadway, New Haven, and his place was just that. A grocery store. But there was a wide open backroom, visible from the street. In addition to the door, there was a window which opened from the store into the backroom with its chairs, its pot bellied stove, old safe and an old fashioned, high, bookkeeper's desk.

"Through that window from a small copper sink, Eddie used to pass helpings of Tuttle's cream ale which he poured from a copper flagon. Eddie wore a straw hat in the store, summer and winter, when he didn't go bald. If you wanted something to eat with your ale, he would dish a hatful of crackers from a barrel and cut off a wedge of store cheese [somewheres

CHEERING UP THE CHAMPIONS

Ray Blades, Cardinal outfielder, leaps toward first base as Charley Grimm reaches for Stanley Hack's low throw in the second inning of the game in which St. Louis halted the Cubs' winning streak, 7 to 1. German Champs Prove Their Right to Fight Chicagoans

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 1.—Three of the German boxing champions who will meet Chicago's Golden Gloves team at Soldier's field July 26 proved themselves again tonight, earning the cheers of a throng which gathered in an auditorium to witness the opening of an international boxing tournament, which has drawn the best punchers and boxers in Germany, Hungary, Italy, and Denmark.

The three who competed tonight and who will be among the eight Teuton champions to invade Chicago were Heinrich Schleinkofer, featherweight; Herbert Bernioehr, middleweight, and Max Schiller, light heavyweight. The first two won their fights easily, while Schiller, although he lost a decision, demonstrated he is still capable of holding down a place on the German team.

First Real Test.

The tournament tonight was the first real test any of the German champions have had in outside competition, and it was a testimonial to the new enthusiasm for boxing which has spread throughout the republic since March 30, when the national championships were decided and it was announced the victors would represent Germany against THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's Golden Gloves team this summer.

The international interest among German fans was first evinced last year when a team of Teuton punchers defeated a group of American amateurs touring Europe. The news that this years champions would compete in Chicago has increased interest in boxing all over Germany, since every section of the republic sent its representatives to the national tourney in March.

The three young punchers who already had won their places on the team were cheered throughout their bouts, but it was a young Berlin featherweight not among the eight chosen to go to America who stole the show. He is Hans Moehl, who outpointed the European champion, Enkes of Hungary, so convincingly that officials of the German Boxing association decided he will be given a chance to make the trip to Chicago.

Five Champs not Competing.

The other five members of the German championship team are not taking part in the international tournament, due to minor injuries or inability to compete because of their jobs. They are Hubert Ausboeck, 23 year old Munich business man who won the flyweight crown in March; Herbert Donner, Berlin newsboy, lightweight; Erich Campe, Berlin policeman, welterweight; Emil Spannagel of Breman, bantamweight, and Peter Voosen, Cologne policemen, heavyweight. The German Boxing association had advised them to keep out of competition lest some mishap should prevent their making the trip to Chicago.

Schleinkofer, who makes his living as a carpenter in Munich and who was a member of the German team which defeated the Americans last year, had little trouble in his bout tonight, winning a decision over Allesandri of Italy. Bernioehr, a 23 year old locksmith from Stuttgart and another veteran in international competition, defeated Szigetti of Hungary. Schiller, a Munich bookkeeper, lost to Joergenson of Denmark.

Wes Ferrell Picks on Our Chicago Boys Again.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., May 1.—The White Sox this afternoon brought a glorious road trip to a glorious close when they took their seventh straight licking at the hands of the Cleveland Indians, 11 to 1. On the trip the Sox lost eight out of nine starts and Hadley, a pitcher now departed, had to strike out two men in the ninth to save the one victory. Rain and cold saved them three days, however.

Gaston's Not So Bad.

And if you hunger for such statistics we further will advise you that it was the eleventh beating out of the last dozen starts. Incidentally the affair was Wes Ferrell's fifth victory of the season and his second against the Sox, as compared with no defeats whatsoever. And now that we have got into this sort of thing, we may as well tell you that the Indians now have piled up eight wins in a row.

The game as a whole was not as sloppy as the score indicates. Milt Gaston pitched a rather creditable game during the seven innings he worked. He allowed only six hits and and only six balls got out of the infield. The catch in it is that two of the hits were looping homers over the short right field fence, which so distresses callers at this port, even though the fence is as close while they are at bat as it is when the home boys are doing their stuff. One of the homers was by Averill, his fifth in eight days, and the other, good for two runs, was by Porter.

The score was 4 to 1 when Gaston went out. McKain started the eighth and got caught in a hurricane which young Bob Poser could not halt. The net of the inning was seven runs, on seven hits.

Averill Hits Home Run.

The Sox got off to a one run start in the first inning. Seeds beat out a bunt down the third base foul line and after Selph had flied to Porter was forced by Blue. Kress singled to deep short, Blue stopping at second. Then Fonseca made his first hit of the year, a single to left. The smack scored Blue, but Kress was out. Vos-

MARKS AT DRAKE EXCEL PENN IN 10 OF 19 EVENTS

Events Give Good Index of Olympic Prospects.

The comparison of records at the Drake and Pennsylvania relays, held last week-end, is of more importance this year than merely to measure the talent of the respective territories which sent their track and field stars to these meets. With all regions except the far west represented, the two relays afford an excellent index of the college and university men who will compete in the tests this summer from which the United States Olympic team will be named.

Comparison is possible in 19 events. Of these the athletes at Drake excelled in ten, Pennsylvania eight, and one, the pole vault, was tied, with three jumpers, all from the Western conference, sharing the honors.

Standing in Events.

Records at Pennsylvania exceeded those at Drake in the high jump javelin throw, sprint medley relay, the quarter mile, half mile, mile and four mile relays and the hop, step and jump. At Drake superior marks were made in the 100 yard dash, 120 yard high hurdles, hammer throw, broad jump, discus throw, shot put, shuttle hurdle relay, distance medley relay two mile relay and the college mile relay.

Considering the athletes, George Saling of Iowa, Ralph Metcalfe of Marquette university, Henry Brock-Smith of Indiana, and Alex Wilson of Notre Dame dominated the Drake events. Wilson, however, is a Canadian and probably will win a berth on the dominion Olympic team.

Beecher Leads Big Ten Stars in Pole Vault

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Western conference always seems to have a group of pole vaulters who annually make competition in this event an outstanding feature. More than that, they offer a continual assault on the world record. With the passing of Tom Warne of Northwestern and Verne McDermont of Illinois from the Big Ten ranks in 1931 it was thought that temporarily, at least, the pole vault would go into eclipse, but the records this winter and spring have proved otherwise.

The pole vault championship in the 32d Big Ten games at Northwestern this month will see three men striving for Warne's title. One of these is Bryce Beecher of Indiana university.

In Competition Last Year.

Beecher lives in Linton, Ind., and is in his second and last year of competition in the conference.

Last winter in the Big Ten indoor games, it was Beecher who, in the final event, vaulted 13 feet 8 inches to win the title and with it the points which gave Indiana its first track championship in the Western conference. Indiana defeated Michigan for first place that evening, 27 5-6 points to 27 points.

In the 1931 outdoor games, Beecher tied for second place with McDermont at 13 feet 6 inches. The winner, Warne, vaulted 13 feet 9 11-16 inches, failing to better McDermont's 1930 all-time record of 13 feet 10 3-8 inches, although his best mark was higher. In 1929 Warne and McDermont had tied for the Big Ten title and record at 13 feet 7 inches.

Two Strong Rivals.

Beecher will have competition this spring which should rival the duel of Warne and McDermont. Lovshin of Wisconsin and Wonsowitz of Ohio State are the athletes. Lovshin won the Drake relays' pole vault last Saturday at 13 feet 6 inches, while Beecher, competing at the Pennsylvania relays on the same afternoon, tied with the Buckeye star at the same height.

Beecher is 23 years of age. He possesses the necessary physical qualifications for one who would defy gravity, being 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighing 170 pounds.

Throat Infection Takes Life of Grid Veteran

Philadelphia, Pa., May 1.—[Special.]—Dr. Sylvanus B. Newton, former University of Pennsylvania football player and one time football coach at Pennsylvania State college and Lehigh university, died of a throat infection at his home in Washington yesterday. He was about 60 years old. He died less than four days after becoming ill, despite a last minute attempt by his classmate, Dr. Charles H. Schoff of Medina, to save his life by a diphtheria antitoxin injection.

OLYMPIAS AND SWEDES TO PLAY SOCCER FINALS

BY OFFSIDE.

The Olympia soccer team will meet the Swedes in the final for the Peel cup if a protest lodged by the Sparta club against the Swedes is disallowed. In the semi-final games played yesterday before the largest crowd attending a soccer game in Chicago this season the Olympias defeated the Budas, 2 to 1, and the Swedes beat Sparta, 3 to 1.

Sparta, professional league champions, protested the victory of the Swedes, amateur title holders, on the ground of short periods. If the protest is allowed a replay will take place. Qrist scored first for the Swedes, who led, 1 to 0, at the interval. In the second period Qrist again scored and Mrnka of Sparta was removed for kicking. Vlick then netted the ball for Sparta's only score and Johnson added another for the Swedes.

In the first semi-final game De Pratt scored in the early minutes for Buda and the teams battled evenly until the period ended. Olympia pressed in the final period and with only a few minutes to go, Gibson and Kerbel both scored to give the Olympias victory. Lineups:

Know Your Derby Horses

BY FRENCH LANE.

Now we will have to get out the old dope book and see if Universe has a chance to win the Kentucky Derby on Saturday afternoon.

For this son of Infinite-Plaid, the latter a daughter of Wrack, has pushed his way very much into the Derby picture. He won the Woods Memorial handicap in New York on Saturday and among others showed his flying heels to the Derby favorite, Top Flight.

It was in the Woods Memorial that Gallant Fox started his drive to a 3 year old championship and in the renewal of the Woods a year later that Twenty Grand began another dash toward a Derby victory and the 3 year old championship. So one must naturally respect the winner of the Woods this year, and as Universe is on the cars today traveling to the scene of the Derby it is a certainty that his owner, T. M. Cassidy of New York, and his trainer, Jack Bauer, also from the east, expect to make trouble in Saturday afternoon's 3 year old battle.

Universe has the blood lines to travel any route and in any sort of going against the best of competition. He showed unmistakable signs of consistency as a 2 year old last year when he started nine times and was only twice out of the money. He won three of those battles, beating such fast steppers as Morfair, Curacao, Fall Apple, and Irene's Bob.

He had a fairly easy campaign as a juvenile, winding it up early last August at Saratoga and so has been given plenty of time to grow and develop into an upstanding 3 year old. At least his victory in the Woods indicates he is a colt of the highest caliber.

Horses Gallop Today; Aurora, Sportsmen's Park Open Gates

recently was in California at that route. He is the high weight of this afternoon's big opening party and is asked to shoulder a package of 118 pounds. He will be ridden by T. Salazar, a youthful jockey who has been quite a sensation in the far west.

Other Races Are Puzzles.

There were a lot of Chicagoans who also like the entry of Burning Up and Black Strap, which Mrs. Emil Denemark will send to the post. Burning Up was a sensation at the Aurora spring meeting a year ago, and has trained nicely for this engagement.

The other races on the Aurora program appear something like a Chinese puzzle to the expert handicappers. The fields are all huge. Horses will be coming together from many different racing points.

The first call to "boots and saddles" will be heard at 2:15. The daily double, which is to be introduced to Chicago racegoers, will be on the second and third races.

ous reputable racing points about the country.

Morsnuff Favored in Feature.

There was so much backing last night for Morsnuff, veteran sprinter in the stable of J. B. Morrow of Kentucky, to win the Inaugural handicap, that it began to appear as if he would go to the post as the favorite at about 8 to 5. Morsnuff won in Maryland a few days ago and since arriving here has worked faster over the new track than any other horse quartered there. Lanier, winner last week at Lexington, will be the second choice, it was indicated. Patricia Marian, Brookside, and King Cherokee were others demanding attention.

Much interest has been aroused in the running of the Jackson Park purse because it brings together two of the best 2 year olds developed this spring in Miss Brilliant and Sergeant Hill. They are both fast steppers.

Moriarty Quit to Prohibition? He's Regular

known as mouse cheese.—Ed.] and fetched it back to you.

"With the coming of prohibition, Eddie closed down tight on everything but near beer. At least, I never heard of his selling anything but near beer after 1919. I thing Eddie would be very sore if he could know that any one intimated he broke the law.

It Became a Book Shop.

"The store was divided in half after prohibition and the other half and the two floors above were turned into a book shop by the Head brothers, Arthur and Wilfred, both patrons in the old ale days. Arthur used to play his guitar in the Moriarty's and Wilfred sat and smoked his pipe and sang and now and again lifted his glass of ale.

"Moriarty's and the book store remained popular although there is no ale now and the Head brothers still run the book store, with plenty of pipes and good tobacco and a fireplace above which hangs the old copper flagon. I would not wish to commit them, but if you were a friend of theirs and you should happen to obtain a few bottles of Canadian ale today, possibly one of the Heads would wash the dust out of the old copper flagon and put it into action again.

"The book store is a place to see. The boys don't try to sell you books, but like to have you come in and look them over and smoke a pipe and go out when you get good and ready. The Heads are Englishmen with the familiar don't-give-a-darn attitude of the Englishman with something to sell. This attitude probably sells more books for them than they realize.

What? He Quit to Prohibition?

"Stoddard King, now a columnist on the Portland Oregonian, and Zoë Elliott, both of the class of 1914, wrote 'The Long, Long Trail' and tried it out with Eddie Moriarty's help in the back room of Tuttle's on several evenings with the enthusiastic, if inartistic, aid of all the ale hounds present."

It is a blow to learn that Moriarty quit to prohibition, but he seems to have had much in common with Benny Havens of West Point, even so, and such a man as could be treasured in song by the Yales. No man remembers him, but West Pointers will always go "a-singing sentimentally for Benny Havens-oh."

PREDICTS TAX ON MUTUELS WILL HELP BOOKIES

Baltimore, Md., May 1.—(AP)—Jervis Spencer Jr., chairman of the Maryland racing commission, today predicted that a 10 per cent tax by the government on pari mutuel tickets would drive the money now bet through the machines to the illegal bookmakers.

Spencer and Matt L. Daiger, secretary of the Maryland Jockey club, operators of Pimlico track, opening here tomorrow, said that Maryland racing interests would be organized to oppose the plan.

A 10 per cent tax on pari mutuel tickets was proposed in congress late last week to help raise the additional revenue sought to balance the federal budget.

Blister on Heel Fatal to East Chicago Youth

St. Louis, Mo., May 1.—(AP)—Frank Imbor of East Chicago, Ind., St. Louis university football player, died today of blood poisoning caused by a blister on his heel. Several transfusions of blood, volunteered by members of the football squad, failed to save his life. Imbor, 19, and a freshman, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Imbor. He had been in a hospital since April 6.

HORSE RACING

SPORTSMAN'S PARK
HAWTHORNE, ILL.

SOX LOSE 7TH IN ROW AS INDIANS WIN 8TH, 11 TO 1

Wes Ferrell Picks on Our Chicago Boys Again.

mik to Kamm, when he overslid third.

In the Indian half of the first Burnett and Porter were easy infield outs, but Averill, with a count of three balls and two strikes, socked the ball over the right field screen for a score tying homer.

Appling singled with one out in the second, but his effort promptly was nullified when Berry grounded into a double play, Montague to Burnett to Morgan.

The process in the third was similar to that in the second. Seeds singled with one down, and then Selph hit into a double play, Montague to Burnett to Morgan.

Averill led off the fourth with a single to right, but Morgan struck out. Blue made a great catch of Vosmik's foul on the brink of the Indian dugout. Kamm drew three straight balls, then two strikes, before grounding out to Kress.

Myatt drew the first pass off Gaston to start the fifth and moved to second on Montague's sacrifice. Ferrell tapped to Gaston and Myatt went to third, whence he scored on Gaston's wild pitch. Burnett singled to right and came home ahead of Porter when Dick knocked the ball over the right field screen. Averill's third hit was a single to center and he got to second when the ball got away from Seeds. Morgan popped to Appling.

In the eighth the Sox got two men on base for the first time since the first inning. Rothrock batted for Gaston, with one out, and walked. Seeds filed to Vosmix, but Selph singled to left, Rothrock stopping at second. Blue then grounded out to Morgan.

Help! This is Too Much!

McKain made his third appearance of the series when he went in to pitch the eighth. Morgan walked and went to second when McKain made a bad throw trying to catch him off first. Vosmik doubled to right, scoring Morgan, and Kamm singled to center, scoring Vosmik. Myatt singled to left, putting Kamm on third. Montague lined to Seeds, scoring Kamm. When Seeds saw Myatt rounding second he properly threw to first for a double play, but he got a tough error, because no one was covering first, and the ball went to the boxes, enabling Myatt to touch up at first, then run to third.

Ferrell tripled to right center, scoring Myatt, and it then was decided that McKain was not effective, and he was relieved by Poser. Ferrell held third while Burnett rolled out to Blue, but scored when Porter singled to center. Averill's fourth hit was a single to center, which put Porter on third. Morgan doubled, Porter scoring and Averill stopping at third. Vosmik walked, filling the bases, and Kamm walked, forcing in Averill. Myatt struck out, after a three and two count.

THE END OF A PERFECT SWING

Harry Cooper, left, shows how you should look at the finish of a full swing with a wooden club. The weight has shifted to the left foot almost entirely, and the body has turned so that it faces the hole.

Cubs Held to Three Hits, So Cards Win, 7-1

lins going to third. The two men scored on Pepper's single to center.

The most glaring of the Cubs' oversight of scoring possibilities occurred in the fourth and fifth. D. Taylor walked to start the fourth, and Stephenson followed with a single, which turned out to be the final Cub hit. Hemsley didn't think to swing when a third strike drifted across. Grimm then bounced to short and a double play was completed. Another pass went to Jurges at the opening of the fifth, but there were no encouraging developments.

More Walks, But No Runs.

Two hits off Bush in the seventh proved sufficient for another pair of St. Louis runs. Watkins dribbled a single past Bush. Collins' low fly dropped inside the right field line by the breadth of a hair and rolled into the gutter in front of the stand. Before Richbourg could capture it Watkins was around to the plate and Collins on his way to third. Collins didn't move off third on Blades' fly to D. Taylor, but he scored when Grimm, after racing down the right field line, pulled in Pepper's pop foul. Grimm couldn't turn and make the throw in time to cut off the run.

Hallahan's generosity reached its height in the eighth. He started off by walking Hartnett, who batted for Bush. H. Taylor ran for Gabby and moved to second when Hack walked. Herman put a crimp in a possible rally by grounding into a double play. Then Richbourg coaxed Hallahan for a walk, only to be forced by D. Taylor.

How I Got My Start in Baseball

BY LUKE APPLING.

[As told to Edward Burns.]

Cleveland, O., May 1.—[Special.]—Four home runs in one game to win, 7 to 5, for good old Oglethorpe university over Mercy university at the dedication of the stadium at La Grange, Ga., in 1930 convinced me that professional baseball needed me. It was good-by, Oglethorpe, after that big day.

LUKE APPLING.

All my four homers were good, sound smacks, and my talents in knocking them on such a ceremonious occasion impressed me more than my accomplishments in the several commercial courses I had pursued at Oglethorpe for two years. My penmanship hadn't been so good, trial balances had been elusive, and such terms as depreciation, turnover, cash reserve, etc., always had mystified me. But there was nothing mysterious about those four homers, made in four times at bat.

Earlier in the spring Oglethorpe had won all of its sixteen games, mostly contests with Southern conference teams, though we weren't members of the conference.

Our success had attracted the attention of scouts, and I had several offers. I had assured the athletic authorities and alumni of Oglethorpe at a banquet that I would be back in the fall to play half back, and when I said I would, I meant it. But those four homers were too much for me, and as soon as I could get around to it I signed with the Atlanta Crackers of the Southern association, where I played before being purchased by the Sox.

My advice to any young man who makes four straight homers to win a close game for his college at a stadium dedication, to keep his university's season slate clear, is: Sign with somebody before you have a chance to get into a slump.

Malone Picked to Pitch Today at Pittsburgh

Pat Malone will have to take over the pitching burden for the Cubs in the opener of a three game series at Pittsburgh today. Charley Root was slated for the assignment, but because of threatened flu and an attack of tonsillitis he didn't accompany the team.

Woody English worked in practice yesterday without wearing the metal splint which has protected his right index finger since a fracture was discovered three weeks ago. He wasn't included in the delegation sent to Pittsburgh. Neither was Burleigh Grimes, who still is struggling to shake off the effects of various ailments. Both he and English may be ready for action by the end of the week.

Sunny Jim Bottomley was removed from his first base job yesterday by Manager Street. The leading citizen of Nakomis, Ill., hasn't been hitting enough to satisfy the boss.

Lance Richbourg has a young brother playing with the Montgomery, Ala., team of the Southeastern league. The youngster was hit on the head by a pitched ball several days ago, but now is out of danger.

What might have been a capacity crowd was ruined by threatening weather. The gate totaled about 17,000.

The champion Cardinals aren't doing so well in the matter of winning games, but they're almost leading the league in errors. The three they registered yesterday gave them a total of 29 for the season. That's almost twice as many as the Cubs have made.

Hemsley demonstrated in the fourth just how speed can be of help to a catcher. After Gelbert had opened the inning with a single, Hallahan bunted and the ball flew low toward first base, but in foul territory. Hemsley sprinted about 15 feet, reached out with his bare hand, turned a somersault, and came up with the ball in his grasp.

SENATORS WHIP YANKEES, 4-2; GO INTO FIRST PLACE

Score All Their Runs in First Two Innings.

Washington, D. C., May 1.—[Special.]—Washington replaced New York as leader of the American league today by subduing the Yankees, 4 to 2. The Senators clinched the game early, scoring twice in each of the first two innings. The pitching of Brown had the Yankees guessing for eight innings, but in the ninth they became troublesome and Marberry quickly squelched them. Score:

Five Run Lead Fails Pirates; Reds Win, 7-5

Cincinnati, O., May 1.—(AP)—After spotting Pittsburgh to a lead of five runs in the first five innings, Cincinnati's Reds batted their way into the lead, drove two Pirate pitchers from the mound and won, 7 to 5, here today. Harris was taken out of the box in the fifth, and Spencer replaced French in the seventh.

Today was "new Reds'" day. The new players were introduced to a crowd of 21,000 by Vice Mayor John Druffel. They are Herman, Hafey, Manion, High, Lombardi and Shevlin.

200 BOXERS WILL BATTLE IN A. A. U. OLYMPIC TRIALS

New York, May 1.—(AP)—Nearly 200 boxers from 28 A. A. U. district associations will compete in the three day national amateur championships, starting Wednesday at Madison Square Garden.

Preliminaries will be completed Wednesday and semi-finals and finals Thursday and Friday. The four outstanding boxers in each of the eight divisions, flyweights to heavyweights, will be eligible to compete in the Olympic tryouts at San Francisco the week of July 10.

Sox Home Today; It's Ladies' Day and Tigers're Here

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., May 1.—It should be a good day for the score card man at Comiskey park tomorrow. The reorganized Detroit Tigers will be making their first 1932 visit and then, too, the south side bugs will have some heavy work identifying the members of their own team. Furthermore, it will be ladies' day.

Sam Jones, the one White Sox pitcher who boasts two victories, will pitch the opener against the Tigers. He got credit for the victory in the Tiger final in Detroit last Wednesday, although it was necessary for Bump Hadley to strike out the last two batsmen with the bases full and the score 4 to 3.

Appling's batting average, which is twice that of Hodapp, caused him to be inserted in today's lineup. Luke wants to play every day, likes to play second better than his lifelong position at short and, what is more important, looks much better at second than he ever did at short.

It was an overcoat day here, but 18,000 came out to see their hero, Wes Ferrell, and his associates perform.

Charley Berry, recently acquired catcher, arrived at noon and was awarded Smead Jolley's vacated uniform, No. 3. Charley doesn't quite fill it. But do you know a player who could?

The new Sox scarcely will have time to find boarding houses during their impending visit to Chicago. They leave Wednesday night for Washington, first stop on the first eastern trip.

Elmer's Pride Is Hurt; Finds He's Not Ready for Hagen Yet

BY ELMER DUBB.

If any of you beginners in golf who have been following this series of lessons have made any plans to enter the national open or amateur tournaments this year, you had better hold them up for a while. I discovered that yesterday when I went out to Glen Oak for a final cross-examination on all the lessons Teacher Harry Cooper had given me to date. I figured that taking a course such as Harry had given made me a golfer, but the soon straightened me out on that point.

"No, Elmer," he said, "you have done pretty well so far, but I have a hunch that Hagen and Farrell and Ouimet and the rest of the lads still have a slight edge on you. I don't want to blast all your hopes of becoming a champion, but this school you've been attending is a kind of kindergarten. Maybe when you get to sixth or seventh grade you can think about going on the big time, but not before. Now let's go over all the clubs in the bag and see what you've learned these last ten days.

Don't Try for Distance.

We went through the whole series of lessons, following the same route as we had during the course, starting on the green and finishing up on the tee. Harry didn't attempt to guide me very much, simply putting it up to me to show what, if anything, I had learned from his tutelage. At the end of five shots with each club he told me what was wrong or right with what I had done, and by the time we finished with the wooden clubs I had once more become acquainted with the following principles for a golfer, particularly a beginner:

1. Keep your head anchored on the ball until after you've hit it. Forget this one and you're on the road to ruin.

2. Don't argue with the club or the ball. Give each of them a chance to do its stuff, especially the club. You can achieve this by relaxing so that you won't be a bundle of muscles at the finish of the swing.

3. Don't try to set any distance records on your longer shots and don't try to see where they're going before they're hit. The ball will go just as far and certainly straighter if you take an even, comfortable swing at it.

4. In gripping the clubs let the left hand do most of the work, with the right as a guide. Bring the right into play a bit more on the longer irons and the wood clubs.

5. In putting, chipping and short pitching draw an imaginary line through the ball to the center of the cup and your shots will be much more accurate. For breaks and rises in the green around the cup draw this line to left or right to leave room for the break in the green.

6. The stance for any shot should insure comfort. Rest the weight on the heels so that it is evenly distributed and you won't lose your balance. Don't swing from a flatfooted stance. Shift your weight in the longer shots so that at the top of the backswing it rests on your right foot. Then, on the downswing and the follow through, shift gradually until you finish the swing with your weight on the left foot, facing the flight of the ball.

Putter Holds Key to Golf.

7. The swing and stance for the putter can be the foundation for all other clubs. Lengthen your backswing, take a wider stance and add more power to your down swing as you progress from the putter.

8. Keep your hands well down, by letting your arms reach almost to their full length and you won't have to worry about the top of the shaft striking the inside of your wrists before you've finished the swing.

9. Retain your original grip throughout the swing. Don't let it break at the top of the backswing, or you will lose control of the swing and then begin to wonder why the ball wanders off to right or left. Take practice swings with a tape measure stretched in front of you parallel to the hole. Keep the beginning of the backswing close to the ground and parallel with the tape until the left arm has almost straightened out; then begin to take the club up. In this way you will learn to "groove" your swing so that it makes a perfect arc.

10. Try to develop a natural turn of the wrists in the backswing so that the blade of the club meets the ball at hitting point of the downswing at the same point as at the beginning of the backswing. This turn occurs gradually after the left arm almost has straightened out.

LOYOLA ENTERS FOUR BOXERS IN COLLEGETOURNEY

Despite the fact that its team will be competing against champions from seven Big Ten institutions, among others Loyola university will not concede the team trophy in the intercollegiate ring championships next week until official returns are in.

The bouts are for the midwestern intercollegiate tourney, under the auspices of the American Legion at the Chicago Stadium Friday and Saturday

Loyola has named four entries and each is a champion in his class. All four are Chicagoans. Their records, in brief, are:

Bud Marcy, featherweight, French-Canadian, 19 years old; 80 victories in 94 fights with 27 knockouts; has never been down; a Catholic Youth Organization titleholder and Golden Gloves contestant. He is a member of the Glee club and debating team and is enrolled in the Loyola Agricultural club.

Charley Callanan, lightweight; campus champion.

Johnny Derrig, light heavyweight, but best at 168 pounds; holds campus title.

STEINKE AND HANS KAMPFER MEET TOMORROW

Germany's two outstanding heavyweight wrestlers meet tomorrow night at the Coliseum when Hans Steinke tackles Hans Kampfer in the windup of an all-heavyweight card.

Kampfer, sent here by the German Athletic federation to win the heavyweight championship from Jim Londos, has failed in this mission, but has established himself in the upper flight among the contenders.

WATKINS TAKES BIG SIX LEAD WITH THREE HITS

Hitting a home run, a double, and a single yesterday, George Watkins of the St. Louis Cardinals climbed into the Big Six batting list. The three hits gave him a .407 average, while Bill Terry and Hughey Critz were kept idle with .397 marks.

Jimmie Foxx of the Athletics returned to the sextet through a day of idleness, while other American league leaders lost ground. Gerald Walker failed to hit in four tries and slipped from the lead into a tie with Foxx for second place, giving Lou Gehrig, who got one hit, first place. The standing:

LAWYER URGES PUBLIC TRUSTEE FOR BOND MESS

E. H. Taylor Points to Colorado Law.

BY AL CHASE.

Edward H. Taylor, Chicago attorney, believes Colorado has a law which, if adopted by Illinois, would do away with the heavy burden of fees for lawyers, masters, receivers, etc., incident to foreclosures. It provides for a public trustee who steps into the picture when default occurs and takes active charge. Colorado attorneys, according to Mr. Taylor, tell him that the system has proven satisfactory and that while lawyers may be required on special occasions they're not necessary at any ordinary time, as the public trustee in the management of his office has satisfactorily administered his duties. Mr. Taylor says:

EDWARD H. TAYLOR. [Chambers Photo.]

"I was much interested in the article Sunday concerning the real estate bond situation in Chicago and with the observations upon the address of John W. Brabner-Smith at Northwestern university. As I had something to do with the blue sky laws of this state for the first eight years of its enforcement under the administration of Gov. Emmerson, then secretary of state, perhaps I may make some suggestions which I believe would be helpful at this time.

Suggests Colorado Law.

"It is impossible to secure a blue sky law in this state which would meet the situation. The law applicable in New York is the so-called Martin law and is not limited to securities alone but applies to every sale and to the transaction of all commodities.

"My suggestion is that a law similar to the one in Colorado would meet the situation if properly applied in this state, that is, their law provided in section 7577 of 'Mile's Annotated Statutes'" of the state of Colorado, wherein is created the office of public trustee for every county, whose duty is prescribed in the act and whose appointment is made by the governor in certain classified counties. In all others the county treasurer is made public trustee.

"This public trustee has received all mortgages that are paid and releases the trust deed or mortgage of record. When a default occurs in the payment of any of the notes for which the trust deed or mortgage is given, the public trustee forecloses after notice given to all parties concerned of record, taking himself the necessary testimony concerning such defaults and condition of title and issuing the necessary certificates and deeds to the purchasers under a sale conducted by him.

Fees Aid Situation.

"He charges for such service a nominal sum fixed by statute. Such fees go to the public treasurer and provide for supervision and management of the real estate pledged in the trust deed during the time of foreclosure and until the purchaser is placed in possession of the property foreclosed, or redeemed by the owner.

"I believe this method of conducting such proceedings would obviate the necessity of appointment of expensive masters in chancery, receivers' and attorneys' fees incident to the foreclosures now conducted in this state.

"The public trustee, being under bond to the faithful performance of his duty as such, is liable for the mismanagement of the property, and this situation would be a great relief, not only to the mortgagor but the mortgagee."

WILL SEEK HELP OF EXCHANGE ON DEBENTURE LIST

Yonkers, N. Y., May 1.—(AP)—Samuel Untermyer, counsel to the independent committee of the $50,000,000 debentures of Kreuger and Toll, said today he would appeal to the New York Stock exchange for help in obtaining a list of the debenture holders.

He said the exchange listing committee would be asked to refuse to list the deposit certificates of the Lee Higginson committee until the names of the debenture holders had been furnished the independent committee. The Lee Higginson committee, he said, has already circularized the holders and solicited the deposit of their debentures.

"Without the same facilities to get in touch with the investors as are at the service of Lee Higginson and the committee set up by it," Untermyer said, "our committee is helpless."

France Limits Imports of Iodine from America

PARIS, May 1.—(AP)—The official journal today said that imports on iodine in various forms had been limited because the "Brittany iodine industry was threatened by the United States and Japan." A decree fixed imports of raw iodine from Japan at 726 kilograms, from Germany at 120 kilograms and from six other countries, including the United States, 123 kilograms until June 30, 1932.

OIL PRESIDENT GIVES WARNING ON TAX BURDEN

H. M. Dawes Cites Levy on Autos, 'Gas'.

BY O. A. MATHER.

There is small prospect that the abnormally low prices for petroleum products that prevailed last year ever will be witnessed again for any considerable period.

This prediction is made by Henry M. Dawes, president of the Pure Oil company, in his annual report, made public last night. He also predicts further regulation in petroleum production and marketing practices. Finally, he comments on the heavy burden of taxes imposed on the industry and consumers of its products.

"It is the general opinion in the industry that the prices which prevailed in 1931 were abnormally low, and the averages for previous years confirm this," Mr. Dawes says. "General conditions would seem to require the maintenance of a higher price scale during the current year. The average price of midcontinent crude oil of 36 degrees gravity, the price which best reflects general market conditions, was 63 cents a barrel, and varied from a high of 95 cents to a low of 18 cents last year. The average for 1930 was $1.24, the average for the preceding five years was $1.53, and the average for the preceding ten years was $1.61.

Gasoline Cheaper at Stations.

"During the last year the average service station price of gasoline in the United States was 3.34 cents less than that realized in the previous year, 5.07 cents less than the average for the last five years, and 7.19 cents less than the average for the last ten years. As gasoline is the most important commodity in the industry, it naturally affords the best price barometer for all products."

In commenting on measures to remedy overproduction of crude oil, Mr. Dawes reminds the stockholders that total reserves of oil in the United States are not as large, in proportion to the potential requirements of the country, as are the total reserves of iron ore or most other natural resources.

"The developments of the last year indicate that the public and the great majority of the industry have become convinced that regulation is practical and in the public interest," he continues. "This general feeling eventually will make possible the enactment of such laws as are necessary and the requisite coöperation of the industry for ultimate stabilization. The producing problems seem to have been met in a much more intelligent and resolute way than those of marketing. However, a disposition toward more sane and reasonable practice has been decidedly more manifest in the last year."

Taxes Control Business.

Then Mr. Dawes presents some striking facts on taxation applied to the oil industry, as well as to general business.

"To a degree that never has been reached in the United States before the matter of taxation controls business activities today," he says. "The total tax burden would be less serious were it not for the disposition to spread it inequitably. Presumably because of apparent ease of collection the users of automobiles and those industries which serve them have been discriminated against to a degree that will result in curtailing their development and growth.

"As indicating the extent to which this has gone it is interesting to note that $1,022,000,000 is estimated as being the amount paid in taxes by the industry in 1931. The stupendous amount of this figure can best be realized by comparison with some governmental expenditures. It is about equal to the total receipts of the United States government, exclusive of interest and sinking fund, in 1917. It is equal to almost two-thirds of the United States government budget, exclusive of debt requirements and expenditures attributed to past wars. It is four times as much as the annual payments due the United States on foreign debts. The gasoline tax alone is twice the amount due from these sources.

Taxes Burden on Industries.

"In many states the amount collected from the gasoline tax runs from 100 to 200 per cent of the price realized on the docks of the refinery. The average gasoline tax the country over is approximately four cents a gallon. At the present time the greatest menace to the whole automotive industry is that of discriminatory taxes. The public is becoming aroused to the facts and the motorists of the country are protesting vigorously."

Net earnings of the Pure Oil company for its fiscal year ended March 31, 1932, including its proportion of undistributed earnings of affiliated companies, were $2,403,795, which was in excess of preferred dividends and surplus adjustments. However, net earnings actually received were $470,177. Preferred dividends required $2,057,241 and surplus adjustments took $294,450. The result was that total surplus was reduced by $1,881,514 and stood at $59,268,846 on Dec. 31, 1931.

Lead Production in March Totals 110,502 Short Tons

Lead production in March was 110,502 short tons compared with 111,290 in February and 146,789 in March, 1931, according to the American Bureau of Metal Statistics.

Standard Gas 1932 Outlay Is $25,012,000

The Standard Gas and Electric company, one of the largest public utility holding concerns, announces in its annual report that the capital expenditures budget of the system totals $25,012,000 this year, compared with $30,752,892 for 1931. This year's outlay is divided into $21,458,000 for new projects and $3,554,000 for completing work started prior to Jan. 1, 1932. Of the total budget $8,225,000 is for extensions to serve new business.

"The subsidiary and affiliated public utility companies as a whole made a favorable showing in 1931, despite the continuation of adverse business conditions," President John J. O'Brien says in the report. "Decreased demands of industry for electricity and gas resulted in sharp reductions in gross earnings, and transportation revenues suffered from reduced patronage. But these losses were partially offset by increases in the residential field of service, especially in sales of electricity. The average annual use of electric service per residential customer increased 7.10 per cent.

New Business Found.

"Although revenues were reduced on account of decreased industrial power business, a large amount of new business of this class was contracted for and added to the lines of the various companies. Sales of electric and gas appliances decreased in line with the general trend of retail trade, but even so a large volume of new business resulted from this activity, not only from sales in the companies' own stores but also as the result of coöperative efforts with other retail outlets for such appliances.

"Fourteen communities were added to the properties now comprising the system and at the end of the year the number of communities served totaled 1,662, having a combined estimated population of 6,000,000.

More Transmission Lines.

"Numerous extensions of transmission and distribution facilities were made to serve rural territories. As of Dec. 31, 1931, a total of 1,622,725 customers of all classes were served, an increase during the year of 7,168 customers. The total number of shareholders of subsidiary and affiliated companies of record at the close of 1931 was 159,402 and, in addition, the Standard Gas and Electric company had of record 43,674 shareholders."

The earnings and financial statements are the same as those published in a preliminary report issued in March.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, May 1.—Delegates of fifty nations assembled today in the auditorium of the federal economic council for the opening session of world trade week. They will discuss ways to stem the tide of economic nationalism.

The conference could not accomplish anything more important, William Stix-Wasserman, Philadelphia financier, said in his address, than to disclose with complete candor the obstacles preventing the sincere coöperation of the different nations.

World trade week was organized by the Berliner Tageblatt, which believes the world's economic prosperity depends on the international division of labor and a liberal exchange of goods; that the present stagnation is not due to overproduction, but to the breakdown of financial credit machinery.

The conference's foremost practical task will be to ascertain to what extent international credits can be repaid under sound principles of economics, to what extent their repayment can be made in goods, and, finally, what protection is justly due certain national industries.

Continental Oil Reports $1,872,848 Loss for Quarter

New York, May 1.—(AP)—The Continental Oil Co. of Delaware reports a net loss for the first quarter of this year of $1,872,848. This compares with a net loss in the same period of 1931 of $2,491,143. Net earnings of $1,743,379 for the first three months of this year, against net income of $2,670,730 in the first quarter of 1931, are reported by the Hershey Chocolate Corporation and affiliated companies.

CORN AND OATS PRICES LOWEST FOR 30 YEARS

Wheat Outlook May Brighten Soon.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain prices are down to the lowest level for corn, oats and rye. Corn is selling at the lowest in 34 years. Oats are at the lowest in 35 years. Wheat prices are moderately above the season's low.

All grain markets are said to be well liquidated as regards May delivery, or will be today. Low prices, however, are no particular inducement for a large increase in speculative buying on the part of the general public.

There are a few professional operators who are bullish and were large buyers of distant futures of wheat at the week's close, giving the market a sharp rally after a drastic decline. It is expected that deliveries on May contracts today will be large and will be readily taken care of.

Crop Reports Big Factor.

Crop reports and export business are dominating factors in the wheat market. Private reports due tomorrow are expected to be bullish as compared with last year, although their estimates will be raised 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 bu over the government figures of a month ago, but will be materially less than private April returns of 500,000,000 bu winter wheat.

There will be a report on spring wheat acreage, but no condition figures. A moderate decrease is expected in the area seeded to winter and durum bread spring wheats. The crop in the American and Canadian northwest is doing well, with plenty of moisture. Warm weather, however, is needed.

Forty-five Days to Harvest.

We are within about 45 days of harvest of the new winter wheat crop in the southwest. It will be smaller than last year but ample for all requirements.

Stocks in all positions, including American wheat held in bond in Canada, the visible supply, in country mills, and on farms April 1, were 464,000,000 bu, compared with 526,000,000 bu on March 1 and 407,000,000 bu on April 1 last year, against 457,000,000 bu on March 1, 1931. These figures suggest a large carryover.

The question confronting the trade is what is to be done with the new crop soon to be harvested. A shortage of elevator space is feared by the trade, but farm board officials say there will be plenty of storage room.

It is the general opinion of the grain traders that it would be for the best interests of the farmers, consumers, and the trade in general were the farm board to liquidate its holdings and return the trade to normal channels. George S. Milnor, president of the Grain Stabilization corporation, however, made it plain in a statement issued late Saturday that there would be no change in the present policy of the corporation in selling 5,000,000 bu of wheat per month, and that sales have been at the full competitive prices compared with sales of other exporting countries.

Mr. Milnor expressed bullish views on the future of the wheat market and said that Europe will have to get its future supplies from the United States, Canada, and Argentina. He also says there is a great need for additional wheat supplies in the orient and that Russia has practically diverted the shipment of her wheat surplus from the last crop and supplies from that source will be negligible until after harvest.

Wheat prices are off around 9@10c from the recent high point, with net losses of only 1@1⅛c for the week. May wheat closed Saturday at 54⅝@54½c, July 57⅝@57½c, September 60@59⅞c, and December 63¾c.

May Corn Below 29 Cents.

Action of the corn market has been a great surprise to the trade. Outside interest has been limited and the market controlled largely by market professionals. Country holders sold more than 1,000,000 bu of cash corn for shipment to Chicago during the week, the largest business in months. At the same time a sudden revival of the eastern demand suggested that supplies in Indiana and Ohio had been greatly reduced and that prices were at a level that induced eastern distributors to take hold.

Speculators who have been bearish turned bullish at the close and bought July, while elevator interests bought May and sold July. The close was at net losses of 2@3c for the week. May finished on a rally at 28⅞@29c; July, 32⅞@33c; September, 35⅛@35⅝c. Prices follow:

CENTRAL PUBLIC SERVICE GAINS TIME ON LOANS

Gets Bank Extension to Oct. 1.

Albert E. Peirce, president of the Central Public Service corporation, states in the annual report of the company, issued yesterday, that the firm's bank loans, totaling $5,650,000, have been extended until Oct. 1, 1932. The funded debt and property purchase obligations maturing during the last eight months of 1932 amount to $3,669,071. The principal maturity is a property purchase obligation of $2,200,000 due Nov. 1, he said.

Net Income Lower.

The company reported consolidated net income of $2,931,885 for the year ended Dec. 31, before provision for retirement and amortization. The latter items, which are charged against surplus, amounted to $2,887,882. This compares with 1930 consolidated net income of $3,913,964 before retirement and amortization.

Other charges against surplus totaling $19,055,388 are listed. These included $8,225,886 for reduction in book values and loss on the sale of investments and dividends on the preferred and class A stock of $4,187,426.

A credit of $19,784,806 to capital surplus arose from the reduction in the amount of the outstanding A stock, which was effected without reducing the number of shares. As a result of this and other credits the combined surplus at the close of 1931 was $12,607,297, against $4,007,077 at the end of 1930.

The consolidated balance at the close of 1931 shows investments of $15,281,388, including interest in Canary Island properties which are not consolidated. Cash totaled $3,038,132. Bank loans on Dec. 31 of $6,804,875 have since been reduced to $5,650,000. Accounts payable at the close of 1931 were $1,634,005 and accrued interest and preferred dividends amounted to $5,543,172.

"Parent" Gets Bank Loans.

President Peirce points out that the bank loans are the obligations of the parent corporation. The subsidiaries have no bank loans. No capital stocks of the operating or holding companies are pledged to secure these loans, he adds.

Announcement is also made in the letter accompanying the report of the sale early this year of the electric and steam heating properties in West Bend, Wis. The sale was made for cash, it was stated. The company was purchased by the North American group.

Gross operating revenues of the system in the first quarter of 1932 were $745,000 less than in the similar period last year, it was stated. Net operating earnings, however, were only $73,000 less than the first quarter of 1931.

Aver Loan to Pennsylvania Would Give Work to 28,000

New York, May 1.—If the Reconstruction Finance corporation acts favorably in the Pennsylvania railroad's application for a $55,000,000 loan, the road will guarantee employment for 28,000 workers and at the same time will place substantial orders with numerous firms affiliated with the railroad industry, it is stated in authoritative quarters. Railroad interests are said to believe that the chances of a favorable decision on the loan have been considerably enhanced by the action taken by the road this week in omitting its dividend.

Travelers May Take Only $30 Out of Czecho-Slovakia

PRAGUE, Czecho-Slovakia, May 1.—(AP)—The National Bank of Czecho-Slovakia reduced the amount of money which may be carried out of the country to $30 in a ruling issued yesterday. Formerly travelers could take out $60. Foreign tourists as heretofore may carry out what they brought in.

SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT IN BUSINESS NOTED BY COMMERCE GROUP

A slight improvement in general trade, coincident with more seasonable weather and the news of further success of the campaign against the hoarding of money, characterized the past week in Chicago, according to trade observers of the Chicago Association of Commerce. Aggregate volume of distribution by wholesalers and retailers was about the same to a shade under that of the same week of last year.

A bright spot in the trade situation appeared in the annual toy sale put on by manufacturers and jobbers. An average number of buyers attended and made fair purchases for future delivery. Wholesalers of dry goods and general merchandise also appeared more optimistic. Sales of seasonal lines were fair, the backwardness of the season having some effect. Retailers offering fresh stocks of goods at bargain prices met a good response.

Better news came from the steel industry in the shape of inquiries for steel rails aggregating several thousands of tons for a western line, with a rate of placement of 2,000 tons monthly going to local mills. Road construction is also taking a fair tonnage for bridge and reinforcing steel bars. Automobile interests are giving more attention to securing supplies of steel, although no new large orders as yet have been placed.

Electric refrigerator sales were reported very satisfactory during the last week, and further improvement is expected.

TWO IMPORTANT AD COMPANIES OF CITY MERGE

Announcement was made yesterday of the merger of two national advertising agencies with headquarters in Chicago, the Roche Advertising company and Williams & Cunnyngham.

The new company will be known as Roche, Williams & Cunnyngham, it was announced by John Pierre Roche and Lloyd Maxwell, presidents of the merged agencies. The two agencies place a combined business of $9,000,000 a year, it was stated. Mr. Roche will be president of the new concern, Mr. Maxwell first vice president, and Guy C. Pierce executive vice president. The agency will maintain offices in Chicago, Philadelphia, and Buffalo.

Mr. Roche organized his agency six years ago. Williams & Cunnyngham was organized 30 years ago. H. P. Williams, the founder, who died several years ago, was one of the pioneers of national advertising.

Canada Seeks to Encourage Own Coal for Gas Making

OTTAWA, Ont., May 1.—(AP)—To encourage the greater use of Canadian coal in the manufacture of coke or gas, the dominion government will pay any difference between the cost of United States and Canadian coal up to $1 per ton, an official announcement said. The measure was made effective as of April 1, last.

Life Underwriters Elect N. H. Blanchard President

Springfield, Ill., May 1.—Nathaniel H. Blanchard of Champaign was elected president of the Illinois Association of Life Underwriters at their annual state convention here today to succeed C. C. Weber of Springfield, who was named chairman of the executive committee.

Commercial Credit Co. Reports $700,515 Income

New York, May 1.—(AP)—The Commercial Credit company reports for the quarter ended March 31, net income of $700,515, compared with $865,752 for the first quarter of 1931.

Federal Reserve Reports Gain in Banking Situation

New York, May 1.—(AP)—The gradual building up of surplus bank funds in New York, similar to the process which is now under way, is said by the Federal Reserve bank of New York to have preceded six of the country's major business recoveries.

This statement is contained in the bank's monthly review, which devotes special study to the money market during April. During the month, says the review, there was further continued relaxation of the banking situation. The principal influence in this direction, it adds, was an increase in the rate of purchases of government securities by the Federal Reserve banks.

Shows Gain in Credit.

"These purchases," it states, "resulted in the first material increase in several months in the total volume of Federal Reserve credit outstanding. In addition there was a better return flow of currency from circulation, so that the combined gain of funds by member banks from these two sources during the last two months is now well over $000,000,000.

"The indebtedness of member banks at the reserve banks has been reduced by more than $300,000,000 during the last two months. This reduction in indebtedness, together with a decline of nearly $100,000,000 in other forms of federal reserve credit, due principally to maturities from the acceptance holdings of the reserve banks, has absorbed somewhat more than half of the funds received by member banks, but there was an increase of $236,000,000 in their reserve balances.

Banks Decreasing Debts.

"Thus the position of member banks as a whole has been changed within the last two months from one of heavy indebtedness in which they were endeavoring to relieve their situation through credit liquidation, to a position in which many banks throughout the country have been able to retire, or greatly reduce, their indebtedness, and a considerable number of banks have surplus funds with which they can increase the amount of their credit employed in investments or extended directly to their customers.

"This change in the situation of member banks is similar to the change in the banking situation which occurred following crises on several occasions previous to the creation of the Federal Reserve system.

Helps Credit Expansion.

"At such times there was a tendency for funds to flow back into New York after a crisis, so that surplus funds accumulated in New York within a comparatively short time found their way to work in an expansion of credit.

"The business recoveries of 1915-1916, 1908-1909, 1904-1905, 1896-1897, 1893-1895 and 1885-1887, all were preceded by such a concentration of excess funds in New York."

PRESENTS PLAN FOR WORLD FIGHT ON DEPRESSION

New York, May 1.—(AP)—An international crusade against the present stagnation of business, in which the central banks of all important nations may join forces with the federal reserve system of this country, is pictured by the National City Bank of New York as a future possibility.

In its monthly economic review, the National City bank strongly espouses the American campaign to end business lethargy under leadership of the federal reserve. It solidly supports the present credit expansion policy of the system which is designed to pile up cash resources of banks to such a height that they will be warmed to a policy of lending money more freely to deserving borrowers, and will be less inclined to bear down so hard on debtors who are now having difficulty meeting their loans.

The present reserve bank policy—reflected in the purchase of $306,000,000 of government bonds in the last three weeks raising the total of reserve bank holdings of such bonds to $1,291,000,000 against $740,000,000 only last Feb. 24—will put new funds to work in frozen credit channels, the review says. The policy would have been adopted some time ago, it adds, if there had not been signs that Europe did not understand their full significance.

The Kroger Grocery and Baking company reports sales of $17,190,044 for the fourth period ended April 23, 1932, as compared with $20,804,136 for the like period in 1931. This is a decrease of $3,614,029, or 17 per cent. The corresponding period last year included Easter week, which fell in the third period in 1932.

Sales for the first four periods totaled $67,903,652, as compared with $79,911,301 for the corresponding periods in 1931, a decrease of $12,007,649, or 15 per cent.

The average number of stores in operation for the fourth period of 1932 was 4,845, as against 5,057 for the corresponding period of 1931, or a decline of 4 per cent. Retail food prices declined 16.9 per cent between March 15, 1931, and March 15, 1932, according to the bureau of labor statistics of the United States department of labor.

Yardage Sales of Broad Silks Up 21 Pct. in March

Yardage sales of broad silks increased 21 per cent during March as compared with the previous month, and decreased 14.8 per cent as compared with March, 1931, the Silk Association of America, Inc., reports. Stocks on hand March 31 were 8.2 per cent lower than on Feb. 29 and 6.1 per cent lower than on March 31, 1931.

TODAY'S BUYERS SEEN WEALTHY OF TOMORROW

Wall Street Recalls Past Crises.

BY ALEXANDER D. NOYES.

[Financial Editor of the New York Times.]

New York, May 1.—Probably the atmosphere of profound depression which appears at present to prevail is largely created by the fact that the government's important remedial measures have not yet produced a tangibly improved situation.

It is true the rapid recurrence of bank failures which marked the crisis of 1931 virtually has ceased. The 45 suspensions announced for March made the smallest total scored in that month since 1925; they were less by 295 than the monthly average of last autumn and not so numerous as the monthly average of the whole years 1929, 1927, or 1926. Along with this the currency lately hoarded in unprecedented quantity has been moving back into the channels of circulation, but the effect on the general situation of such highly important basic changes is inevitably slow.

Stock Mart Disappointed.

The stock exchange has manifestly reflected the resultant disappointment in the course of both stock and bond prices. It has reflected something more—on the one hand, the popular attitude of absolute despondency, a complete psychological offset to the belief in unlimited prosperity three years ago; on the other hand, the heavily curtailed available resources even of the richer part of the investment community.

Undoubtedly buying orders are being placed today, as they were in such years as 1897 and 1877, for securities the possession of which will at some time hereafter bring the owners into the front rank of our financial magnates. A good deal of the Union Pacific stock which earned 8 per cent in 1906 and controlled half a dozen other railways had been picked up by the future owners around 4 cents on the dollar during 1897.

Other Rail Stock Bargains.

Some of the Northern Pacific stock that was cornered in 1901 and bid up to $1,000 must have been acquired around the price of 25 cents per $100 share which prevailed in 1896, but these purchases were the exceptions then as now.

The greater part of the very wealthy investors were themselves so badly tied up in a falling market that they could only look forlornly at the preposterous prices reached in the hard times, with perhaps an occasional

TRADE OUTLOOK FOR SUMMER SEEMS BETTER

Auto Industry Shows Improvement.

New York, May 1.—(AP)—Business plowed its way through another difficult month during April, but finds at the start of May some slight but definite evidences of belated seasonal improvement.

Not a great deal is expected by leading executives in the manufacturing and retailing fields, but their coldest calculations make hopeful allowance for something better than sliding from here into summer at a gradually declining pace of activity which would be the normal trend for this period.

Auto Outlook Helps.

Principal hope for at least a temporary upturn arises out of reports of increasing production schedules in the automobile industry. For the week ended April 23 production approximated 37,000 new units, against about 35,750 the week before. This gain, several authorities state, will be increased during May.

While the United States Steel and Bethlehem earning reports provided two new evidences showing how drastically business has fallen off in its first quarter, the industry is described as being more cheerful than it was a fortnight ago. The industry's weekly trade publication, Iron Age, stated definitely that automobile orders had finally begun to appear and a distinct gain was forecast for the new month. Steel production moved up one-half point to 23 per cent of capacity.

Building Somewhat Better.

Another moderately encouraging sign was seen in the April reports of new building contracts. These were at a daily average of nearly $5,000,000, a gain of about $500,000 over the March average. For the first half of April new building contracts showed an increase of 11 per cent over the March average, which was considerably better than the usual seasonal gain at this time, which is about 7 per cent.

BRITISH TO ISSUE THREE PER CENT TREASURY BONDS

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, May 1.—The new treasury financing, as announced, takes the form of the government inviting tenders for an unlimited amount of 3 per cent treasury bonds at the minimum price of 97¾ per cent. The longest life of the bonds will be ten years; probably it will, in fact, be considerably shortened.

It is understood that the new issue is being made to provide funds for repaying short dated bonds next August, but part of the proceeds of this issue may be used to provide the new foreign exchange regulation fund.

Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc.

I would appreciate any information regarding Warner Brothers Pictures common stock.—W. H. K.

Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., has been in business since 1915. Not until the 1927-1928 fiscal year, however, did it become a leading factor in the industry. Through its subsidiary, Vitaphone corporation, it was one of the pioneers in the production of sound effect and talking motion pictures.

Warner Brothers, capitalizing on this new venture, undertook an ambitious program of expansion. Property account increased 3,127 per cent from Aug. 31, 1928, to Aug. 31, 1931. This was financed by the sale of debenture bonds and stock.

The company expanded not only in the motion picture producing and distributing fields but in 1930 acquired the phonograph, record and radio divisions of Brunswick-Balke-Collender company. This resulted in severe losses, and a portion of these assets was sold to a subsidiary of Consolidated Film Industries, Inc., in December, 1931.

With the development of sound pictures by other producers and a general reduction in receipts of the entire industry, in addition to heavier fixed charges, earnings of Warner Brothers fell off. For the three months to Nov. 28, 1931, net loss was $1,849,000. Deficit after preferred dividends was $1,948,000. For the corresponding 1930 period, net income was $1,576,000, which was 15.89 times preferred dividends and equal to 39 cents per common share.

For the fiscal year ended Aug. 29, 1931, net loss was $7,919,000. Deficit for the year after adjustments, including writedown of record and radio division, was $10,804,000. Net income for the preceding year was $7,075,000, against $17,272,000 for the 1929 fiscal year and $30,000 for the 1928 fiscal year.

On Nov. 28, 1931, current assets were $23,743,000 and current liabilities were $13,393,000. Cash was $4,617,000. Working capital was $10,350,000, against $22,779,000 the year before. Earned surplus was $96,000 and goodwill was $8,718,000.

Mortgages and funded debt outstanding total $102,755,000. There are 103,107 shares of no par preferred and 3,801,344 shares of no par common outstanding.

No dividends are being paid on the common. A regular quarterly dividend of 96¼ cents was paid on the preferred on March 1, 1932.

Utility Outlook Better than in April.

New York, May 1.—(AP)—The curb market begins a new month tomorrow with prices somewhat above the old lows, but with sentiment rather depressed by recurrence of liquidation.

Trading last week was sluggish. Quotations held firmly for two or three days, only to lose their gains when supporting influences were withdrawn. Short covering appeared to have provided much of the buying that lifted the list in early sessions, weakening technical conditions, and facilitating the later lapse.

Utility Outlook Better.

Utilities, relieved of much uncertainty concerning loan maturities and financing needs, made considerable improvement, while better tone was evident, although they sagged again when immediate requirements of buyers had been satisfied. Thus Electric Bond and Share, after rising to 15, eased close to 12, where it was about 3 points above the low. Commonwealth Edison virtually duplicated its recent high, only to dip under 70, where, however, it met good support. St. Regis Paper preferred suffered a substantial loss, but many other preference issues were in the same boat. Cities Service shares were in supply most of the week.

A. O. Smith was a soft specialty, losing virtually a dozen points. Great Atlantic and Pacific, notwithstanding declaration of another extra dividend, was also heavy.

Standard of Indiana Leads.

Standard of Indiana gave the best performance among the oils, rallying a point as details on sale of its Pan-American Petroleum subsidiary to Standard of New Jersey were being worked out. However, the stock yielded its rise. There was some further improvement during the week in oil and gasoline prices.

OFFICIAL WEATHER FORECAST.

Miscellaneous.

SALESMEN AND MEN WHO WOULD LIKE TO LEARN
HOW TO BE SUCCESSFUL SALESMEN.

WE WILL NOW SIGN UP A FEW ADDITIONAL MEN WHO WILL UNDERTAKE A FIVE-YEAR PROGRAM OF EARNINGS WITH ADDITIONAL CASH PROFITS IN SAVINGS FOR THE FIVE YEAR PERIOD OF $11,500.00.

This program of earnings and savings is something entirely new. It is a definite and practical plan for the man who wishes to cover the overhead expenses of himself and his family each week, and save a substantial additional profit. It is to such men we offer this opportunity. We prefer married men with established homes they must maintain. This is a permanent arrangement, and we are not looking for the man who is not serious-minded about his future and about getting ahead in an honest, industrious manner.

This is a large national corporation manufacturing and marketing in this country, a product sold all over the world with amazing success. Our product is new, having been introduced on the American market in 1929. It is freely predicted that our new American factory will surpass the great Electrolux factories in Sweden, Germany, England and France. Tremendous opportunities to progress thus are opened to the men we select for introduction of this new Electrolux invention (not refrigeration).

We have men who have been making up to $1,000.00 a month. Others, $750.00, $600.00, $500.00, $400.00.

Our business is successful, growing and of unlimited future possibilities. Last year was the greatest in our history and the reason is that our product has the widest market of any specialty ever introduced in America and we can absolutely prove this to any fair-minded man looking for opportunity.

While this is specialty sales work, yet the man selected need not have had any previous sales experience. If you have adaptability and an earnest desire to learn the business and get ahead in it, we can give you the information and teach you all the methods necessary to success, quickly.

A part of the instruction is by example. To go in the field with another man for a day and see him actually make the money is the most valuable kind of instruction. In one city one of our men demonstrated the present-money-making possibilities of this business to fifteen men by taking them in the field with him, one at a time. In those fifteen days those men saw him earn over $450.00. Not a single man saw him make less than $20.00 the day he was with him.

SIMILAR TRAINING WILL BE GIVEN MEN INTERESTED IN PERMANENT, CONSISTENT WORK ON A PLANNED-OUT BASIS AND PAID FOR THEIR INTEGRITY AND RESPONSIVENESS IN OUR CHICAGO AND NORTHERN ILLINOIS OFFICES.

You cannot make money here unless you earn it. But if you are capable of understanding and following instructions, and if you are one who likes to practice to gain skill and judgment in what he does, and if you are a worker willing to pay a working price for success, then we recommend that you come in Monday morning for an interview. It costs nothing to try. The training is free. We will furnish full equipment with no deposit required. There is no expense.

We require men to be of good reputation, active and alert. This is a straightforward offer of sincere intent to worthy men who are in need of good, substantial positions. We have tried to state the facts and requirements clearly. Please do not apply for these positions unless you feel you can meet the requirements. Applicants will be personally interviewed Monday morning, 9 to 12. Also 1 to 3. See

M. RABELL,
PARLOR F, MORRISON HOTEL.

EVANSTON, N. CHICAGO MEN—PERM'NT.

We have several good positions for responsible men in Evanston; also North Chicago, Waukegan. Prefer married men above 28 years, who can be depended on to carry out program of work in business-like manner. Instruction and equipment furnished; we risk you nothing, but require clean record to justify our financing your business. Apply in person only 9:30 to 1:30 Monday Suite 215, 1046 Wilson-av.

Advantages of Marinello.

Being a Marinello graduate, your patrons will expect to pay you more for treatments than if you were a product of some obscure school. That's one reason why it pays to be a Marinello Beautician. But—there are many others that our Representative will be glad to tell you about. We want girls right now to fill positions in our beauty shops.

Why not train for a profession that shows you greater returns? Day and evening classes now forming. Agreeable tuition arrangements. Come in, write, or phone for free 35-page booklet.

Commonwealth Customers—Pay LESS—for LOANS

$2.93 is the average Monthly Cost of a $225 loan under COMMONWEALTH'S Reduced Rate. This allows 25 months for repayment. There is no lower cost than this in Chicago.

THE personal property which nearly every family owns and the signatures of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $300 quickly and easily.

NO FEES. You get full amount of the loan and up to 25 months to repay. Interest at the Reduced Rate is charged only while you keep the money.

Also Salary and Auto Loans.
